The Tree and the Man.
We Hear From Europe.
First German Warship.
Russia Can Do It.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 14.

WALKING OUT on Brickell avenue, a wide thoroughfare, divided by a row of trees, you see the branching top of a palm, struggling for its life.

Miami reporters should find the tree, photograph it and keep track of its fate. Its lower branches are dying, and the whole tree must die, absorbed by the rugged enemy that has surrounded it.

WHAT HAPPENS to trees, happens to men.

Farther out on Brickell avenue, you come to the enormous, magnificent place built by Deering, who made millions manufacturing plows and other implements for farmers.

He accumulated tens of millions and spent many of them buying land, and building here a palace with huge parks around it at the water's edge. He built greenhouses enough for a great public park; miles of high, thick walls, innumerable huge posts of coral rock, each surmounted with an enormous sculptured vase of marble.

He planted hedges of cacti and thorny shrubs to keep out trespassers. His iron gate still has heavy padlocks.

He lived there awhile, his money enveloping him, as the parasite tree surrounds the softer palm. Now he is gone, and his estate does not know what to do with the empty place that he leaves behind him.

Miami would like to buy it and preserve it, but cannot afford to now. There are individuals rich enough to take it, but any such individual wishes to please his vanity by building some folly of his own. The very rich do not like to buy their follies ready made.

MONEY IS only frozen labor, the accumulated, concentrated result of man's work and thought. Properly used, it can increase general happiness, its power for good increased by its mass, as is the power of water flowing over Niagara. But few that have intelligence to acquire money have intelligence to use it well, as they would like to do.

You could have found few men in America less happy than was Deering, king of money, as he looked at buildings that represented so many millions and asked himself why on earth he had built them.

THIS MORNING'S paper tells you what France and England propose in regard to payment or rather NON-PAYMENT of the billions that they borrowed from Uncle Sam in their troubles.

Their problem is how to keep our money and at the same time preserve their pride. They can hardly do both. Repudiation is repudiation, no matter what diplomatic formula you adopt.

SENATOR BORAH encourages Europe's repudiation plans with the statement that "there must be a new deal in our foreign debt policy."

He demands in return "a definite promise by nations abroad." What's the use of talking about a new promise, while nations abroad are busy breaking an old one, and repudiating a debt of honor? And what good reason can anybody find for compelling American taxpayers to take on their shoulders a debt repudiated by Europe?

Is this country, with more idle workers than there are in all the other white nations put together, one that should lightly make a present of ten thousand million dollars, borrowed in wartime?

THERE IS a faint element of humor in Europe's war debt attitude. France and Britain come together, like two small boys that agree to ring a strange doorbell and run. Neither wants to do it alone.

Poland joins the repudiation brigade, with Italy, Hungary, Czecho-Slovakia and innumerable other countries.

Poland, you remember, is a nation that was put on its feet, made self-governing and independent, when the foolish management of this country got the idea that its business was to regulate the whole world.

THE GERMAN cruiser Karlsruhe, first to visit an American port since the war, received in New York Harbor a grand reception, guns booming, airplanes flying overhead, flags displayed.

The war is over and a German battleship should be treated like any other foreign battleship. It might be better, however, to reserve artillery salutes and flag displays for great passenger and other commercial ships in which Germany excels. They represent progress and decency. A battleship represents wholesale murder, dishonor, butchery and savagery.

THE RUSSIAN government announces that 25,000 to 30,000 white collar workers in government offices will be moved into the country to work in the fields, because "bureaucracy increases inefficiency."

In Russia they can do that sort of thing. It might be a good thing for the country if it could be done here, if half of the 10 per cent of all our population now on public payrolls could be lifted out of their white collars and put to work on the soil. They may not believe it, but they would be happier, and the whole nation would be better off.

This country has almost as many parasites as Thibet, when every fourth able-bodied Thibetan man entered a monastery.

WILLIAM S. BROCK

BROCK, PIONEER PILOT, DIES

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Billy Brock, pioneer pilot, airmail flier, and conqueror of the Atlantic, is dead.

The man who survived the dangers of pre-war aviation, taught American soldiers to fly during the World War, piloted airmail planes, and then capped his career with a flight over the Atlantic, died last night of cancer.

William S. Brock, as he was christened, was born 36 years ago at Gladstone, O. At 16 he was a pilot.

It was on a projected around-the-world flight in 1927 that Brock, accompanied by Edward F. Schlee, made the first America to England non-stop flight. They flew their plane, the Pride of Detroit, on to Japan. But adverse weather conditions delayed them for days and finally the plan to span the Pacific was abandoned.

Wounded Trooper Again Conscious

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Regaining consciousness for the first time since he was wounded in a gun battle with William Lynch, 72, Corp. William Hanna, of the state police, described the duel in which Lynch was killed, and asked "what sort of a man was he?"

Hanna was summoned to Lynch's farm at Gillespie Friday after the aged recluse fired on a group of trespassers, wounding a small boy.

Convicts Given Rum, Two Men on Trial

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Nov. 14.—Charles T. Bilger, of Spring Township, and Ambrose Dobson, of Mingo, accused of furnishing liquor to inmates of the Rockview Penitentiary, were placed on trial today. Their case was postponed at the last term of court, because, it was said, the principal witness against them was beaten by other penitentiary inmates two days before the trial.

Two Fliers Delay Hops Over Atlantic

ISTRIS, France, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—The two flights of Lucien Bossoutrot and Jean Mermoz to South America were postponed today. Bossoutrot held up his expected take-off at 6 a. m. on account of a poor gasoline feed. Mermoz hoped to take off this afternoon if the wind changed to the north.

THIEF FLEES SHOTS, ONE CAUGHT

Store Robber Escapes Over Roof Despite Police Bullets

A robber suspect fled over a downtown roof early today, dodging a policeman's bullets as the attempted burglary of a Fifth avenue shop was frustrated.

John Sarocko, 19, of 1213 Muriel street, charged by the police as an accomplice of the fugitive, was arrested.

The attempted burglary was discovered by Patrolman James Scanlon in the rear of the Fifth Avenue Specialty Shop, 227 Fifth avenue.

Turning his flashlight upon the fire escape, Patrolman Scanlon said he saw Sarocko about midway up the four-story building. Near the roof was another man. As Scanlon started up the fire escape, Sarocko dropped a bundle, which, police said, contained dresses, and started to join his companion. He was overtaken by the policeman, who fired at the other man.

Search of the store revealed, police say, that two men had carried from the building 100 dresses valued at $750. A similar quantity had been arranged for disposal inside the building.

Police also said they found augers, hack saws and jimmies, said to belong to the two men.

Sarocko, who said he had been in reform schools and a jail, was held for court. He said they had entered the building through the fourth floor off the fire escape.

Fear Robins Drowned by Rum Gang

BOSTON, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—A story of the drowning at sea by rum runners of Col. Raymond Robins, missing prohibitionist and friend of President Hoover, was told police today in their investigation of Ralph Code, 40, alleged swindler.

Robins has been missing since early in September.

Flier Leaves Kansas In Record Attempt

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 14.—(INS.)—Endeavoring to establish a new East-West transcontinental flight record, Col. Roscoe Turner landed at Municipal Airport here at 12:40 p. m. for refueling, taking off a few minutes later headed for Albuquerque, his next refuling point.

Th hop from New York to Kansas City, including a refueling stop at Columbus, required 5 hours and 54 minutes. Col. Turner left New York at 7:47 a. m., eastern standard time.

Congressman Strong Backs Car Into Boy

BROOKVILLE, Pa., Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Police reported Representative Nathan L. Strong, of Brookville, crashed into a pole while driving today and then accidentally backed into a 6-year-old boy, injuring him. The boy, Frank Ferraro, of Brookville, was taken to a hospital. Police say Strong lost control of his car.

UTILITY QUIZ WHITEWASH CHARGED

Kountz Says Probers Checkmate Own Efforts

A charge that the State Senate Public Utility Investigating Committee was checkmating its own efforts by hampering its counsel was made today by Attorney George P. Kountz, former president of the Allied Boards of Trade.

Attorney Kountz said the sincerity of the committee was doubted in its refusal to grant its chief counsel, Oliver K. Eaton, authority to issue subpenas for important records in connection with its activities. He said the public should not tolerate any "whitewashing" by the Senate committee. He declared:

"The committee should in all fairness and honesty proceed with its work without halting in any particular. Full power should be granted its counsel to subpena any person or record he may regard as necessary in the prosecution of the duties of the committee.

"Any compromise or delay would retard seriously, if not prevent, the committee from arriving at the truth of the conditions surrounding public utilities, which should be its real endeavor.

"It is an extraordinary thing that a committee should hamper its own counsel by a reluctance to follow his request. If this should be followed by a denial of this request, the suspicion that the committee is not desirous of proceeding honestly with the investigation, but rather is more concerned with protecting and covering up interests and individuals, would be confirmed."

Eaton, however, denied Kountz' charges. He said the committee had not yet acted on his request for the subpenas.

From Harrisburg today, the Associated Press reported that on Wednesday the committee will launch an investigation into the Associated Gas and Electric System, deserting temporarily its study of the Penn Central Light and Power Company, of Altoona.

The committee will continue its inquiry into the activities of the Pennsylvania Electric Association.

Bank Closing Delays State Employes' Pay

HARRISBURG, Nov. 14.—(INS.)—Closing of the Diamond National Bank in Pittsburgh will make pay day late for all state employes. The bank was one of the state's active depositories and all pay checks which would have been issued tomorrow were drawn upon it.

Employes of the Treasury have begun the task of rewriting all the pay checks upon another state depository. The state had $301,000 in the Diamond National and the full amount was secured, state officials said.

DIAMOND BANK CLOSES HERE

A resolution, adopted at a meeting of the board of directors Saturday afternoon, read:

"Be it resolved that on account of present depressed business conditions and continued unusual withdrawal of deposits, The Diamond National Bank, of Pittsburgh, suspend and place its assets in the hands of the Comptroller of the Currency of the United States."

According to the statement announcing the closing, signed by E. E. Rieck, withdrawals have been especially heavy since the death, last May, of James Dawson Callery, president of the bank.

Deposits of the bank were listed Saturday at $9,919,000; on September 30, at $12,045,917.64; on December 31, 1931, at $15,643,544; December 31, 1930, $23,624,527. Government bonds listed as resources in 1930 were $2,542,530; there were none in the last statement.

William Taylor, chief national bank examiner in this district, will be temporarily in charge. Doors of the bank will be closed to the public for several days.

Rieck, in announcing the closing, said that a committee from the Pittsburgh Clearing House Associaton will co-operate with Taylor in examining and auditing the bank with an eye to reorganization or liquidation. The association's committee was named at a meeting early Saturday afternoon, previous to the decision to suspend business.

Directors of the bank included Francis A. Callery, Ralph M. Dravo, Harry C. Graham, Albert P. Meyer, M. L. O'Brien, W. O. Phillips, J. Raymond Price, G. B. Ryland and Edwin E. Slick. Rieck was chairman.

COUNCIL BACKS WATER FIGHT

President of Council John S. Herron today presented a resolution, which was approved by City Council, asking Mayor Charles H. Kline to instruct the City Solicitor to aid Mt. Lebanon Township Commissioners in their fight against the South Pittsburgh Water Company rates.

The resolution asked that city authorities furnish data and offer "such aid as desired in securing equitable water rates which may react to the benefit of Pittsburgh users of South Pittsburgh water."

Herron cited that the South Pittsburgh Water Company had not responded to Council's invitation to voluntarily submit a revised water rate schedule in the interests of Pittsburghers now being served by the company.

The Mt. Lebanon commissioners have carried an appeal to the Public Service Commission to have the rates reduced.

Council Backs Hunt For New Tax Source

City Council went on record today as pledging full co-operation to the Citizens' committee, recently appointed to study ways and means of additional taxation. Council voted to give consideration to any proposition the committee might suggest.

PRESIDENT, SUCCESSOR READY TO CONFER ON PLEAS BY ALLIES

Party Chiefs To Demand Payment

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—A hostile reception in Congress was indicated for any proposal for an extension of the Hoover war debt holiday and a re-examination of the reparations-debt problem.

This became more apparent today as members of Congress, both Democrats and Republicans, gave careful scrutiny to the texts of the British and French notes delivered to eSecretary of State Stimson last week, and made public Sunday, while awaiting the return of President Hoover.

LEADERS HOSTILE

The sentiment among leaders of both parties in the legislative branch of the government was that the European nations, in presenting their pleas for further leniency of their debts to this country at this time, are following a lost cause. Without the consent of Congress, the executive branch of the government is unable to suspend collection of the debt installments when due, except insofar as the debt funding agreements provide for a two-year extension of that proportion of the installment which is amortization of principal. That portion which is interest money must be paid, default being the only alternative.

Congressional leaders, after reading the British and French notes, gave every indication they will not agree to further delay in the payments due. They indicated Congress will stand on the declaration which it wrote into its grudging acceptance of the original Hoover one-year moratorium—that Congress was opposed to any extension of this moratorium, or to any further scaling down of the debts.

ASK CONFERENCE

The British note asked outright for the convening of an international conference, preferably at Washington, to consider the whole situation. The French note merely asked that the "study of the present serious problems now under discussion may be continued." Both asked that payments due on December 15 be postponed pending the outcome of such a conference or discussion.

Republican and Democratic members of Congress alike agreed that debt proposals of the European nations be given careful consideration, but none held out great hope for reopening of the debt question.

Congressional comment was:

Senator Swanson, of Virginia, ranking Democrat on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee:

"The American people would be loath to relieve the tax burdens of foreigners and impose them upon themselves."

Senator Walsh (Dem.), of Montana:

"I the debt question is urgent enough and it becomes necessary to dispose of the question at CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—(INS.)—Senator Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa, is seriously ill of pneumonia here, it was learned today. Physicians said his condition was too serious to permit removal to a hospital.

Invitation Studied by Governor

Here are the latest developments on war debts:

France and England asked extension of the present moratorium, and suggested conferences looking to further revision.

Mr. Roosevelt at Albany prepared to reply. Close associates believed he would accept.

A hostile reception in Congress was indicated for any proposal for an extension of the Hoover war debt holiday and a re-examination of the reparations-debt problem.

A committee headed by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., and including Alfred E. Smith and Nicholas Murray Butler, advocateed moratorium extension and readjustment of debts.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 14.—Although he remained in seclusion at the executive mansion, President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt let it be known that he would reply late today to President Hoover's invitation to the White House to confer on international debts.

While Mr. Roosevelt gave no intimation of the nature of his reply, his close associates indicated he would accept the invitation. He is expected to stop at the White House on his way to Warm Springs, Ga., a week from today.

$50,000 STOLEN CANVAS SOUGHT

Eleven hundred and thirty-four square inches of old canvas, covered with daubs of cracking paint and valued at $50,000, was being sought in Pittsburgh pawnshops and art stores today.

The detectives who sought it may have seen nothing beautiful in the picture of a monk being tempted by a nude woman into which the paint was patterened.

But there's no accounting for taste, they said, as they combed the city for the LaFassas masterpiece, "Temptation of a Saint," painted in 1640 and stolen from a wealthy Bay Shore, (L. I.) home last summer. The theft was discovered recently and Director of Public Safety James M. Clark detailed two detectives to the search.

The search has been conducted in secret for several days, it was learned. Other unidentified objects of art were stolen at the same time. For them and for the painting a nationwide hunt is in progress.

British Aviatrix Hops for Cape Town

LYMPNE, England, Nov. 14.—(INS.)—Amy Johnson, famous British aviatrix, took off from here at 6:35 a. m. today for Cape Town in an effort to better the record for the flight set by her husband, Capt. J. A. Mollison. Weather conditions along the route were reported good.

Her husband, who recently completed a solo westward flight across the Atlantic, made the Cape Town flight in four days and 17 hours.

False Bank Alarms Call Police 3 Times

Police scout cars and detective squads rushed thrice to the Farmers Deposit National Bank, early today as the burglar alarm sounded at headquarters. In each instance the officers were told the alarm had been caused by a short circuit, and were told to disregard succeeding calls.

Tax Receipt Signatures Repudiated at Trial

Twenty witnesses in Criminal Court today repudiated their "signatures" to orders for tax receipts which David Roberts, Hill district political leader, is charged with obtaining.

They all testified they had no such dealings with Roberts, who is being tried on a charge of fraudulently obtaining many receipts for voters in the 1931 election. Roberts is a former assistant custodian of county property.

Arthur Drumm, a tax clerk in the County Treasurer's office, testified that Roberts paid for and obtained 400 tax receipts for Fifth Ward citizens.

Drumm said under the present system in the Treasurer's office it is possible for one person to obtain more than one tax receipt for himself on the same day—this because the rush near election time prevents clerks from checking the names until the next day.

Beer Law Enforcement 'As Usual,' Says Walsh

Pittsburgh's police heads say they will not slacken the reins of enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment or the Snyder act regarding the sale of beer until Congress modifies the Volstead act.

Both Public Safety Director James M. Clark and Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh said so today, when asked if they might follow the lead of Mayor Cermak, of Chicago, and other municipal peace officers in "letting up" a bit on beer sellers. Clark said:

"I will not permit the sale of beer. Just as long as the Volstead act remains a law, I will enforce it. I have no more right to break this law than any other law."

Supt. Walsh added:

"I will continue to enforce the law as in the past."

ALLIES MOVE TO AVOID PAYING DEBTS DUE UNITED STATES

BRITAIN, FRANCE LEAD, OTHERS ADD PLEA

Suspension of Sums Due December 15 Requested

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Great Britain and France, each $4,000,000,000 debtors of the United States, today sought relief from further payments pending an international conference on world debt problems.

The British and French notes, made public yesterday, in which both asked suspension of December 15 payments of $95,550,000 and $19,261,438 respectively, were considered only the first of similar requests to be made by all America's war debtors for a revision of obligations. December payments are the first due since expiration of the moratorium.

BELGIUM SEEKS DELAY

From Brussels today came word that the Belgian government has decided to ask for a prolongation of the debts moratorium, while in Athens, the Greek government proposed to inform the United States it cannot pay the next debt installment pending the settlement of debts of other countries to America.

In September, Esthonia, Latvia and Poland took advantage of a 90-day notification clause in the debt funding agreements and told this government principal payments aggregating over $3,000,000 would not be made in December. Last week Hungary served notice she could not meet her December installment and Greece failed to make a payment then due.

All of France's December payment is interest which, under the funding agreements, is not postponable. England's installment includes $30,000,000 of principal.

LAUSANNE PARLEY

Both communications stressed the Lausanne conference of last July at which the allied powers agreed to slash reparations from $64,000,000,000 to $712,500,000 on the condition that there be a reconsideration of inter-governmental debts, including those owed by Europe to the United States.

The French memorandum said:

"The French government, certain of being in close accord with the ideas of the American government, voluntarily agreed to very heavy sacrifices at Lausanne. It is in this very same spirit that the French government today proposes to the government of the United States to join with it in a further study of the debt question.

"The French government asks that an extension of the suspension of payments may be granted, is further convinced that such a step would have the most helpful effect on the monetary crisis which threatens so many nations."

Both communications referred also to the joint statement issued by President Hoover and Premier Laval after their conference here October 25, 1931, which said:

"We recognize that prior to the expiration of the Hoover year of postponement some agreement regarding them (debts) may be necessary covering the period of business depression."

The French government said its "heavy sacrifices" at Lausanne were based on the principles contained in the Hoover-Laval statement.

Dunn Asks Board To Combine Votes

Matthew A. Dunn today petitioned the Return Board to combine the votes cast for him as a candidate for Congress in the Thirty-fourth District on the Democratic, Independent and Jobless party tickets. His name appeared on the ballot as Matthew A. Dunn, Democrat and Jobless party candidate, but as Matthew Dunn in the Independent column. Judges W. H. McNaugher and John P. Egan notified Congressman Guy E. Campbell, Dunn's Republican opponent. Dunn, who is blind, was credited with victory on the basis of unofficial returns.

once, a special session of Congress should be called."

REED OPPOSED

Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania:

"I am not surprised that the continental countries asked for a reopening of the debt question and a further moratorium, but I am very much surprised and greatly disappointed that Great Britain has taken up with them.

"I don't think there is the slightest possibility that Congress will listen to further moratorium or further debt reduction."

Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, Republican chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, reiterated his statement of Saturday, when he said that removal of the causes of European demands for postponement should be the major consideration of Congress.

Representative McDuffie, of Alabama, Democratic whip:

"I know no parallel in history for the leniency which this country has shown on the question of debts."

Representative Fish, of New York, to be the ranking Republican member on the House Committee on Foreign Relations:

"I am opposed to any further discussion, extension or reduction of debts, at least until the foreign nations begin to reduce their budgets for military purposes."

Senator Couzens (Rep.), of Michigan, member of the Senate Finance Committee:

"I agree with Senator Morah that postponement of debts is not in itself an abstract question, but involves a study of the situations behind the necessities for postponement, and the policies that have led to the present situation."

ASSAILS BANKERS

Representative Rankin (Dem.), of Mississippi, who fought the Hoover moratorium in the House a year ago:

"President Hoover and his international bankers advisers seem to be trying to rush this matter, hoping to get a lame duck Congress to betray the American people by canceling or reducing these war debts and unloading that burden onto the backs of the already overburdened taxpayers of American."

"I am unalterably opposed to cancellation of a single dollar," he went on. "Practically every member of the House and Senate elected to the Seventy-third Congress is committed against any kind of cancellation. So Mr. Hoover wants to obtain action in the lame duck session."

Commenting on President Hoover's invitation to Mr. Roosevelt to confer, Representative Byrns (Dem.), of Tennessee, said:

"It appears to me that the President is seeking to involve President-elect Roosevelt in a situation brought about by the Republican administration.

"If we are to have private conferences about the war debts we might as well have a special session of Congress and discuss the situation in the open."

MRS. ZIEGFELD'S RELICS SOLD

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—(INS.)—Property of the late Mrs. Florenz Ziegfeld, Sr., a collection of rare relics, art pieces and furniture went on the auction block today.

Mementoes of the golden age of Victorian culture, the objects were placed on sale at the old family home where Mrs. Ziegfeld lived for 50 years before her recent death. She died unaware of the fact that her famous son, Flo Ziegfeld, originator of the Follies had preceded her in death by several months.

To be sold for the benefit of the estate, the collection includes ornately upholstered chairs, heavy tapestries, Oriental rugs, marble statuettes, lamps, lace curtains, and other appointments which were in the height of fashion a half century ago. Also to be auctioned off are portraits of famed stage folk, including Lillian Russell, Lottie Collins, Arthur Hartman and Titto Ruffo.

Intellectuals Weigh European Problems

Premier Mussolini, opening the convention, said he was sure these thinkers will be able to suggest solutions to the world's men of action.

GOV. ROOSEVELT REPLYING TO HOOVER

Will Accept Invitation To War Debt Parley, Friends Indicate

secretary, Gov. Roosevelt sent word that President Hoover's telegram had been received. She said:

"The Governor expects to have his answer ready later in the day."

Gov. Roosevelt has completely recovered from the cold which confined him to his bed since last Thursday, but he continued to deny himself to all callers today. He plans to go to the Capitol tomorrow to begin work on the state budget.

It is expected that Gov. Roosevelt will request Vice President-elect John N. Garner and several Democratic congressional leaders to accompany him to the White House.

Advisers of Mr. Roosevelt pointed out today that his acceptance of President Hoover's invitation would not mean he was prepared to shoulder responsibility for any immediate decision on war debts but that he would be acting merely as a private citizen.

Hints have been thrown out by some of Gov. Roosevelt's close friends, however, that he is opposed to any postponement of the debt payments due December 15, unless the foreign nations are able to prove conclusively it would be impossible for them to meet their payments at this time.

BUDGET INVOLVED

Because the war debts play an important role in the balancing of the federal budget, it is understood Mr. Roosevelt feels that if the December payment is postponed it will make it more difficult for him to balance the budget after he takes office.

During the campaign, the Governor declared that the payment of war debts could be accelerated through the rehabilitation of international trade. He said this could be accomplished through a readjustment of trade and tariff regulations.

It also is believed that if Mr. Roosevelt goes to the White House for a conference with the President he will demand to know if the present administration at Washington has made any pledges to the foreign nations regarding postponement of the December payment.

Hoover Speeds Eastward To Meet Roosevelt

By GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service.

ABOARD PRESIDENTIAL SPECIAL EN ROUTE TO WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—President Hoover sped eastward today to write a new and dramatic page into American history.

Before the week ends he is expected to engage in a White House conference with President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt that may have world-wide repercussions. Primarily, Mr. Hoover is seeking the views of his successor on revision of the World War debts, now being demanded by all of the European powers, and immediate extension of the moratorium.

Also the President wants to ascertain Gov. Roosevelt's position on disarmament, the forthcoming world economic conference and other major international problems "which could not be concluded during my administration."

In calling his successor into immediate conference, Mr. Hoover will seek to place squarely on the shoulders of Gov. Roosevelt the responsibility for any action taken with respect to debt revision and postponement of the payments due December 15.

Manufacturers' Light And Heat Capital Structure Sifted

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Resuming its investigation of the Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation system today, the Federal Trade Commission delved into the stock and bond ramifications of the Manufacturers' Light, Heat and Power Company, of Pittsburgh, one of the larger operating subsidiaries of the Columbia group.

R. J. Ryder, accountant-examiner of the commission, testified that the Pittsburgh company was an operating merger rather than a holding company and that it was organized on April 21, 1923.

VOLUMINOUS REPORT

Ryder submitted a voluminous report dealing with organizations growth of capital assets, growth of capital liabilities, balance sheets accounts, income and surplus and operations and statistics. The report showed that the Manufacturers Light, Heat and Power Company was not an original incorporation, but a consolidation of seven previously existing companies, as follows:

The Manufacturers' Light and Heat Company, Fort Pitt Gas Company, Relief Gas Company, Mutual Benefit Gas Company, Citizens' Natural Gas Company, of Waynesburg; Waynesburg Natural Gas Company and Canonsburg Light and Fuel Company.

Ryder further testified that the accounting records, balance sheets and financial records of the company could not be located. He declared:

"The present management said it did not know where these records were, although they made an extensive search for them about two years ago."

STOCK VALUATION

The par value of the outstanding capital stock of the above companies, as of the date of consolidation, was:

The Manufacturers Natural Gas Company, $600,000; the Peoples Light and Heat Company, $250,000, and the Bellevue and Glenfield Natural Gas Company, $70,000.

The amount of capital stock of the consolidated corporation, authorized at organization, was $1,500,000, divided into 30,000 shares of par value of $50 each.

Ryder explained that "in connection with the acquisition of the capital stock of the various companies, the minutes of the company were at the time rather vague as to the party from whom the stock was purchased."

In connection with the acquisition of the Fort Pitt Gas Company, Ryder said that stock of the company was purchased on the following terms:

"For each five and two-thirds shares of the Fort Pitt stock, one share of stock of this company, and also for each share of stock, $75 in bonds of an issue of $6,500,000 of bonds to be issued after a merger of the Pitt company into the Manufacturers' Light and Heat Company, as provided in an agreement between this company and A. W. Mellon and Joseph W. Craig."

MUNHALL BLAST INJURES 3

Three persons were injured in a mysterious explosion and fire that shortly before last midnight destroyed a two-story brick apartment house at Main and Bradford streets, Munhall.

Mrs. Mary Badolatak, 26, who, with her four children, Mike, 7 months; Santa, 2; Angelo, 4, and Leopold, 9, was assisted from the building by her husband, Frank, 38, collapsed from shock at the home of a neighbor.

Two volunteer firemen, R. F. Riley, 26, of 621 Fifteenth avenue, and Edward Doyle, 29, of 613 Seventeenth avenue, both of Munhall, were treated at the Homestead Hospital for lacerations of the head and face after they were cut by flying glass.

The blast, believed caused by gas, occurred in an unoccupied apartment on the first floor, police said. It ripped through the building, blowing out the rear wall and showering the vicinity with bricks and glass. Fire, following the explosion, destroyed the building, despite efforts of four volunteer fire companies. Loss was estimated at $20,000.

DORRANCE CASE IN HIGH COURT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(INS.)—The Supreme Court today, on petition of the state of New Jersey, issued an order to the state of Pennsylvania to show cause why New Jersey should not be allowed to file a suit contesting the claim of Pennsylvania to the right to levy inheritance taxes on the estate of the late John T. Dorrance, soup king.

Both Pennsylvania and New Jersey claim the right to inheritance taxes from the estate of the founder of the Campbell Soup Company. Records filed in the court showed the Pennsylvania tax as upheld by the state court to be $17,437,655, while the New Jersey tax was $16,768,477.

New Jersey was refused the right to intervene in the petition of heirs and executors of the Dorrance estate for review of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court decision.

Experts Ask Debt Delay To Boom U. S. Trade

By T. HOWARD KELLY
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Declaring against outright cancellation of war debts, the Committee for the Consideration of Intergovernmental Debts in its report published today urges congressional "reconsideration and readjustment of the intergovernmental debt-funding agreements as would best advance the interests of American trade and promote the prosperity of the American people."

It further recommends:

1—That the elected representatives of the American people recognize this vital and delicate problem as a non-partisan issue to be settled strictly on its merits in the best interests of the United States.

2—That Congress extend the moratorium for a sufficient period to give time for these negotiations.

Simultaneously with the issuance of the report Francis P. Garvan, former alien property custodian, charged that "the foreign propaganda to modify or embarrass our foreign debt position is on."

He declared control of big business and big banking by the private international banking firms is "the great evil" that confronts the nation. He accused the international bankers of being "the creators of the false internationalism which has brought us to our knees."

According to the committee, which is headed by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors Corporation, its recommendations have been indorsed by 51 business, farm and labor leaders of all political parties in all sections of the country. Among these is Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, who has urged debt revision, and Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, who has suggested remission of debts on a percentage basis in proportion to our increased European exports; Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, a member, has demanded cancellation, and Silas H. Strawn advocates revision. Among its vice chairmen are James M. Cox, John W. Davis, George W. Wickersham, Frank O. Lowden, A. P. Whitney and Henry P. Fletcher.

Society Woman Plunges To Death in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 14.—(Universal.)—Mrs. Emeline McFarlane, 66, wife of a wealthy retired automobile body manufacturer of Detroit, either leaped or fell from a window of her sumptuous apartment early yesterday and plunged five stories to death.

Mrs. McFarlane, who was socially prominent in Detroit, was partially blind and had been despondent over the possible total loss of her vision, according to Mrs. E. C. Plaisted, the wife of her nephew.

Several weeks ago, Mrs. Plaisted said, Mrs. McFarlane underwent an operation in an attempt to have the sight of one eye saved.

She returned to her apartment Saturday and both eyes were heavily bandaged when she plunged from her bedroom window on the sixth floor. She fell to the roof of another building five stories below.

Mrs. McFarlane's bed was near two open windows with low sills, and Mrs. Plaisted said she may have been groping about the room and have tripped and fallen to her death.

Asleep in the same room was her husband, W. P. McFarlane, an invalid. He and Mr. and Mrs. Plaisted, who were sleeping in another part of the apartment, did not know of Mrs McFarlane's death fall until they were awakened by the building manager.

BYRD HERE FIGHTS 'SMOKE SCREEN' OF TAX CUT FOES

ADMIRAL AIDS DISTRICT DRIVE FOR ECONOMY

Denounces Minorities For Costs Burdening American People

Here to assist in organizing the Western Pennsylvania branch of the National Economy League, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, national chairman of the league, today said the organization, designed to effect reduction of federal, state, county and municipal taxation, is concentrating its effort on "dissipating the smoke screen that opponents of the league have thrown up" regarding its activities.

Admiral Byrd and Charles M. Mills, executive director of the league, spoke at a noon luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce. The Western Pennsylvania branch is being organized under the chairmanship of A. Rex Flinn.

SCORES MINORITIES

The Admiral said that a second Declaration of Independence is necessary to free the country of tax burdens which, he said, were imposed by organized minorities.

The Admiral said it is the object of the League to attempt to reduce taxes, local, state and federal, at least 25 per cent by organizing cities and congressional districts and enrolling millions of members. He added:

"In this way, by organizing the great majority, we can protect our congressmen and other lawmakers from organized minorities so that they can vote for the good of the country without being defeated. The local taxes are the highest.

"With an efficient organization, and with millions of members, we propose to co-operate to the fullest with all local tax organizations and agencies."

TAXES HIT POOR

Byrd said there would be no work for the unemployed until the tax burden was removed, pointing out that the labor of all the people for every three months of each year was required to pay the bill of $15,000,000,000. The poor, he said, are more drastically affected than the well-to-do because they pay the costs in all they buy.

He continued:

"Ours is becoming a government betrayed to a selfish few by the indifference of the great majority. Our constitution was never written to allow confiscation, by taxation, of a citizen's rightful property. Suffering and destruction lies at the end of the road this country ist raveling. It is high taxation, nor wars, that has brought most disaster to nations."

Admiral Byrd said later in response to a query that the League is opposed to the immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus, but only as a part of its campaign to effect economy in government. In his speech, he said:

"I want to emphasize that this is not just a fight on the veterans. We stand strong and will fight for proper compensation and care for disabled war veterans. This league is their friend.

CITES LEGISLATION

Referring to legislation for war veterans, he said:

"If a veteran today, 14 years after the World War, and a quarter of a century after the Spanish-American War, is injured by falling down the steps, or in any other kind of peacetime accident, he receives a pension as did his comrade who was disabled while facing the enemy. This civil life disability pensioner may not even have left his country during the war.

"With fairness, but with determination, this league will attempt to end this abuse, for we, the people, cannot stand this cost. According to the present law the cost of World War veterans aid alone will amount to $21,500,000,000 by 1945, an amount equal to the total cost of the war. Eventually the cost of these veterans, according to the present law, will amount to over $85,000,000,000—four times the cost of the war. Our economic system will collapse under this cost."

Byrd will speak in Carnegie Hall tonight, outlining plans for the Western Pennsylvania membership drive. The league's goal is 700,000 members in Western Pennsylvania.

STORM DEATH TOLL 2,500

HAVANA, Nov. 14.—(INS.)—Official estimates of the killed in the recent Cuban hurricane reached 2,500 today as stories of looting, violence and horror continued to pour in.

According to reports from stricken coastal towns, looters attempting to rob the dead and injured were shot to death almost before the hurricane had abated.

Thirty men accused of robbing the victims of the tidal wave at Santa Cruz Del Sul were under heavy guard at Camaguey, where survivors threatened to execute them.

Meanwhile, under direction of President Machado, official agencies bent all efforts toward relieving the injured and homeless.

Particular measures were taken to prevent spread of a threatened epidemic.

The high pressure that caused the cold weather over this section the past several days is now centered over the southeastern states. It is causing cold weather over that section with frost as far south as Tampa. The southerly winds from this high are now causing rising temperatures over the Ohio Valley states and the lake region. Another high appears this morning over the Canadian Northwest. It is producing the lowest temperatures for the season over the Canadian Northwest and the border states. At Winnipeg the temperature this morning was 16 degrees below zero. The low separating the two highs stretches from the lake region southwestward to Oklahoma, thence northwestward to Washington. It is not causing cloudiness and precipitation except on the north, where light snow is falling.

BEER RULE GOAL OF CAPONE GANG

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Reports were current today that members of the gang of Al Capone are planning an attempt to control the legal beer business in Chicago, if and when beer is legalized."

The Chicago Herald and Examiner said it had heard that gangsters hold options on two breweries, and that they were negotiating for more plants.

The newspaper said its information was that the gang's "muscle men" have been intimidating speakeasy proprietors, forming a bartenders' union, and warning all concerned that they must stand by the hoodlums or take the consequences.

Mayor Anton J. Cermak, at French Lick, Ind., was quoted as saying he had heard similar reports and had indicated officials were preparing to deal with the situation.

Capone is serving a prison term at Atlanta, Ga., as an income tax law violator.

cabinet if all suggestions were adopted.

Senator Swanson, of Virginia, says there should be three Southerners in the cabinet, which sounds reasonable, as the South makes up one-third of the nation, and is the Democratic party's backbone.

IT IS announced that Gov. Roosevelt, when President, will "first balance the budget," simultaneously seeking to restore employment to the idle.

He will try to co-ordinate industry, agriculture and finance in a way to make impossible any wild speculation injurious to any of them.

He hopes to restore our great foreign markets, "by fair and friendly tariff agreements with other nations."

He would set an example to other employers by establishing the five-day week in government employment.

GHOSTS OF OLD SOUTH STALK DEATH PROBE

International News Service.

NATCHEZ, Miss., Nov. 14.—Phantoms of the ante-Bellum South stirred in this sleepy Mississippi River town today as a grand jury began an investigation of the mysterious, violent death of Jane Surget Merrill, 72-year-old, wealthy spinster recluse, daughter of a one-time ambassador to Belgium.

Murder indictments were to be sought against Richard Dana, eccentric recluse, distant kin of Charles Dana, the writer, and Charles Dana Gibson, the artist, and his housekeeper, Octavia Dockery, daughter of a Confederate Army brigadier, and three Negroes.

LINKED IN KILLING

Sheriff C. P. Roberts said today he had "plenty of evidence" by which he hoped to link the two indiosyncratic neighbors of the slain spinster with George Pearls, Negro, believed to have been the slayer, himself shot to death in a gun battle with Arkansas police a few days after the murder.

The three other Negroes also are charged as accomplices.

Miss Merrill, a belle of the old South, who retired to her 120-year-old estate, Glen Burney, near here, 40 years ago, forsaking a brilliant position in society, was shot to death in her home the night of August 4. Her body was dragged several hundred feet from the mansion and hid in a clump of bushes.

FEUD OVER GOATS

Murder charges were lodged against Dana and Miss Dockery, neighbors with whom Miss Merrill had waged a long feud over depredations of the strange couple's goat herd.

A bloodstained coat, belonging to Dana, was found. Conflicting stories told by the couple further aroused police suspicion. Dana and Miss Dockery said they heard screams and the sound of a shot from the Merrill estate, but did not investigate or report it to police.

They were arrested but were released a few days later when the Negro, Pearls, was shot. Police, however, continued the investigation and Sheriff Roberts said he would present their names to the grand jury with the Negroes.

MANSION IN RUINS

Dana and Miss Dockery lived in a once-luxurious mansion, fallen to wrack and ruin, rubbish-filled and neglected, known to the countryside as "goat castle" because the occupants permitted a goat herd, pigs and chickens to have the run of the house.

Dana, termed locally as the "wild man of the woods" because he let his beard grow and roamed the woods alone, retired to the estate years ago after a promising career as a pianist had been blasted by the mutilation of his hand. Miss Dockery, said to have been courted by Dana, came here as his housekeeper.

LIBBY AWAITS TRIAL DECISION

WINSTON SALEM, N. C., Nov. 14.—(Universal.)—Solicitor Carlisle W. Higgins will make his announcement concerning disposition of the charges of murder against Mrs. Libby Holman Reynolds and Albert (Ab) Walker some time this week.

Several days ago, Solicitor Higgins announced that his decision whether to take a nolle prosse or prosecute the cases brought by a grand jury for the murder of Z. Smith Reynolds, aviator and heir to an estate valued at $20,000,000, who was fatally shot July 6, would be made during the present term of court.

The solicitor has under advisement a letter received from W. N. Reynolds, uncle and co-guardian of Smith Reynolds, in which it was stated the Reynolds family would be happy if the solicitor saw fit to drop the charges against Mrs. Reynolds and Walker.

Former Girl Prodigy Sued by Creditors

Mrs. Stoner, who died a year ago, left the estate in a life trust fund for the daughter, with the provision that the money was not to be attached for the daughter's debts.

BULLETS FLY IN MILK STRIKE

CINCINNATI, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Clashes between striking union milk wagon drivers and their non-union substitutes continued today as the head of the Ohio National Guard considered a request of milk dealers for troops to protect their wagons here.

Meanwhile, police arrested three men in the attacks, chiefly in outlying sections.

The men three days ago refused to accept a proposal for arbitration of a 20 per cent wage cut. They struck when their counter-offer to accept a 10 per cent cut was rejected by most milk dealers.

Milk dealers were arming guards to accompany interstate trucks after reporting drivers had been halted, threatened with violence and fired upon.

Police reported yesterday more than a dozen non-union drivers and a police lieutenant were attacked and at least five drivers beaten by men in automobiles who sought to prevent them from making deliveries. Milk plants are being picketed.

Judge's Daughter Kills War Veteran

MARSHFIELD, Ore., Nov. 14.—(INS.)—After shooting and killing Fred N. Hanks, 33, World War soldier, of Frisco City, Alabama, Ruth Bryant, 39, daughter of a deceased Kansas judge, surrendered to police and admitted she shot Hanks when he tried to enter her home at Lakeside, 17 miles from here.

Pending an inquest and action of the district attorney today, police did not place any charge against the woman.

REPEAL DEMAND DIMS CHANCE FOR BEER

Mrs. Sabin Drives for Quick Revision, End Of Law Later

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—The demand of the organized wets for outright repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, rather than a revision, today dimmed prospects of action on this phase of prohibition in the "lame duck" session of Congress.

At the same time, returning Democratic congressional leaders brought new predictions of modification of the Volstead Act to legalize the sale of beer.

Two of the most powerful organizations in the anti-prohibition campaign—the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment and the Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform—are on record for submission of outright repeal to the states as urged in the Democratic platform.

OPPOSED BY DRYS, G. O. P.

Their plan is opposed not only by the drys but by the Republicans who have subscribed to the proposal of President Hoover for a revised amendment banning the saloon and retaining a measure of national control over the method of dispensing liquor.

The position of the organized wets was stated by Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, national chairman of the Women's Organization for National Reform. She indicated that her organization would prefer to defer the repeal question in the hope of obtaining a straight submission of repeal in the new Congress after March 4. She said:

"I doubt whether we can hope for repeal in the present Congress, although we now have a possible wet vote of 54 in the Senate and 265 in the House (a gain of 13 in the Senate and 71 in the House since the adjournment of the last session).

"Whether this Congress will vote for immediate modification of the Volstead act remains to be seen. I hope it will."

ERRORS IN LINEUP

Mrs. Sabin made public the wet and dry lineup of the present Congress as shown by the records of her organization. The report contains obvious errors, and names as drys many Democrats who have pledged themselves to vote for repeal this winter.

Senator Duncan Fletcher (Dem.), of Florida, insisted there will be action at the short session. He declared:

"I think the Democratic party will carry out the platform at the short session. The platform calls for modification of the Volstead act without delay. Therefore, I believe the party will do it at the session in December."

The drys are girding themselves for a fight. With their spokesmen in Congress filibustering, they confidently expect to block beer.

The Rev. E. C. Dinwiddie, secretary of the National Board of Strategy, returned to the city today to prepare that body's campaign against the wet move.

USE ROOSEVELT LETTER

The drys, he indicated, will confront every member of Congress with the letter President-elect Roosevelt wrote to Dr. Christian Reiner, of New York, on September 12, in which he said it was the duty of members of Congress to vote the bill of their constituents.

The dry leaders construe this to mean that Gov. Roosevelt holds members of Congress are not bound by the national platform.

Nevertheless, reports received here indicate that Gov. Roosevelt is anxious that Congress modify the Volstead act next winter.

Wets believe the government's financial situation will force action. If Congress fails to tax beer this winter, they hold, several hundred millions in new taxes must be levied to end the deficit. They believe it would be easier for Congress to vote the beer tax than any other.

FRANCE'S ARMS PLAN FORBIDS NEUTRALITY

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT
International News Service.

PARIS, Nov. 14. — The French disarmament plan, aiming at ultimate arms equality among the nations of the world, was made public here tonight following its formal approval by the council of ministers.

The proposal, which abolishes neutrality, provides for economic sanctions against aggressors and puts "teeth" in the Kellogg pact and the League of Nations covenant, consists of four main divisions.

The first provides for a general arms treaty to be signed by all the civilized powers. The second embraces a Pan-European disarmament convention.

The third division describes the new forms of armies which would replace the present military machines of the world, and the fourth deals with naval colonial forces under a special convention.

In general, the plan proposes a Mediterranean naval pact of mutual assistance, abolition of all forms of bombing planes and international control of civil aviation, making mobilization by any power or group of powers impossible.

The plan, according to the communique which accompanied its publication, is based equally upon the Kellogg-Briand pact for the outlawry of war and the League of Nations covenant.

Both of these documents were cited in the section dealing with abolition of neutrality and outlawing trade relations with any aggressor nation. The communique says:

"The plan is an answer to the German demand for equal armament by progressing equalizing of military forces."

It recalled the recent declaration of Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson regarding the consultative phases inherent in the Kellogg pact, which has been generally interpreted in France as meaning neutrality will henceforth be impossible in time of war.

KIDNAPS SON, CITY ROUSED

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14. — (INS.)—Philadelphia's kidnaping scare aroused by the abduction of William Bauers, 7-year-old schoolboy, subsided this afternoon when the boy's father, Edwin Bauers, revealed the lad was in his custody.

Bauers telephoned detectives that he had taken his son "because the courts had awarded him to me."

Bauers and his estranged wife separated several months ago with the mother retaining possession of William.

In his call to police, Bauers said: "Don't worry about the child. I got him this morning and he is now at my home in Frankville, near Clayton, N. J.

"The courts awarded him to me and his mother got him by trickery."

3 MORE DEATHS IN HUNT TOLL

Samuel Ammerman, 38, of Pitcairn, died today of wounds suffered while hunting in Westmoreland County last Tuesday.

This is the fourth consecutive holiday season for the Sun-Telegraph Doll Lady. During the last three years the Doll Lady has brought cheer and sunshine to many, many homes in Pittsburgh and vicinity that would otherwise have been dreary. Here is the Doll Lady's 1932 letter of greeting:

Dear Little Girls—

Greetings. Here I am among you again and I am glad to be here. Somehow or other I feel that I will be more welcome this year than ever before. Conditions have not changed very much in the homes since I was with you during the pre-Christmas period a year ago when I distributed thousands of my dollies to children who would otherwise have had a bleak holiday. I hope I am bringing just as much joy this year. In fact, I am making it much easier for little girls to benefit from my annual Sun-Telegraph doll distribution.

But first I want to tell you about my dollies. Last year you had "Honeybunch." This year you will get your choice—"Precious" or "Ducky." "Precious" is the beautiful twin sister of "Honeybunch" and "Precious" is a darling. I really think that "Precious" is the most gorgeous doll I have ever given away.

"Precious," however, is not all. There is a new idea in dollies and I have had my doll makers working on it for almost a year. This is "Ducky," made of rubber and, by far, one of the prettiest babies you ever saw. Well, "Ducky" comes to you undressed, but I am giving with her a complete 11-piece layette and bathinette. "Ducky" is 12 inches tall. I really don't know which dolly will give you the most joy, but this year you can take your choice.

Last year, you will recall, I required you to get four six-months subscriptions for the daily and Sunday Sun-Telegraph. This year the requirements will only be three subscriptions and this will bring "Precious" and "Ducky" within easy reach of every little girl in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

Now, of course, every little girl will want one of these dollies. I am here early so that there will be no disappointments. The sooner you start getting your three subscriptions, the more quickly you will get "Precious" or "Ducky" and Ducky's cute layette and bathinette.

So, let's not wait until the last minute. Let's get busy right away. Now I want to tell you again I am glad to be back in Pittsburgh and if I distribute as much joy and happiness among the little girls this year as I did a year ago, I will go away perfectly happy after the holidays.

4 NEWSPAPER HEADS TRIED

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Trial of four men charged with fraudulent advertising by publishing a false circulation statement of the Youngstown Telegram began here today before a court of three judges, without a jury.

Pleas of not guilty were entered by Thomas Dowling, New York, circulation adviser of Scripps-Howard newspapers, and by Joseph Finster, Dallas, former circulation manager of the Telegram.

Two other defendants, John T. Watters, Telegram business manager, and James Morrisey, circulation manager, had previously pleaded not guilty.

DAVIS RETRIAL AGAIN DELAYED

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Trial of Conrad H. Mann, director general of the Eagles and president of the Kansas City (Mo.) Chamber of Commerce, on federal lottery charges was postponed today until November 28.

Federal prosecutors said retrial of United States Senator James J. Davis on similar charges, also set for November 28, would have to be set over to await the end of the Mann trial.

Co-defendants with Mann are Fred E. Hering, editor of the Eagles' magazine; Bernard C. McGuire and Raymond Walsh. The latter two are also co-defendants with Davis, who is director general of the Loyal Order of Moose.

Davis went before a jury alone during his campaign for re-election to the Senate, but the hearing was declared a mistrial because of the irregular conduct of a juror.

RIVALRY HELD ICE TRADE AID

A step backward has taken the ice industry a step forward with readoption of the old-style top feeder box constructed with modern improvements to provide better refrigeration, according to E. L. Bennett, of Boston, president of the National Association of Ice Industries which opens a four-day convention tomorrow in the William Penn Hotel.

Bennett credits marketing of mechanical refrigeration with aiding the ice business.

Consumers have obtained a better understanding of the necessity for refrigeration, he said, and the apparent competition has stimulated the industry. A uniform advertising campaign and sales staff educational program will be followed throughout the country next year, he added.

The use of the top-feeder box was explained as providing the more uniform temperature. Regardless of quantity of ice in the box, he explained, the cold is fed only from the bottom of the cake and continues uniform until all has been consumed.

Stork Brings Four To Same House In 8 Months

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 14.—(INS.)—Four children in eight months!

That was the record hung up by Mr. and Mrs. Afton L. Herbst here.

Eight months ago they were childless. On March 13, a set of twins was born to them. Late Saturday night, at St. Francis Hospital, in Beech Grove, the stork visited them again, depositing another set of twins. The second set of twins was delivered one day less than eight months from the birth of the first children.

Like their older brother and sister, the twins born Saturday also were a girl and a boy.

BUDGET PERILS JAP CABINET

TOKIO, Nov. 14.—(INS.)—With downfall of his cabinet threatened, Premier Makoto Saito was back here today after a hurried departure from Osaka, where he had been watching military maneuvers. According to government circles, the crisis was caused by dissatisfaction in financial quarters with the record budget recently approved by the cabinet. The budget included a huge military outlay.

It was rumored Gen. Kazunari Ugaki might succeed Saito as premier.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Wry-Neck Traced to Muscle Inflammation

There is an extremely uncomfortable condition known as wry-neck. "Torticollis" is the medical name given to this defect, which is caused by a shortening of one or more of the muscles of the neck.

Dr. Copeland

The diagnosis can be made by merely looking at the sufferer. He holds his head towards the painful or affected side, with the chin slightly elevated. In chronic forms of torticollis there may be deformity of the face, as well as of the spine.

The acute form of torticollis may follow an inflammation of the muscles of the neck. It is usually traced to an exposure to cold or draught, and in this form there is severe pain. The head is held in an unusual manner to take the strain off the muscles and to overcome the marked discomfort. The treatment consists of the application of heat. Where necessary, medicine should be prescribed by the physician.

Chronic cases of torticollis, or wry-neck, are believed to be due to neglected inflammation of the muscles of the neck in childhood. It frequently occurs after a difficult birth, where the muscles of the neck are injured.

When the condition is overlooked the muscles, which are continually held in a cramped position, become weakened and permanent deformity results. Even the shape of the spine is sometimes altered. In advanced cases, poor development of the muscles of the head and face change the facial expression and make speech difficult.

Operation is necessary in the treatment of chronic cases. It is a simple procedure and need not cause alarm, for it is no more than cutting the edge of the muscle that pulls the head to one side. After the operation a plaster-of-paris bandage, placed around the neck, head and under both arms, holds the parts in a manner that corrects the deformity. When the wound is healed, massage and special exercises of the head are necessary to increase the tone and strength of the weakened muscles.

Persons who have been operated on for wry-neck should be instructed to stand erect and to turn the head toward the affected side. The head should then be turned toward the shoulder of the unaffected side, while the eyes are turned the other way. These exercises should be repeated several times a day, in the morning, at noon and at night.

Never overlook wry-neck in an infant. Early recognition of the disorder and proper treatment bring about a speedy recovery. When neglected the cure is difficult, and in many cases the trouble can only be corrected by surgery.

BACKS HEARST BUILDING PLAN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(Universal)—Pointing out that all construction work in the country this year will total but $3,247,000,000, or less than one-third that of several years prior to 1929, Prof. John Dewey today called for an increase in construction along the lines of the plan proposed by William Randolph Hearst.

Speaking as president of the People's Lobby, Dewey said that the $1,500,000,000 of credit available through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for building would provide work for only 150,000 men for one year.

He scored the administration for not expediting even the small program it finally approved, asserting that only $124,000,000 has been authorized from the building fund thus far, and that none of it has been disbursed.

The company states it has $1,000 to begin business on, and is authorized to issue 2,500 shares of stock at no par value.

BREWERY WALL FALLS, 18 DIE

WARSAW, Poland, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Eighteen persons were killed and a score injured yesterday when a wall of the Haderbusch and Schiele brewery collapsed and a huge quantity of barley buried an adjoining wooden house.

All 31 tenants of the house were asleep. When victims were extricated it was found only two were killed by the masonry and 16 were suffocated by the barley.

A dog, cat and squirrel were found in the debris, still alive.

Authorities believed an excessive amount of barley had been stored in the brewery and some chemical process had caused it to burst the wall.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—While several organizations of business men and others met today to protest a proposed occupational tax on all workers in this city, Edwin R. Cox, president of City Council, asked the citizens to withhold criticism "until Council takes action."

A measure providing a tax of ½ of 1 per cent on the wages of all persons employed in Philadelphia, whether residents or not, has been approved by City Council's Finance Committee and submitted to the Council as one means of reducing the city's $20,000,000 deficit.

They Cannot Wait

• They live somewhere around the corner from you. You know the family well, but you do not know that the visitor who comes to see them is a family worker and that the community is giving them a helping hand through this emergency.

• They are getting the kind of help which will save not only their bodies, but their self-respect and their courage. But it is their own strength and courage which will pull them through. They have the intelligence to adjust themselves to this temporary condition and the character to live through it without harm. They are strong enough to wait for better times.

• But these, their children cannot wait. They are growing up in these short years. The material from which their character and life is being formed is insecurity, worry, scarcity of food, all the ugliness and sordidness of poverty.

• Through the Welfare Fund you can give them a better chance to live through this experience without scars which will mark them for life. Your answer in this campaign is not to the Welfare Fund, it is to these suffering children. Hiding behind an unfounded criticism of the work which has been done, as an excuse for not contributing, will never bring warmth to their bodies or courage to their hearts. You cannot reach them in any other way than through support of this great program of human service.

• If you were in their place, what would you think of the man or woman, who, because of indifference or prejudice or lack of understanding, refused to contribute to the Welfare Fund?

• Everyone who really wants to help can do so. Through the Block Aid Subscription plan, which has been made a part of the Welfare Fund campaign this year, you can give 25 cents, 50 cents or 75 cents a week for twenty weeks. This is less than you spend for cigarettes or candy or amusement. Surely you can do this much for those who are facing a cold and bitter winter without any friend except the Welfare Fund.

of Rare Mackenzie River Pelts

$875 $1075 $1275

Mackenzie River minks are famous among furriers as the lightest weight minks in the world (although as durable as any others), and to get the genuine Mackenzies we purchased the skins direct, just as they came from the Canadian factors. We turned them over to our Mink Coat specialist, and from them he made the extraordinary collection we are now showing. Naturally, the number of coats is limited, but it encompasses women's and misses' models in sizes up to 40.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: Marie Dressler will b'cast with Rudy Thurs. She's at the Savoy Plaza . . . The rumor that Jimmy Walker would inherit Will Hays' czar job in the movies is best stifled by these facts—The two big gents in the business, Mayer in California, and Lasker here, are both Republicans. The organization is not, as believed, a political one, and anyway, Hays has a 5-year contract which cannot be broken . . . Clarence Darrow will make his last grand public gesture by defending Robert Burns, author of "I'm a Fugitive" . . . Burns, as you know, still is in hiding. Darrow will demand a full pardon, and the event probably will be another "Scopes trial, all of which certainly will help the cinema, according to local movie men "in on the know" . . . The announcement, it appears, will be made following the premiere of the flicker in Atlanta . . . Ted Weems called . . . He says the trouble with radio is that too many of the comedians have a one-crack mind.

The George (Life) Egglestons were babied last week . . . That big painting in the Canadian Nat'l Railways window on 5th Ave is all wrong. It shows a golfer about to drive from a tee, and the tee points right at the porches of the clubhouse! Teehee! . . . The Dancers' Club in West 54th should draw their blinds now and then . . . I heard one of the craft described as "a dried dish rag that hadn't been wrung out!" . . . Judge, as a monthly mag, is now out of the red . . . Have you ever noticed on special delivery stamps how the postoffice dep't misrepresents itself? A postman is seen delivering a letter by motorcycle! Hisses!

You said that John D. Rockefeller recently installed heat in his mausoleum . . . Did you know that Clarence Mackay had electric lights installed in his at Greenwood Cemetery years ago? . . . What a pastime that must be . . . Phil Green is the second richest man in the Lambs Club. But Dwight Wiman, the producer, never heard of him. The other day Wiman passed Green in the club and was impressed by his manner. So Wiman asked someone there to have Mr. Green see him about playing Capone in a new show! . . . Tammany should toss at orchid at Edward J. Ahearn, leader of the 24th Election Dis't here. The vote there was Roosevelt 725, Hoover 1, Thomas 1, Lehman 723, Donovan 1, O'Brien 720, Pounds 1, Hillquit 7 . . . The Republican nominee for Sheriff, Senator and Congressman received no votes at all! . . . What a record that is! . . . I see by the gazettes that McKee may receive an important U. S. job . . . Could it be Director of the Budget, which you recently said would be McKee's reward?

Josefsberg called. He said some people voted Republican but most people voted sensibly . . . Personally, I feel veddy, veddy soddy for Herbert. He has to take the slaps for his party and the bums in it. He's a human being, and his heart must have cracked when he saw the returns come in as they did . . . Of course, if one were to sympathize with his plight, there would be someone to remind that he now knows how Smith felt four years ago when Hoover clicked . . . Then when I see the photos of the Roosevelts beaming, I can't help thinking that Hoover is the one who ought to laugh . . . His worries now are at an end. No more cares, no more heavy problems to unravel . . . Roosevelt will now begin to get wrinkles and worries . . . Oh, I know it is an honor to be President, but name me two of them who lived to a ripe old age . . . Guinan phoned to say that she has a suspicion that many a politician who hears his country calling is a ventriloquist.

Say! Wanna give a break to a coupla Indians who have written a song?...It's named "Waterfalls," plenty pretty, too. Words by Art Wakolee, and music by Gladys Carmen Wakolee...The family publish it at Irving, N. Y....Clem McCarthy is now with the N. Y. Press...I hear that everybody connected with "Music in the Air" sines except "Blumey." Which is just as well...Atkinson of the Times reported that the real bear in that show is a fake...He's still trying to live down his report (of a Ziegfeld show) that the papier-mache elephants in it were real...Don't let him, honey, don't let him!...Ruth Fallows wishes you would help stifle the report about town that she has been engaged to play in "The Barrister," since "Rendezvous" folded so suddenly...She wants it known that she is at liberty, altho' there are three companies after her—namely, Telephone, Gas and Electric...Those congratulatory messages used by Postal Telegraph customers were designed by Katherine Bleecker Meics, local social registerite...They are called "Orchidgrams."

The Friars went stupid the other day. They sent out a call to members to go in a bunch to a funeral, which was held on a Sunday . . . The cards were mailed the day before, Saturday, at 6:30 p. m., and received on Monday! . . . Francis X. Bushman called. Said he played at that "break-in" house for that coin just to try out his new act. He says he still gets $1,000 weekly . . . Lina Basquette at the Palace is doing a refreshing turn. Lovely dancer . . . The Lubitsch picture at the Rivoli is plenty swelegant . . . Jeff Machamer suggests that those shows that close while playing try-outs should call those burgs "cry-outs" . . . That's teddibly good . . . A Cleveland headline read: "Roosevelt to Win U. S. and Ohio" . . . Huh—the out-of-towners always claimed that New York was the place that always felt it was bigger than the nation . . . F. P. A., who has twitted the best, the mediocre and the worst writers for using wretched grammar, was pounced on this week for doing what a high school student wouldn't. The Nyorker started it. Even a high school student knows that a relative pronoun agrees with its antecedent in number . . . I suspect F. P. A. did it for publicity.

Cunnel Stoopnagle and Budd, my pet radio clowns, have several new inventions. One is a pair of permanently wrinkled pants to hang in your closet so that the rest of your clothes, if any, look neat . . . They also have invented a red piano without keys—for people who would rather play a violin . . . And a pink piano without keys for those who prefer a zither . . . Better, however, is their watering can without holes—for people who don't like to water flowers . . . A can without 25 holes is for not watering geraniums, and a can without 50 holes is for not watering hollyhocks! . . . And that, Mr. W., winds up my routine until tomorrow morning at 11 . . . I now hasten to my hotel suite (room to you!) to take a nap—so that the local dandies can never say that your Girl Friday has more wrinkles in her brow than in her hose.

Deadlegs

Hearst News Abroad

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 14.—(Universal Service.)—

"Never has there been such European interest in an American election. Our newsreels showing episodes and personalities of the last campaign had an amazing sale. Further, due to the educational values of newsreel subjects during the past few years, Europeans followed the past campaign with more accurate knowledge of the issues involved than has ever previously been the case."

This statement was made by Edward Hatrick, head of Hearst Metrotone Newsreel, who arrived yesterday in Pasadena, member of a party which included two other important filmland figures.

Harry Rapf and Lawrence Weingarten, associate Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer producers, are both returning from sick leaves. Rapf has been away from his desk for eight months. He has completely recovered from a serious breakdown. He and Mrs. Rapf have been in England for some time.

Weingarten and his wife, the highly successful scenario writer whose professional name is Sylvia Thalberg, have been in Cuba.

Hatrick, in addition to his newsreel duties, is also vice president of Cosmopolitan Pictures. He will be here for some time in connection with the early start of "Peg o' My Heart," a new Marion Davies production.

HOLLYWOOD NEWS

'Vanities' Come to Town, New Comedy Ready

Another Tale By Dreiser Sought

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 14.

Here's one for the book. In spite of all that furore over "An American Tragedy," Theodore Dreiser recently was on the verge of selling Paramount the talkie rights to his novel, "Jennie Gerhardt."

For several days, it develops, the author and B. P. Schulberg have been negotiating the deal. They are expected to reach some sort of a conclusion soon.

If Dreiser relents, and allows another of his works to be made into a film, the starring role will be taken by Sylvia Sidney, who gave such a fine performance as the unhappy shop-girl heroine of "An American Tragedy." Chances are she will make it as soon as she finishes "Madame Butterfly."

Sylvia Sidney

Meanwhile Hollywood is intrigued to see whether the fiery author will let by-gones be by-gones. Echoes of his last year's blast are just dying down hereabouts.

HOLLYWOOD PARADE

Kay Francis' stay in Hollywood will be of record briefness. Arriving here by plane, she signed a new contract with Warners and will leave immediately on a return trip east. After spending a couple of weeks with Kenneth McKenna, another studio call will bring her home again. If there was ever any doubt about Kay's box-office standing, it was dispelled with the two pictures she made as a Warner star. Both of them brought profitable returns. More profitable, I imagine, than the studio expected.

Last word we had was that Kathleen Burke, Paramount's "Panther Woman," had refused to let the studio dictate how much time she spent with Glen Raredin, her fiance from Chicago. Now, it seems, Mr. Raredin has removed any possible cause for controversy by going back East. But while he was here, the two young people won their point. ...The dove of peace seems to have settled permanently over the Greta Nissen-Weldon Heyburn household. They were at the Frolics together. Harry Langdon was there again, too. . . . And one of my scouts reports (I'm a little squeamish about boats myself) that red-headed Roberta Gale took a six-hour trip to nowhere on the S. S. La Playa with A. C. Read, Jr.

Kay Francis

Plans are afoot at R-K-O to reproduce Louisa M. Alcott's home for the talkie version of "Little Women."

Yesterday I met Alice White coming down a hall at Paramount with a script tucked under her arm.

She was very cheerful and with good cause, for this studio has decided to give her an important part in "Luxury Liner." It is her first real break in a long time, and she hopes to make it a stepping stone to a permanent comeback.

Alice is no longer a red-head, you know. She is a pert blonde, the sort that pivots masculine heads along the boulevard.

With Barrymores

Mackellar Gets Lead In 'Goose Woman'

Helen Mackellar, stage star, has been signed by RKO Radio Pictures to play the lead in "The Goose Woman" and is already en route for the coast. She will portray the character played by Louise Dresser in the successful version, directed by Clarence Brown. The part had been sought by a number of Hollywood's outstanding character actresses.

Lukas Gets Role in Karloff Picture

Paul Lukas, who has been under contract to Universal for the last eight months, and whose only Universal appearance was "Strictly Dishonorable," will be the chief support of Karloff when "The Invisible Man," by H. G. Wells, goes into production.

Shift In Roles Puts Erwin In Lead

A shift of players at Paramount has put Stuart Erwin into the leading role of "The Crime of the Century." Erwin, who recently completed the lead in "He Learned About Women," replaces Jack Oakie who will join Gary Cooper and George Raft in "Fly On."

Sings

Shearer-Gable For Aldine

One week from tonight, Monday, November 21, Loew's Aldine will reopen with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's talking screen version of Eugene O'Neill's drama, "Strange Interlude," first produced by the Theater Guild and which had extended engagements in the Nixon. Two performances daily, afternoon and evening, will be given after the Monday night opening.

In its latest dress, "Strange Interlude" has been reduced from a five-hour play to a two-hour entertainment by eliminations that speed up the story without interfering with its lucidity.

Norma Shearer will be seen in the role of the wife who deceives her husband, the part originally played by Lynn Fontanne and Elisabeth Risdon. Clark Gable will appear as the man who abets her in the deception.

Five reels of motion pictures produced especially for children through the co-operation of leading educators of the country and approved by Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent of Pittsburgh schools, will be shown next Saturday morning at 11 o'clock in the Pittsburgh Athletic Club.

The program, under the auspices of the Children's Theater of the Junior League, includes such titles as "Jack and Jill in Songland," "Seed Dispersal" and others.

No seats are reserved. Although tickets are sold, the project is nonprofit making.

Cary Grant Signed To New Contract

Assurance that he has established himself as a film personality in a comparatively short time came to Cary Grant today in the form of a new Paramount contract. Since signing his first contract last year, Grant has risen rapidly in public favor with parts in "This Is the Night," "Merrily We Go to Hell," "Devil and the Deep," "Blonde Venus" and "Hot Saturday." He is now appearing opposite Sylvia Sidney in "Madame Butterfly."

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

THIS STORY concerns two women in their early thirties who are married to two gentlemen of a similar age. These two couples are friends, and they have been seeing each other every day or so for several years.

One husband is a prominent physician who numbers many prominent theatrical celebrities among his patients. The other husband is a well-known song writer—but people like him anyhow.

While their husbands were working, the two women had luncheon at the Ritz one afternoon, and were introduced to two men whose names appear in the social register. Both boys were handsome — and their money was far greater than their brains. It was a new thrill to the two women, however, and the party that afternoon wound up in a little speakeasy in the Fifties.

Within a month, there were several such afternoons. The two wives and the two boys were drifting into a dangerous stage of the game and the husbands, trusting their wives implicitly, never had the slightest idea of what their darlings were doing on those lonesome afternoons.

Two society boys begged the women to join them for dinner one night in a home they maintained in Connecticut.

"Come on up with us," they pleaded. "We'll have loads of laughs and things. Phone your husbands and tell them you're going to visit a sick girl friend. Tell them anything. What say, girls? Adventure is calling."

The two women talked it over. They were talking it over, however, on four drinks. And that's a bad time to make any decisions.

"Let's go," urged one little wife. "After all, if we go together, our husbands will never get wise. We'll phone and tell them we won't be home for dinner because we're visiting someone. We'll be home at 11 o'clock anyhow. Why not go?"

In the end, they went. They phoned their lies to their respective hubbies and piled into the boys' car. Two bottles of speakeasy brandy went along for company.

When they arrived at the house in question, things began to happen. It was much farther than the boys had told them. Both women had been drinking too much. So had the boys. One of the women grew ill. A terrific storm came up, and lightning struck a tree in front of the house. It was all very lovely.

When it was time to start back to town one of the boys brought in the sad news that the car was out of commission.

"Can you imagine?" he cried in a voice that was filled with the utmost surprise. "I've been driving my car for the past year and I never had the slightest trouble with it. Now, for the first time, I can't start it. Isn't that tough?"

Both ladies promptly fell into an hysterical condition.

"You've got to fix it!" shouted one. "Put liquor into it, or something. We've got to get out of here. Can't you realize that? Call up right away and hire another car. Get to the phone and call for another machine right away."

The second youth shook his head.

"Can't be done," he asserted. "We have no phone in this house. Never put one in purposely. The nearest phone is 10 miles away—and if anybody feels like walking 10 miles in that storm, it's not I.

"Now, you girls have got to be sensible. With the car on the blink and the storm what it is, we'll all just have to make the best of it."

Around 3 in the morning—the car having repaired itself as if by magic—the four of them started back to town. One woman was hysterical with fear, while the other one sat quietly and pondered the situation.

"Oh!" shuddered the first. "What are we going to tell our husbands? Mine will divorce me. I know he will. I've been caught.

"What are we going to do? Oh! This is terrible! What are we going to say?"

The second one gazed gloomily ahead.

"I don't know," she muttered. "I'm just trying to think. We were fools ever to take such a desperate chance. If we can wriggle out of this, we'll be wiser girls in the future. At least, I think so.

"But that isn't helping us any now. I wonder—"

She stopped suddenly and snapped her fingers.

"I've got it!" she exclaimed. "Our husbands both know Broadway and they're both regular guys. Each one thinks the other is the last word, and they wouldn't want to hurt one another for anything in the world.

"So there's only one thing we can do, and that's play one against the other from the sympathetic angle. Are you following me?"

The first wrinkled her forehead.

"I'm trying to," she returned. "It's not very clear just yet, but—"

"Of course it's not," interrupted the other woman impatiently. "How can it be when I haven't given you the plan! Now listen carefully—because it's our only chance. It's the one thing that might work.

"You tell your husband that I've been carrying on a secret affair with another man for several months. Say you went along with me today to meet the other man because I urged you to. Swear your husband to secrecy and act as you have never acted before.

"I'll do the exact same thing. Except, of course, that in my story you will be the bad woman in the case. Each one likes the other too much to spill the bad news. The thing will work. I just know it will."

And it did. When the women arrived home that night, each found her husband almost frantic. Each one told her noble story of how she protected the other woman. And each husband, being a wise guy of Broadway and knowing everything there is to be known, believed his wife.

Today, the husbands love their wives more than ever because of the great sacrifice they think that each one made. And neither husband will speak to the other about the incident because each one likes the other too much to hurt him.

"Poor fellow," says one husband when he is alone with his wife. "I feel storry for him. He doesn't even dream that his wife is being unfaithful to him.

Whereupon the wife puts her arms around him.

"There, there," she comforts him. "It's all for the best that he shouldn't know, isn't it, dearest?"

Mouth, Eyes Expressive

The two features which express the greatest emotions are the mouth and the eyes, according to Charley Ruggles, comedian.

The eyes come first, in Charley's estimation. They must mirror the emotions immediately, before an actor utters a word, or even has time to change his facial expression. The deepest and most heartfelt feelings are read in the eyes—and a twinkle of merriment puts a new meaning on any speech. It is at the eyes of a person that one looks before knowing how seriously or lightly to take what is said.

Secondly come the lips—a twist of which can spell volumes.

Trio Given Roles In New Film

Theodore Von Eltz, Edwin Stanley and Frederic Burton have been assigned, respectively, the roles of perjurer, judge and attorney in RKO Radio Pictures' "Just a Woman," co-featuring Irene Dunne and Charles Bickford. Stanley has just completed an important part in "Rock a Bye," starring Constance Bennett.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Earl Carroll's "Vanities," featuring Al Trahan, Mitchell and Durant, Lucille Page and "the most beautiful girls in the world," will open in the Nixon tonight for six nights and a cupla mats. Next week the attraction will be the musical romance, "The Cat and the Fiddle," which not so long ago completed a run of 53 weeks in New York. It is by Jerome Kern and Otto Harbach, whose names mean something in the musical show world. Matinees for Wednesday, Thanksgiving Day and Saturday, and the box office will begin to sell it Thursday.

Betty Hanna, new leading woman with the Edwin Vail Players in the Pitt, will be seen there in her second role with the company tonight and all week in "Unexpected Husband," comedy by Barry Connors. For Thanksgiving Week Mr. Vail has arranged to present his first guest star, Blanche Ring, who will be seen in "Cradle Snatchers," also a modern comedy. Miss Ring is a sister-in-law of Thomas Meighan, whose wife, Frances Ring, was a stock star in the Schenley Theater a number of years ago. Miss Blanche, although known as a musical comedy star because she is a vocalist as well as actress, nevertheless has scored in straight comedy parts.

Joseph Feldman, of Albany, is new local advertising manager for Warner Brothers . . . Earle Larimore, recently seen here opposite Alla Nazimova in "The Good Earth," but dropped out before the play reached New York, will have a leading role in another Guild play, opposite Ina Claire in "Biography," by Sam Behrman. . . . Gilbert Miller is preparing to stage "Firebird," featuring Judith Anderson. . . . Lack of a satisfactory leading woman holds up production of "Storm Song," which was written for the late Jeanne Eagels. . . . Nine new attractions break into the region known as Broadway this week, among them "Dear Jane," a play about Jane Austin, to be presented in Eva Le Gallienne's Repertory Theater. . . . Production has begun on the first of a series of short films featuring Walter Winchell, who is surrounded by a lotta "names" including Arthur Tracy, Paul Whiteman and Ruth Etting. . . . Groucho and Chico Marx, two of the Four Marxmen of the stage and screen, are getting ready to go radio. . . . Marie Dressler and Joan Bennett are Hollywooders in New York. . . . "Goona-Goona," film not yet seen here, is in its ninth week in New York.

Filming Postponed on 'Shanty Town'

Because the loan period is up for Frances Marion, and owing to the fact that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer cannot spare her services any longer at this time, M. C. Levee, production manager for Mary Pickford, has postponed production of "Shanty Town" and will immediately prepare "Yes, John," based upon the stage play, "Secrets," as Miss Pickford's next vehicle.

Chief Justice Hughes, Rogers Lead National Red Cross Appeal on Air Tonight

Charles Evans Hughes, Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, heads a distinguished group of speakers and artists appearing on a special program over NBC-WCAE tonight at 10 o'clock, inaugurating the annual Christmas drive of the American Red Cross.

The speakers, in addition to Chief Justice Hughes, are Will Rogers, humorist of the stage, screen and air; Judge John Barton Payne, chairman of the Red Cross; Mrs. Henry P. Davison, internationally - known philanthropist, and Phillips Lord in his famous radio role of Seth Parker. The musical portion of the program is presented by the United States Marine Band, the Revelers and the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra.

Mr. Hughes

The broadcast also includes a message from President Hoover previously scheduled to participate in person but unable to do so because of his trip to Washington from Palo Alto.

A dramatic radio presentation celebrating the one hundredth anniversary of the world's first street car run, with Charles Colfax Long as narrator, is listed on KDKA at 8 o'clock tonight. Scenes include flash-backs recalling the ceremonies attending the operation of the first horse-drawn street car in New York followed by a great civic banquet at which the metropolis' Mayor was the principal speaker.

Kate Smith inaugurates a series of broadcasts direct from the Paramount Studios in Hollywood, where she is making her first feature picture, over CBS-WJAS tonight at 8:30. While engaged in filming Fannie Hurst's scenario, "Nice Girl," Kate will give her tri-weekly programs from a specially-built radio studio. In Hollywood with the "Songbird of the South" are her announcer-manager, Ted Collins; Nat Brusiloff, orchestra leader, and Jack Miller, accompanist. The series will continue for about eight weeks.

Program Pointers

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, noted explorer and chairman of the National Economy League, stopping in Pittsburgh today to speak at the Carnegie auditorium in connection with the opening drive of the Western Pennsylvania branch of the League, gives a 15-minute talk from the studios of KDKA tonight at 10:45. This follows Byrd's address at the Chamber of Commerce, broadcast by KDKA at 1 p. m. . . . E. Hall Downes, town and country editor of the American Bridge Magazine and author of a contract bridge self instructor, inaugurates KDKA's new Bridge School of the Air tonight at 10:15. The course is planned for both the novice and the expert.

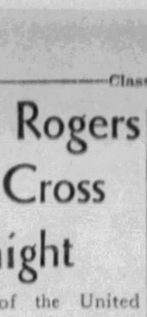
Admiral Byrd.

Otto Fassell, celebrated Viennese tenor, makes his American radio debut in the first of a series of quarter-hour recitals over an NBC network, including KDKA, at 7:30 p. m.

Listening In

Versatile Jean.
Ruth Etting in Movies.
Another "Scrapbook".

Jean Sargent, torch singer and star of the new "Manhattan Merry-Go-Round," is a versatile young lady . . . A former Philadelphia newspaper writer and society figure, she has turned to play-writing in her spare moments . . . and as a result, her play, "The Blues Singer," is to be produced soon on Broadway . . . It was written backstage and in odd moments while she has been starring in "Flying Colors," current musical hit . . . Ruth Etting, "Music That Satisfies" songstress, has been cast in a featured role of a new Warner Brothers full-length feature, according to reports . . . Tony Wons' fifth "Scrapbook" is to be released by the publisher within two weeks . . . and speaking of Tony and movies, the "Are You Listenin'?" star is to play in a feature picture shortly.



Miss Sargent

The studio setting for the X Sisters program was rendered particularly colorful the other night by the presence of three noted Scottish pipers in full regalia of their clan—on hand to see if the mystery trio really could imitate the bag-pipe. Their verdict? "Verra remarkable."

Hendrick van Loon, noted writer heard on the Home Circle program, speaks and writes in 10 languages as well as many dialects . . . When he eats in restaurants, he usually draws pictures on the tablecloth to illustrate his conversation and often signs the check with a sketch of an elephant or a mouse, according to the size of the meal . . .

Busy Ray . . . In one week (aside from his two broadcasts) Ray Perkins appeared at a refrigerator show, made a personal appearance at a department store, was a guest at a cooking school, sang over a radio station near his home and performed at an American Legion meeting.

"Sweepings" from the "Magic Carpet." . . . Walter O'Keefe's pet name for his friends is "Toots." . . . Jack Pearl's secret desire is to play a role like David Warfield's in "The Music Master"—something that will live on in the theater. . . . Contrary to general belief, the Dance Hour's signature number, "Happy Days Are Here Again," is not a recording. It's played at the beginning and end of each program by a studio orchestra under the direction of Louis Katzman.

ABORTION of Colds

(with lemon juice)

Do you sometimes get colds that hang on for days? That's because the remedy used does not drive the cold symptoms from the system. Try cold abortion and you'll find those stubborn colds broken up and gone within a few hours. To abort a cold, squeeze two full-sized lemons in a glass of very hot water, to be taken preferably at bedtime. Two hours before, start taking a tablet of Pape's cold compound each hour. After the third tablet take the lemon juice and hot water without sugar, and go to bed, well-covered. Sound sleep will follow, and the cold will be aborted by morning. The lemon juice treatment never fails, but you must have the cold compound to clear the head, dry the nasal passages, and allay any fever. Any druggist has Pape's cold compound; it is perfectly safe, and a tablet will check a cold at any time.

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair

—With—

Patricia Pitt

One of those blessings in a winter of depression, an event that is a social occasion and a benefit at the same time, will be that Friday night when the West Penn Hospital Cot Club will give a supper-dance and bridge at the Longue Vue Country Club.

Yesterday I mentioned a few of the life members of the Club, and today I want to mention a few more. Mrs. Frank J. Lanahan was interested enough in the work of the club to become a life member, and so were Mrs. George B. Motheral, the H. E. Sheldons and Edwin H. Fisher.

Thomas Moreland is a life member, and so are Clifford S. Heinz, Mrs. Samuel W. Jefferis, Mrs. W. W. Kerr, Mrs. Charles C. Curry, Mrs. Annie M. Davis, Miss Tillie Davison, Miss Alice Overholt, Mrs. Dwight Winter, the Arthur E. Brauns, Mrs. Harry Davis, Mrs. Howard Heinz and Mrs. H. Kurtz.

The Mellon family is well represented in the life members of the club, with the Richard Beatty Mellons, Andrew W. Mellon and T. A. Mellon included in the list, also W. L. Mellon.

Scores and scores and more scores of folks already have made known their intention to hear the Mendelssohn Choir sing Brahms "Requiem" tomorrow night in Carnegie Music Hall.

Such familiar figures at concerts as Mrs. Taylor Allderdice, Mrs. William Maclay Hall, Mrs. John F. Walton, Jr., Mrs. W. U. Follansbee, Miss Mabel Gillespie have subscribed.

Others planning to attend are Mrs. Alfred E. Hunt, George H. Danner, Joseph H. Holmes, Ralph E. Flinn, Mrs. W. H. R. Hilliard, Dr. Thomas S. Arbuthnot, the Albert Currys, Grant Curry, Miss Katherine May Edwards, the F. S. Guthries, the Moorhead B. Hollands, Mrs. A. S. F. Keister, the H. C. McEldowneys, Mrs. George W. McKee, Mrs. William Reed Thompson, Mrs. H. N. Van Voorhis and Mrs. T. Reed Kennedy.

Gossipy Chat With Nancy Jane

Nelson Eddy, of New York, who will sing the baritone solos in Brahm's "Requiem" tomorrow night in Carnegie Music Hall with Pittsburgh's own Mendelssohn choir, once worked on a newspaper.

And he was fired because he annoyed every one with his persistent singing. Before making music his career, he also worked as a shipping clerk and dabbled in advertising.

When he sang with the choir last winter, he created many a flutter in feminine hearts. I've been told.

After Verbrugghen and the Cincinnati Symphony appeared with the choir, the conductor wrote to Ernest Lunt, the choir director, that he had to come to Pittsburgh to hear Beethoven's Ninth Symphony sung to his satisfaction after having heard it on three continents.

* * *

Mrs. Florence G. Eckhardt sings with four organizations in addition to the Mendelssohn—the Woman's City Club, the Tuesday Musical and the College Club chorals, and the Fillion A Cappella Choir.

* * *

And while we're talking about the musical realm, did you know that Mrs. Taylor Allderdice always sits down when she's directing? She conducts the Woman's City Club Choral.

State D. A. R. Dedicates Tablet to Woman Soldier

Honoring the memory of Elizabeth Gilmore Berry, one of the few women who served as a soldier during the Revolutionary War, a tablet was dedicated on Saturday afternoon in the old Robinson Run Cemetery, where she is buried, by the Pennsylvania Daughters of the American Revolution.

Judge J. Boyd Crumrine gave a history of Mrs. Berry and the Rev. Dr. Henry R. Brown pronounced the benediction.

After the dedication, a number of Pittsburgh visitors were guests of Mrs. A. Marshall Bell, formerly of Pittsburgh, at tea.

HEAVY MATERIALS REMAIN IN FAVOR FOR TAILORED DRESSES

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Nov. 14.—Materials almost as heavy and thick as the woolens used for coats continue to be favorite media for tailored dresses in Paris. Women are wearing these frocks as they would coat dresses; they use them as knock-about town costumes, without coats, and often without even fur scarfs.

THE HIGHER collar is a noticeable mark among dresses of this type. Usually it is a convertible type—one which may be equally graceful when wound tight about the throat, or worn hanging open, giving a lower neckline. Sleeves are usually long, fairly tight-fitting and of simple design. Skirts are without plaits—since the fabrics are so heavy that plaits and folds would only add bulkiness—but skirts are amply full at the hem.

BOTH TYPES of fashionable shoulder treatments are illustrated in these two dresses—the one a classic inset sleeve, the other a complicated version of the raglan shoulder. Both have fitted sleeves and belts marking the natural waistline—one with soft leather treated as fabric and posed higher at the front than the back, the other a double band of leather with gold fastenings, worn in regulation manner.

* * *

THE HIGH collar on the Lyolene model is lined with white crochet; the Maggy-Rouff dress has a scarf collar ending in fringes.

Did you keep November 3's letter frequency table?

CIPHER EDITOR GIVES CLUES

Well, you cipher fans, if you couldn't work Saturday's Cipher No. 9—and the Cipher Editor didn't hear anyone boasting, we'll print it for you again.

And we'll suggest two things:

First, form a letter frequency for this cipher.

Second, write, horizontally, the numbers one to nine; then, vertically, the numbers 1, 5 and 9.

You will find that each number in the cipher has a place on one of the three lines under one of the nine numbers thus: 59 would be on the "five" line under the figure 9 in the line across the top. The vertical numbers represent the tens, the horizontal the digits.

Then, from your old letter frequency table printed in the Sun-Telegraph, November 3 (the one you were told to keep), figure out some of the letters, place them on the chart.

Your table, before you fill in the letters (if) will look like this:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9

Another clue: Since it's a letter to the Cipher Editor from Corbett, it's just possible that that may be the last word in the cipher.

Now work it out and call the Cipher Editor if you get it in less than 30 minutes.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Nov. 14.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Say, my trip to South America was of some use to someone beside myself. Get this—it's a new one on me.

"Dear Mr. Rogers, did you know when you left for South America that you took forty-nine fifth grade pupils from Concord, N. C., with you? We clipped your daily messages and found the places on the map, and tried to learn all we could of the places. We liked the trip fine. We liked our hop over the Andes with you, Buenos Aires, Rio de Janiero, Santiago, Chile; Lima, Peru, and all of them were beautiful. You have made us love South America. Hurry up and go somewhere else, we want to go with you. Fifth Grade. Long School, Miss Perberton's Room."

HOLDUP TRACED TO SLAIN MAN

Detectives today said they had traced a recent Carrick carbarn holdup to Elmer C. McCorkle, 34, extra motorman, slain in a gun battle between himself and two patrolmen, when a second attempt was made to rob the carbarn offices early Saturday.

Meanwhile the records of two other suspects, F. A. Jedlick, 29, of 2933 Brentwood avenue, and Walter Freithofer, of 830 Roll street, arrested following the shooting, were being scanned.

Bullets struck Patrolman Howard W. Feidler in the left leg and side. He was reported recovering in the Mercy Hospital.

To a brass button and a packet of traffic tags, Patrolman Stone, a fellow officer, probably owes his life. Holding Jedlick with one hand, Stone opened fire at the escaping McCorkle. A bullet from the fleeing man's gun struck a button on Stone's coat.

Freithofer was arrested later in connection with the activities of the gang. Police said he was the lookout.

Father's Death Cuts Hausner Visit Short

Felix Stanislaus Hausner, Polish aviator, was speeding to Linden, N. J., today. His visit to Pittsburgh seeking funds to finance a second New York to Warsaw flight was curtailed by the sudden death of his father, Frank Hausner, of injuries suffered in an automobile accident.

Hausner was notified last night after speaking on the North Side. He cancelled speaking engagements in Wilmerding tonight and New Kensington tomorrow.

AUTO VICTIM'S HOME SOUGHT

Police today sought the address of Francisco Mongave, 62, who was identified at the morgue yesterday after being fatally injured by an automobile Saturday night in Brighton road, near Westborn street.

The driver, John Callahan, 1142 Goe avenue, was turned over to custody of the Coroner by North Side police, it was reported.

Four persons were injured last night when an alleged hit-and-run driver crashed into the automobile of John Hamilton, 20, of 1601 Brighton road, in Mifflin road, near the township line, according to a police report.

Inside Stuff On How Europe Views Election

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Our local boy in the Balkans tipped us off to the European reaction to the great Democratic stampede last Tuesday.

France: It has been 12 years since we borrowed money from a Democrat.

England: Seems that the old colonies can get infuriated on tea or beer.

Mussolini: Are elections necessary.

Russia: We recognize the successful candidate.

Germany: He's kinda young, ain't he?

Sweden: We never have trouble like that. Our postmasters are elected for life.

India: Mahatma Gandhi can't take the lecture platform this week. He's sent his laundry out.

WILD CARGO

By FRANK BUCK

With EDWARD ANTHONY

CHAPTER XXVIII.

There is no greater irony in the whole reptilian realm than what happens to the mighty python after it has made a kill. It becomes as inert as the creature it has swallowed, and is practically helpless. Capturing a python after it has eaten greatly simplifies the task of the collector. In my own case I don't mind saying that I have no objection to my work being made easier. Unless there is no way of avoiding it I cannot see the sense of attempting the dangerous task of landing a big python when it is in full possession of its faculties. There is nothing to be gained by tampering with coiled lightning.

Nothing stranger has ever been seen in the streets of Thaton—a city that has had its quota of bizarre sights—than the procession that wound up that afternoon in front of Thaton Hospital. The comrades of the vanished Maung Chit Khine—five in number—had slung the dead python over their shoulders and had made the trek with their strange load right to the doors of the institution that ministers to the sick of Thaton and environs. Here the titanic snake was cut open, disclosing the crushed and broken body of Maung Chit Khine. He had been swallowed feet first, the hospital officials reported.

A DIFFERENT OPINION

My investigation of this tragic occurrence resulted in my differing on only one major point from the report filed with the local authorities by the friends of the dead sub-agent. They gave it as their opinion that Khine, when he sought shelter from the rain, was attacked from above—in other words, they contended, the snake had dropped from a limb of the tree whose sanctuary the Burmese had sought when the heavy drops suddenly started to fall.

It is my own belief that when the rain started to come down in torrents Khine, making a dash for the nearest tree, ran headlong into the snake, which, thinking it was being attacked, coiled itself around the Burmese, crushed him to death and then began the process of swallowing by working its head over its victim. Starting with the feet, as officially reported, the great constrictor easily dislodged the loosely worn shoes. The sarong then came off as the crushing coils of the jungle's deadliest grip clamped themselves more and more tightly around the body of the ill-fated Khine.

This, as I have said earlier, is

ILLNESS HALTS BANKER'S TRIAL

The trial of A. D. Smith, former secretary and treasurer of the closed Citizens' Trust Company of Bellevue, charged with embezzlement of approximately $73,000 of the bank's funds, was indefinitely postponed today when Assistant District Attorney Harry R. Phillips, who has conducted the prosecution, was reported sick in bed with grip.

George F. Taylor, Jr., deputy state secretary of banking and an attorney, who has been sitting at the prosecutor's table since the trial started last Wednesday, advised Judge A. B. Reid that he would be unable to assume the duties of prosecutor because he already had testified in the case.

Smith, in addition to the embezzlement charge, also is accused of perjury and making false returns to the State Banking Department.

Garage Manager Accused of Theft

Police today sought Max Goldberg, 34, new manager of the Squirrel Hill Garage, at Eldridge street and Forward avenue, for alleged theft of an automobile, a tire, spark plugs, valued at $78, and a typewriter and other supplies worth $16. The automobile was owned by Mrs. Capperman, of 924 Flemington avenue. Police said Goldberg also drained the tanks of 10 automobiles.

Opium Smell Raid Holds 2 for Court

'Hunger Strike' Brief In Wheeling Jail

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 14.—(AP.)—The "hunger strike" in the Ohio County Jail has ended.

Prisoners who cried "We want something besides stale bread and beans," hurled dishes and other objects at jailers, tossed cuspidors through windows and then refused to eat Saturday evening's meal, today docilely disposed of their food with apparent relish.

The 100 prisoners were served the regular fare, but have the promise of Sheriff Ambrose F. Habig that a more varied diet will be inaugurated.

The rebellion came suddenly as tincups started to drum and cries broke out. Order was restored when a squad of deputies and policemen arrived with tear gas bombs. The men were locked in their cells.

The "strike" lasted only overnight, as Sunday breakfast found all prisoners in a receptive mood.

MRS. ROOSEVELT LIVES UP TO HER CREED OF 'KEEP BUSY'

HOLDS SCHOOL, FACTORY AND EDITOR JOBS

By DOROTHY ROE

(Copyright, 1932, Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, school teacher, furniture manufacturer, magazine editor and wife of the President-elect, has a working philosophy of life: "Keep Busy."

She says:

"I never have any trouble finding something to do. When one thing is finished, there's always something else to take its place."

During the early years of her married life she was busy raising her growing family. She has had six children. One baby boy died at the age of 7 months. Of the other five, the two youngest are John, 16, and Franklin, Jr., 18, both of whom are now at Groton School, in Massachusetts.

The three others are married—Anna, the eldest, now Mrs. Curtis Dall; James, 25, and Elliott, 22.

THREE GRANDCHILDREN

There are three grandchildren, too—little Anna Eleanor and Curtis Dall, aged 5 and 2, known respectively to the family as "Sistie" and "Buzzy," and the baby, Sara, 6 months, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt.

Her light brown hair is scarcely touched with gray, and her gray-blue eyes are full of the enthusiasms of youth.

Her daily schedule would wear out half a dozen modern debutantes, and she appears to be never tired.

She doesn't need much sleep. She can be up until the small hours acting as hostess at one of the official receptions at the Executive Mansion in Albany, take a sleeper to New York and be fresh and rested for her classes at the New York City girls' school of which she is part owner and vice principal, the Todhunter School.

She has just written a children's book on politics, published 10 days ago, and is editor of a magazine about babies.

And in between times she oversees the Val Kill furniture factory near Hyde Park, where skilled workmen turn out reproductions of early American furniture.

HOLDS OWN VIEWS

Mrs. Roosevelt long has been as a dry, and has not changed her views, although Gov. Roosevelt was elected on a dripping wet platform.

Many of her views on foreign affairs are more radical than those of her husband.

Mrs. Roosevelt, decided in her own views, is tolerant of the opinions of others.

She is a modern woman, who keeps abreast of the times, and yet hasn't forgotten how to knit, or to cook scrambled eggs for the President-elect.

Her's is a vivid personality, a driving energy, a restless mind.

And that's why Washington is prepared for a number of changes when she steps into the White House.

Yesterday afternoon in the cardinal room of the William Penn Hotel the Woman's City Club inaugurated its Sunday musicales. Since music is not the primary activity of this club it is all the more interesting and important to learn the quality of music offered at these events. There were many guests who obviously were pleased with the program.

Mr. Lissfelt

Soloists were Daphne Edwards Bell, pianist, and T. Reed Kennedy, baritone, and their program was no concession to the tea hour. There were excellent examples of Chopin and of modern music for the pianist, for the baritone a fine operatic air and some of the best English concert songs which we hear nowadays in the music halls.

Mrs. Bell is a most attractive player whom we should like to hear again. Her style inclines towards the brilliant moderns rather than to the more poetic Chopin, and there was considerable dash to her Weber waltz.

Mr. Kennedy's voice is a velvety baritone, he knows bel canto, and his style was admirable on this occasion. Helen Machette played accompaniments.

Man Kills Himself In Home of Friend

LANCASTER, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Members of the Daniel Brown family today found their guest, James Solly, 57, of Elrama, Washington County, shot to death in his room. Dr. J. F. Trexler, county coroner, said Solly apparently had ended his life.

Brown said Solly, a freight conductor, who came to visit him recently, was despondent over financial difficulties.

.. ART .. Housing and City Plan Studies on Display

By PENELOPE REDD

An exhibition of graphic studies in housing and town planning opens today at Carnegie Institute to continue on view through the next two weeks. The show is planned as an auxiliary to the public meetings of the National Conference on City Planning, which will be held in Pittsburgh at the Hotel Schenley during the next three days.

Miss Reed

Cities represented by graphic studies include Philadelphia, Detroit, Minneapolis, Louisville, Birmingham, Canton, Kenosha and Charleston, S. C. The housing studies illustrate the efforts of the New York Lower East Side Planning Association; Cleveland; the Society of Phipps Houses, Long Island; Radburn, N. J., and the United States Government's Boulder City, Nev.

We are proud to report that our community is comprehensively repsented in thorough studies by the municipality's department of city planning, by a similar governmental department of Allegheny County, and by the Citizens' Committee on City Plan.

BUHL PLAN PRAISED

Pittsburgh contributes a series of handsome studies of "Chatham Village" to the housing section. Flavel Shurtleff, secretary both of the National Conference on City Planning and of the American City Planning Institute, described the Buhl Foundation project as "the last word in an evolutionary process which is still going on."

Mr. Shurtleff also said:

"Pittsburgh ranks with not more than half-dozen cities in the country in the thoroughness with which it is carrying on its studies and integrating planning as an essential part of the fabric of municipal government."

The exhibition at Carnegie Institute shows that Pittsburgh's studies have primarily been concerned with the slow working of planning analysis and procedure in contrast with the spectacular promotion of particular proposals with which it is easier to attract public attention.

ORIGIN IN 1893

Indeed, the immediate ancestor of town planning, the "City Beautiful Movement," which was inaugurated by the Chicago World's Fair in 1893, captured public attention by rousing emotions of civic pride in an aesthetically pleasing city.

Within 15 years, however, the National Conference on City Planning had been organized by communities desiring to control their own development. By 1910, the City Planning Commission had been founded in Pittsburgh to reconnoiter, correct and forestall by intelligent planning future error in this essentially co-operative job involving many interests.

To understand this exhibition, interest should be supplemented by the available knowledge through the free public meetings at the Hotel Schenley this week. Incidentally, one of the most distinguished figures nationally in town planning is a Pittsburgh architect and town planner, Frederick Bigger, now president of the American City Planning Institute.

Two suspects were held for the Coroner today by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court in connection with the death Saturday of John Lenert, 56, of 2500 South Eighteenth street, attributed to injuries suffered while he was celebrating Roosevelt's election Tuesday night.

They are Joseph Roesh, 42, of 1926 Huron street, and John Geesey, 40, of South Thirty-fourth street.

In a statement to them, detectives said, Roesh said Lenert had come into Geesey's place under the influence of liquor and that Roesh had taken him home.

Detectives testified a post-mortem disclosed Lenert had several fractured ribs and evidently had been beaten. The suspects denied knowing anything of a beating.

STATE PLEADS NO AUTHORITY ON FIRE RATES

The State Insurance Department has no control over fire insurance rates, which, according to protests by four religious denominations, are out of line in many parts of Western Pennsylvania with rates charged in the eastern part of the state.

The lack of control was revealed at the Insurance Department at Harrisburg. A few companies, it was stated there, those with home offices outside the state, are required to file rate schedules with the department.

NO CONTROL PROVIDED

The present insurance laws give the department no control whatever over the rates filed, it was declared.

According to the Deputy Secretary of the Insurance Department the rates are based largely on experience and on the protection afforded. Recently, the Catholic Diocese of Pittsburgh, through its insurance bureau, issued a survey showing that an unprotected brick church in Western Pennsylvania pays as much as $9 a $1,000 protection against a rate of $3.60 on a similar church in Eastern Pennsylvania.

INEQUALITIES CITED

In the case of a small frame house in a protected town, the rate in certain sections of Western Pennsylvania is $3.20 compared with $1.90 on a similar property under the same conditions in the eastern part of the state.

Two years ago, insurance rates in Allegheny County were lowered, so that it is chiefly in surrounding counties where inequalities are said to occur. The rates objected to are made by the rating bureau of the Middle Department at Philadelphia, and protests by the churches to that office have thus far been without result.

15 GIRL SCOUTS FIGHT FIRE

While their leader ran for help, 15 Girl Scouts of Rosslyn Farms Troop No. 40 formed a bucket brigade and saved a four-room cabin from destruction by fire in North Park early yesterday, according to P. A. Brunn, assistant state fire marshal for McCandless Township.

The girls, ranging in age from 14 to 17 years, had hiked to the park under leadership of Mrs. W. C. Plummer. They settled in the cabin for the night.

Awakened by smoke, Mrs. Plummer aroused the girls. It was discovered the fire had started from a defective hearth, according to Brunn. While Mrs. Plummer ran nearly a quarter mile to the home of Police Chief Frank Rupp, of McCandless Township, the girls carried whatever could be moved from the cabin.

When Ingomar and Highland firemen arrived they found the girls had removed everything from the cabin and had formed a bucket brigade to the nearest source of water 500 feet away.

Betty Atkinson, 10, To Play Thursday At Carnegie

Betty Jane Atkinson, 10-year-old violinist, of Tarentum, will be heard in Carnegie Music Hall Thursday in what is said to be the first "full-sized" concert presented here by a child who has developed her musical talents while attending daily classes in public schools.

Starting when 4, Betty Jane has been playing the violin for six years.

She now plays from memory several sonatas and concerti, which require from 20 to 30 minutes each, besides 50 or more shorter numbers.

Music always has been part of the child's experience. Her father, Frank Atkinson, is a musician, and all of her brothers and sisters play the violin.

GENEVA, Nov. 14.—(INS.)—The principal cities of French Switzerland took on the appearance of armed camps today, following the explosion of a bomb at the Lausanne Town Hall last night, seriously injuring five persons.

Authorities said they suspected Communists and admitted they feared further outbreaks.

Meanwhile, Carl Herreshoff, of San Diego, Cal., a medical student at the University of Geneva, was held incommunicado in the St. Antoine prison, following his arrest on charges of striking police and insulting the Swiss army.

Herreshoff, whom the American consulate believes to be less than 18 years old, faces either imprisonment or deportation.

A detail of 3,000 soldiers has been maintaining martial law since last Wednesday, when 12 persons were killed in riots.

OUSTED CHURCH HEADS TO MEET

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 14.—(Universal.)—Bound for a conference on Mexico with the expelled apostolic delegate, Archbishop Francisco Orozco y Jimenez, also in exile from his native land, will leave Los Angeles Wednesday for San Antonio, Tex.

The apostolic delegate, Archbishop Deopoldo Ruiz y Flores, was compelled to leave Mexico City recently when the conflict between church and state was suddenly aggravated. Flown to the border, by order of the government, he went to San Antonio to take up temporary residence.

Archbishop Orozco, second ranking Mexican prelate, was similarly expelled last January from his See, Guadalajara. Kidnaped and flown to the international line, he came directly to Los Angeles and is now residing with the Rev. Jesus Ramirez at St. Martha's rectory in Vernon.

Officers Elected By Kiwanis Club

Officers and directors of the Kiwanis Club for 1933 were announced today after one of the most spirited elections in the club's history. The new officers are:

Ed Kliment, president; Harold B. Smith, vice president; Clay D. Manville, secretary; Charles A. Bowman, Jr., treasurer; John D. Meyer, district trustee, and Edward H. Jones, Arthur M. Tanner, Col. Frank Blackstone, J. W. Bamford and Walter B. Felter, directors.

AWAIT SHOWER OF METEORS THIS WEEK

A wholesale visitation of meteors, which promises to be the most spectacular since 1866, when "the stars fell like snow," is scheduled Wednesday and Thursday.

The earliest record of this meteoric shower goes back to 1799, when the famous explorer, Von Humboldt, wrote about seeing the stars dart like sparks. In 1833, there was another shower just as dazzling.

The stars are believed to come from Tempel's comet, which made its last appearance in 1866, failing to appear in 1899. Dr. Frank C. Jordan, director of the Allegheny Observatory, said today:

"We may see a real star display and we may not. Every 33 years our earth is scheduled to pass the orbit of a concentrated group of meteorites. They are thought to originate from Tempel's comet.

"In 1899, the customary show did not take place and astronomers believe the comet has collapsed. They even think that what remains of it has been drawn out of its orbit by Jupiter.

"Tempel has not been seen since 1866 and therefore there may be nothing more to see this year than the usual November display."

SEAL CAMPAIGN GROUP NAMED

The general committee is composed of Alice E. Stewart, vice chairman; R. B. Mellon, treasurer; D. J. Hicks, assistant treasurer; C. D. Armstrong, E. V. Babcock, Mrs. George B. Berger, Jr., Mary Agate Brown; E. R. Crawford, Grant Curry, Mabel L. Gillespie, Rabbi S. H. Goldenson, C. M. Harnies, Thomas J. Hilliard, Francis A. Keating, William B. Klee, J. H. Lockhart, Herbert A. May, A. W. Mellon, William S. Moorhead, Frederic Schaefer, Walter F. Schleiter, John C. Slack, J. Ramsey Speer, Emil Winter and Mrs. W. P. Witherow.

The campaign is scheduled to start November 25 and continue until Christmas. Seals will be sold at booths in downtown stores and office buildings. The funds are used to carry on the city and county fight against tuberculosis the coming year.

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- -:- Follow This Uuusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By SALLY MARTIN

Should Wife Stand by Man Who Has Wrecked Himself?

Should a wife be loyal to a man who isn't loyal to himself?

And if so, how loyal? Guinea's wondering.

Wine, women, song, gambling and dope made a tramp of the husband Guinea once adored. Now he's a vicious wreck, ugly and cruel, yet still demanding the care and consideration from his wife which he has never shown her.

Should he get it?

Or has Guinea a right to freedom—the right to leave this worthless man and seek peace and happiness for herself?

"Dear Sally Martin—

"Will you please give me some advice? I need it badly. I have many, many friends, but I can't ask them about it, so I am coming to you.

"I was married 20 years ago. I have two sons. One is 19, and with us at home. He is honest and upright and a good and consistent worker. The other is in the Navy.

"When my boys were about 9 and 12, my husband had blood-poisoning, and for many weeks lay at death's door. However, he didn't die, but for many months he doctored and doctored. Hospital after hospital had him, only to send him back home. Apparently, nothing helped. And having been a drinking man, he went back to drinking and gambling and abusing the children and me.

"Finally he was arrested one day for beating me. That caused a separation, but it was only temporary, because he was so repentant and so humble and sorry that I believed him when he told me that if I would give him another chance he'd show me he could be different.

A DRUG ADDICT

"But after a few days the atmosphere in our home was just about the same, except the beatings stopped. Then he got down sick again. At first the doctors said it was dropsy and heart and kidney trouble. Then the truth came out. It was the drug habit. He took the cure at a hospital, but went back to using morphine again, and now for over a year he has been using it steadily.

"I don't love him. I can't love him the way he is. I have not lived with him as his wife for a long time now, and insist I won't so long as he uses morphine. And while I have made many friends, they won't come to visit me on account of him. They have told me so. And I do so long for affection and companionship—for something more than the drab life I live.

"He is jealous of everyone, even our son. I feel as if I had been marooned on an island of some sort and no one allowed on it but him and me and our son. Sometimes I feel as if his chief pleasure is taking things from me.

WANTS HAPPINESS

"I have thought many times of leaving him. Then I think of him being sick like he is at times, and helpless from it, and I wonder if I have a right to. And reading some of your articles about the way we make habits of people, I wonder if I've made one of him.

"What do you think I should do? Just now perhaps is a poor time to branch out for yourself, with work so hard to get. (We have a little store here). And I don't know.

"Do you think I owe him anything? Should I stay here and keep home together, such as it is? Or shall I leave and try to make a new life for myself? I was married at 17, so I am still comparatively young, and I long for a little peace and happiness.

"GUINEA."

A bitter problem; and I know what my answer would be. But I'm going to put it up to the jury.

What is your answer, stranger?

Is it a wife's place to stay and take care of a man like that? A man who went to pieces because he got a bad break and has made a beast of himself? Is it up to her to look out for the wreck he made of himself?

Or has she a right to deal herself a new hand, and leave him to meet the fate he prepared for himself?

Aviation May Have Inspired New Sleeve Style---Fay King

By FAY KING

The lady who wishes to "laugh up her sleeve" these days need not smother a snicker.

Smart sleeves are now of such a size that she may enjoy a long, loud laugh without being discovered or heard beyond their billowy boundaries.

Should you ask her what she has "up her sleeve" she might as easily pull out six or seven rabbits, if she has not had them made into imitation ermine or chinchilla sleeves. Fur sleeves are quite the thing just now.

Aviation has probably inspired this wide wing span for sleeves. I'm hoping it won't be long until they become as useful as they are ornamental. Seems to me that puff sleeve parachutes might help solve some of our traffic problems.

Heart of a Wife -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Dicky, Harry Fail to Catch Strangers in Wild Chase

Everyone of us came to our feet simultaneously as the sound of shattered glass and something falling just outside Dr. Barnes' private sitting room came to our ears.

"Don't any of you women come outside," Harry Underwood barked. "Brock, you stay with them. Come on the rest of you!"

He was at the door as he spoke, and out of it the next second with all the other men save Brock at his heels. We heard them stop, evidently scanning the floor, then Harry Underwood's voice.

"A stone! With a message, doubtless."

Lillian rose abruptly.

"This 'men-must-work' and women-must-wait or weep or whatever it is, doesn't go tonight," she said, starting for the door.

Before the fiery determination in her eyes Brock stepped back, and she went toward the hall. I exchanged glances with Mrs. Barnes.

"I'll stay here," she said softly, and looked toward Mary significantly.

"Mary will stay with you," I said, and then I followed Lillian to the door.

I found Brock at the outer door, evidently watching Lillian, who at the veranda steps was straining her eyes through the darkness, where we could hear feet pounding along the roadway. She put out her hand and caught mine.

ANXIOUS MINUTES

"Dicky is ahead," she whispered. "He didn't wait to look at the paper—just ran out and down the road. He can beat any of them, you know."

I did know that Dicky, younger than the other men and always in the pink of physical condition, on occasion could come within hailing distance of the speed that was his years ago on a Yale track team. But I also knew that because of that he would be the nearest to whatever danger lurked in the darkness outside.

But I betrayed no hint of my anxiety to Lillian. She was facing something too horrible to contemplate, and I knew the fears that were shaking her as well as if they were my own.

"Was there a paper?" I whispered.

"I am sure of it," she said. "I heard Harry speak of it. But he must have taken both stone and paper with him. I could find nothing."

I made the mental comment that her husband probably had foreseen her disregard of his order, and intended her to find nothing until he had had an opportunity to read it first. I knew that both he and Dicky had flashlights with them, and I was sure that before they returned the contents of the paper wrapped around the stone would be known to both of them.

It seemed an eternity, but it really was no more than two or three minutes before we heard the sound of returning footsteps and low, cautious voices. Then the four men came into our vision at the foot of the veranda steps. All were wiping their faces and breathing a bit heavily, although Dicky showed the least effects of the sprint they had made.

"Some run, Mr. Graham," commented.

ESCAPED IN MACHINE

"But what good did it do?" Dicky queried irascibly. "I wasn't able to get even the license number of the car."

"Probably a fake one, anyway," Harry Underwood commented. "And at least we know how this thing got here, and that the audacity of the men who brought it is unparalleled."

"How did it get here?" Lillian asked tensely. "I know, Harry I disregarded what you said, but—"

"I didn't expect you to do anything else," he told her fondly, "but I thought I could keep you from dashing out into the road with us."

"I should only have hindered you there," she said. "Here I was harmless, at least. But tell me—"

"Suppose we go inside," Dr. Barnes said smoothly. "We can talk about it there."

"Good idea!" Harry spoke briskly. "Brock, will you and Wynne patrol the grounds, reporting anything suspicious? I trust you will forgive this liberty with your establishment," he added, as he turned apologetically to Dr. Barnes.

"Everything here is now in your hands until the girls are found," the head of Whitney Hall said earnestly. Then we were back in the Barnes' living room, waiting to hear what was written on the paper wrapped around the stone that had crashed through the glass of the hall door.

To freshen vegetables soak for an hour in cold water to which has been added the juice of a lemon.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Secret Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My brother was married secretly three years ago. His wife was unable to announce the wedding as married women are not employed by her firm and she had the entire support of her mother. She now has a son 18 months old and she has just recently given up her position. Only a very few of her friends know of her marriage and her baby. She is making her home with her mother-in-law and sister-in-law.

How is the best way to announce this situation? It is, at best, rather awkward. Is there some kind of announcement party we, her mother-in-law, or sister-in-law, might give, or should the first function be given by her mother or married sister?

We would appreciate your advice as to the most correct and gracious way of handling this situation. F.

Since she is making her home with you, her mother-in-law, it would be appropriate, and most gracious and generous, for you to give an announcement party for her and your son. I suggest that this party might be in the form of a buffet supper, given on one Sunday evening soon. This would, of course, be most informal, and informality is just the right note for it. Then there won't be any "accent" that will call attention to the lapse of time.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

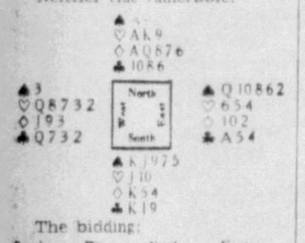
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Playing a Contract at a Wrong Bid

It is not at all an infrequent experience for a Bridge player to discover, after the cards are laid down, that through some weakness, however slight, in conveying or drawing inferences, the partnership has arrived at the wrong contract.

However, even the wrong bid can be made at times, as Mr. Walter M. Lock, of Albany, Cal., discovered when he played the hand below, which illustrates the type of play frequently overlooked—the use of a plain suit to draw trumps adversely held.

South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	3 ◇	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

After the hand was played, it was, of course, easily discerned that the correct contract would have been three notrump rather than four spades, and South's bid of three spades over three diamonds was a dangerous one, in view of his partner's Forcing Takeout and the weakness of the spade suit in general. However, South set about making the contract.

West's Opening lead was the heart 3. This was won with Dummy's Ace, and the Ace of trumps laid down, followed by the 4. South finessing the Knave and West discarding the heart 2. South was now armed with knowledge of the heart and spade suits in all the hands. Since one spade and two clubs would probably be lost, South planned the play to prevent East from ruffing any diamond tricks which he could not overruff. To the fourth trick, he led the heart Knave and finessed when West did not cover. Next the diamond King was led, followed by a small diamond to Dummy's Ace. The heart King was then laid down in the Dummy, and South discarded his last diamond. Now the Queen of diamonds was led, which East ruffed and South overruffed. East had conceded two rounds of clubs by leading the King, which was won by East with the Ace, and the return of the suit was won by West's Queen. When West won the second round of clubs, he returned the heart Queen, permitting East to discard his last club. South won with a trump, and led the now established club, which was ruffed by East, but South's King won the last trick. South might conceivably have played the hand in slightly different fashion, but reasoned that he probably would lose 2 club tricks in any event, and his decision that he must not permit a ruff of the diamond by East unless he were able to overruff was the crucial point in the play of the hand.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

How should a player respond to indicate a blank hand, after his partner has overcalled opponents' bid suit?

Answer: There is no need to show the lack of honor strength. Partner should be cognizant of the fact that there is probably little honor strength in the hand, and the player should simply bid a four-card major suit or the longest suit in the hand.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

By all means wear a fur-trimmed suit, it is dressy and smart. A charming model is of deep scarlet broadcloth with a shawl collar of beaver on the rather long jacket. The sleeves have gauntlet cuffs also of the beaver.

The sleeve enfolds much of the trimming of the new dresses. A smart black dinner gown in bagheera velvet has wide sleeves fitted into narrow wristbands. The sleeves have a heavy applique of white Cluny lace put on in flower spray pattern.

A good match with one's velvet frock is a bag of similar velvet, or at least in a matching shade. Thus with a wine red velvet afternoon frock, a smart woman wears a bag of matching velvet with a black enamel frame striped with gold and set with pearls and marcasite.

At last the compact where one can get at it. One enterprising lady, a famous handbag maker, has invented a handbag with a round metal fastening into which slips a compact of enamel with silver, centered with marcasite. This also provides a charming ornament for the bag.

Let it rain if you have one of the new smart raincoats that are ever so light and supple. A new model for autumn is in a brown and white checked rainproofed tweed and has a swagger cut, modified drop shoulder line and a high military collar.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

In Paris one hears always the same criticism of the American girl. She is a dress coward, she follows the crowd. American girls are pretty. They have lovely slim bodies, trim ankles, feet perfectly shod. But they all look alike. Isn't it true? Doesn't the American girl lack individuality in dress? Coiffures duplicate themselves so much that when one spots a distinguished hairdress, one away from the regular design, it is a sensation. There's more latitude in dress, though every woman keeps pretty close to the mode of the moment, and that's right if one isn't to be behind or ahead of the fashion parade. Clothes cowards! Ouch! What a slam.

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Lincoln Tough for Pitt
Harvard to Keep Casey.
Navy May Worry Irish.
Bush Saves Grantham.
Reds Release Doolan.
Olson Getting Results.

SLATE KEEPS LOCALS HIGH IN RATING

BEATING NOTRE DAME has long been rated as the hardest job in football, but in Pitt's case it has been no tougher than the task of beating Dana Bible's Nebraska team on the latter's own field. Four times the Panthers have journeyed out to Lincoln, and though they have never been defeated there, they have been able to win only once, and in the four games they made a total of only two touchdowns. Last Saturday's scoreless tie, the third result of that kind in the series, is generally looked upon as having halted the Panthers' march toward the national title and the Rose Bowl.

Dana Bible

But at that, weighing what they have gone through, it is hard to see wherein the Sutherlands are outranked by any rival. At least they haven't been beaten, and that's a notable achievement in view of the murderous slate. No other team has been up against such a schedule, no other team can boast such a dual feat as the overthrow of Army and Notre Dame. The nature of schedules played ought to count for something in the ranking, and when that item is taken into consideration the Pitt record is second to none in the country.

RUMORS THAT UNLESS Harvard defeats Yale next Saturday, Eddie Casey will be deposed as head coach at Cambridge are vigorously denied by William J. Bingham, director of athletics for the Crimson. He says there is no thought of making a change, regardless of the outcome of the meeting with the Elis.

The understanding at Harvard, Bingham explains, is that a coach may remain as long as he fulfills the requirements of being the right sort of man and the right sort of coach, one who can make the sport enjoyable to the athletes. The matter of victory is secondary, he says.

ERNIE CADDEL, star Stanford halfback, is being sought for the part of the lion man in a new moving picture to be called "King of the Jungle." Paramount advertised throughout the country for a man for the part, and several athletes were tried out without success.

Among them were Nick Lutze, wrestler; Norman Ross, swimmer; Joe Savoldi, gridder and wrestler, and John Anderson, Olympic discus thrower. Another, Orville Mohler, lacked the height. The main trouble with the rest was in their voices. The lion man must be hoarse-throated. Caddell is said to measure up in all respects. The job pays $200 a week for five weeks.

IF ANDY KERR'S Colgate team should win the invitation to play in the Rose Bowl game on New Year's Day, they'll have to get another mentor in his place to handle the Eastern eleven in the annual East-West contest at San Francisco. That would mean new coaches on both sides, as Babe Hollingbery, of Washington State, has been named director of the Western team to succeed Pete Locey, who left the coast this fall to become coach of Denver. The selection of Hollingbery was a neat tribute to that able grid tutor, being all the more noteworthy because Babe, for all his success of Washington State, is not a college product. He neither played college football nor attended any college. He came into prominence as coach of the Olympic Club of San Francisco, and from there went to Washington State.

Rip Miller

BY NO MEANS the least interesting game on the football card for next Saturday is the annual meeting of Notre Dame and Navy, which will have a new setting in the Cleveland Stadium. Though looking like probable winners, the Irish may find it is not to be a runaway.

Certainly the Middies ought to know all about the system they will find themselves up against, as their coaching staff is of pure Notre Dame training. The head coach is Edgar E. (Rip) Miller, who was one of the "Seven Mules" that collaborated with the Four Horsemen in 1924, and his assistants are Christy Flanagan, Notre Dame halfback of 1925-26-27, and One-Play Johnny O'Brien, who caught Niemic's pass to beat Army in 1928.

A POSSIBLE SOURCE of trouble for the Irish is one of the two Hawaiians playing major college football. He is Halfback Gordon Chung-Hoon, Navy's chief threat. The other Hawaiian in the upper ranks, though you'd never guess it from his name, is Walter (Mickey) McGuire, of Irish ancestry, Wisconsin's left-side passer and kicker.

Chung-Hoon, who prepped at Severn School and is in his third year at Annapolis, stands 5 feet 10 inches, weighs 168 pounds, and is said to possess more natural ability and football sense than any other player on the squad. He can run, pass and kick with equal facility, and his passing in particular is something that Notre Dame will have to respect. It was this aerial weapon and Chung-Hoon's running plays that almost cracked Columbia's winning streak recently.

THE SELECTION OF Donie Bush to manage the Reds next year probably saved a job in Cincinnati for another former Pirate in the person of George Grantham. There had been signs that the veteran might not be kept, but in his first official statement Bush named Grantham among the players for whom he would not consider any trades unless the Reds could be strengthened in vital spots, the others being Babe Herman, Chick Hafey and Red Lucas.

STILL ANOTHER BASEBALL veteran coach has passed out. Mickey Doolan, old Phil shortstop and once the best throwing shortfielder in the game, has been released by the Cincinnati club after three years of service. President Sidney Weil says he planned the step some time ago, but waited until he had signed Bush to make certain that the move would have the manager's approval.

"With the depression not yet lifted," Weil says, "it seems unnecessary to hire a man just to coach at first base and carry up the batting order to the umpire before the game. Manager Bush will be on the coaching lines himself at all times, and one of the players can work opposite him." Weil says the present scouting force of Bobby Wallace and Jimmy Williams will be retained.

WHILE PITT'S SURPRISING football team has been getting most of the spotlight at the Oakland University, the fine work done by the school's other fall sport team is not to be overlooked. That is Carl Olson's cross-country outfit, which has two victories and two defeats in its record before going to New York for today's annual I. C. 4-A championship race over the Van Courtland Park six mile course.

Carl Olson

The Panther team won that big title event in 1924, but since that time cross-country has waned at Pitt. However, Coach Olson has increased interest in the sport no little, has about three times as many men in training as ever came out before, and has not made a poor showing in any meet to date.

OLSON'S RUNNERS WON the West Virginia and Westminster dual meets, and lost to Army and Penn State. In the Army meet the Panthers were handicaped in having to run within two hours after getting off a train, and at that they lost by only a few points. The first team won the A. M. A. championship recently, with the second team in the runner-up position, while Bill Albright, of the first stringers, set a new record of 28 minutes and 1 second for the six-mile course in Schenley Park. Incidentally, Olson is getting ready for the next track season. He has kept interest in this sport at such a high pitch that already 50 candidates are taking daily workouts.

By JULIUS LEVIN

The class A and class B championships of the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League are headed for the Beaver Valley this season, judging from the brilliant football records compiled by Ambridge and Beaver Falls in the class A fight and by Freedom in the class B division.

With the fall of Monongahela and Latrobe, heretofore undefeated in the class A championship, the race for the crown in that division has dwindled down to a two-team affair between Moe Rubenstein's Bridgers, of Ambridge, and Howard Heckathorne's Beaver Falls aggregation.

AMBRIDGE LEADER

Ambridge is setting the pace under the point system by which the title will be awarded with a 132 1-7 to 122 6-7 credited Beaver Falls. Both schools have scored seven straight victories over class A opponents, one more than required by league regulations.

Ambridge stretched its winning streak by scoring a 19-0 victory over Midland on Saturday, while Beaver Falls recorded its seventh successive triumph by disposing of Monaca on Armistice Day, 34-0.

Latrobe and Monongahela, rated contenders for the championship in Division A, met their waterloos on Saturday, Hurst scoring a 13-0 victory over Latrobe, while Monongahela, playing its second class A game of the week, fell before a powerful California High aggregation by the same count.

Thus the Beaver Valley is assured of the class A championship with Ambridge and Beaver Falls the survivors of the eliminations.

FREEDOM SETS PACE

Freedom High, coached by Bill Storer, continues to show its heels to Glassport and Springdale in the race for the class B crown with a total of 120 points. Glassport is second with 119 1-6 and Springdale is third with 115 points. Glassport and Springdale are the first to play the required number of six league games, Freedom showing on [illegible] five victories over class opponents.

Freedom will have an opportunity to add 150 points to its total Saturday afternoon when it meets East Pittsburgh on the latter's field. East Pittsburgh, eliminated from the race by Springdale as a result of a 7-6 defeat, looms as one of the toughest tests of the season for Freedom. Coach Johnny Coleman's Shamrocks may prove a stumbling block to Freedom. If Storer's boys can pass this hurdle successfully, their chances for the title will be increased to a great extent.

SPRINGDALE AT MARS

Springdale meets Mars on Friday in a game that is worth 110 points to Herb Ripper's Allegheny Valley machine, provided it wins the decision. Glassport plays at Donora, a class A opponent, the result of which does not have any bearing on the outcome of the championship race.

Ambridge closes its season in a game with Ellwood City at Ambridge Saturday, while Beaver Falls winds up its campaign by opposing New Brighton on Thanksgiving Day. Both Ellwood City and New Brighton are class A opponents.

Jeannette and New Castle continue to run neck-and-neck for the class AA conference championship, with Markley Barnes' Westmoreland Countians holding the edge at present as a result of scoring its fourth straight victory Saturday by defeating Turtle Creek Union, 13-0.

TEST FOR JEANNETTE

New Castle did not engage in league warfare Saturday, putting in the day handing Youngstown its first setback of the season, 21-7. Jeannette plays its fifth Conference game of the season when it meets Greensburg, likewise undefeated, at Greensburg on Thanksgiving Day. New Castle concludes its season by opposing Turtle Creek Union, its fourth class AA opponent, at home Thanksgiving Day.

In event both Jeannette and New Castle finish their seasons undefeated, the former will not receive higher rating than the latter despite the fact it will show five victories to four for the Lawrence countians. The W. P. I. A. L. officials stipulated at the time of the Conference's organization that only four victories would figure in determining the champion.

(On request, sent with stamped addressed envelope, Ripley will send proofs and details of anything depicted by him in these cartoons.)

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF LAST SATURDAY: THE MAN WHO DEFEATED GERMANY—Gen. Sir John Monash, commander of the Australian forces, has been established as the true conqueror of both Hindenburg and Ludendorff through a verdict of the Parliamentary Court of Inquiry in the German Reichstag after the war. The German leaders testified that Germany's "Black Day" was August 8, when the Australians, commanded by Sir John, broke the German lines near Peronne, driving a hole 12 miles wide into the German front. In Hindenburg's "Out of My Life" and Ludendorff's "My War Memories," both reiterate that it was that "break-through" which decided the war and finally caused them to abandon all hopes of victory. "On August 8, even the Kaiser realized that the fate of the German nation had been decided and the war could no longer be won." For the proud military caste of Germany it was a bitter pill to swallow when they realized that the author of Germany's "Black Day" was Sir John Monash, a Melbourne business man and a non-professional soldier.

SEALS REVEAL SCHOOL ACES

With the City League scholastic teams closing their season next Friday, when Perry and Westinghouse meet in a playoff game for the championship, the time is at hand when the annual all-star teams are being selected.

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph has evolved an unique manner of announcing its team, selected by Julius Levin, editor of scholastic sports. This will be done via radio, during the weekly program of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Sun-Telegraph, over WCAE Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock.

The players selected on the first team will be on hand and will be introduced by Levin. The coaches of the two elevens in the playoff game also will be in the studio to say a few words. The complete story about the team, with reasons for selecting the players, will appear in the Sun-Telegraph of the following day.

Ice League Decision Expected Today

The fate of hockey in Pittsburgh so far as the coming winter is concerned is likely to be decided some time today. Meetings have been held between the promoters of a city professional league and the Philadelphia Company representatives, lessor of Duquesne Garden. A decision on the matter is expected today. A four-team circuit is proposed.

Dinny Manners, former local player and manager and one of the boosters for the new league, stated last night he had sufficient playing material available to put four teams on the ice within two weeks' notice. Business men are reported as being interested in the operation of the league.

SPORT VIGNETTES

You'll have to pardon the folks out in Nebraska if they wonder how it happens that our Pitt teams beat Notre Dame and Army and other big elevens and rank high year after year, for, in four games against the Nebraska Cornhuskers in Lincoln, the best the Panthers have been able to do has been to win once, 12-7, and gain three scoreless ties, including that of last Saturday . . . Out there, they probably figure we used a lot of hocus pocus and hidden wires to grind out a 40-0 victory at the Stadium here last Thanksgiving Day . . . In seven games against Nebraska, including that 40-0 triumph, Pitt has scored just 73 points, or an average of a little better than 10 per game, while Nebraska has totaled just 30, including a 10-0 victory in the first meeting, or an average of a little better than one touchdown per game . . . It's one of the strangest series between powerful teams on record.

The inauguration of boxing shows of four-round bouts, at the Arena here tomorrow night, recalls the era of four-round battles in California that came on the heels of the golden days of the sport there, when 20-round battles were the rage.

The definite signing of a Pitt-W. & J. football game for next fall is expected to be effected within the next week . . . Pitt is anxious to book the Presidents, once their greatest natural rival, for the opening date in late September, while the Little Washington authorities think they rate a later and more favorable date . . . The Pitt schedule is booked up with the exception of the first game and one on November 18 . . . Both dates have been held open this long as a result of the experience of this year, when switches had to be made to schedule three attractive games after the card had been completed . . . The opportunity to play Ohio State, Penn and Stanford bobbed up, and other foes had to be dropped to make room for them . . . Dovetailing together a college football schedule is an art, and a seldom fully appreciated task . . . The dates you have open do not fit into the plans of opponents, and vice versa . . . That accounts for the appearance of seemingless meaningless games on the various schedules.

In 10 years, the student enrollment at Waynesburg (Pa.) College, which today is celebrating its greatest football season, with a second victory in as many years over Penn State and a 6-3 triumph over Geneva College which gave it the Tri-State Conference and Class B championship of the district, has been increased from 66 to 366 . . . It is a co-educational institution, with a 3-to-2 ratio of male students . . . It is the proud boast of Paul R. Stewart, president of the college, that the members of the football squad last season had a better scholastic record than the average of the entire enrollment . . . Frank Wolf, the football coach, is doubling in brass as athletic director. He is a former McKeesport High School and Penn State College star.

On the same day Pitt was held to a scoreless tie by Nebraska, Tennessee was held to a similar score by Vanderbilt in the race for the Southern Conference championship . . . Standing out as contenders for the Rose Bowl game

ROONEYS BEAT M'KEESPORT

By TOM BIRKS

The J. P. Rooneys kept their unbeaten record intact yesterday, when the big Green machine defeated the McKeesport team, 6-0, in one of the greatest games staged in the West Penn Conference this season.

There is little doubt that the Tube City gridders were all set for the champions, whose only score came in the second period. Bud Devinney, former Duquesne University star, took one of Jimmy Rooney's passes out of the air and ran 25 yards for the touchdown. The extra point kick by Rooney was wide.

Devinney was the outstanding player for the Rooneys. Bud made some brilliant sweeping runs.

The outstanding lightweight battle of the day at Greenlee Field found Etna Sycamores and the J. Scott Morgans battling to a scoreless tie.

St. Rosalia Preps defeated Krieger-Marx, 15-0; Allison Park defeated the Bloomfield Civics, 6-2; the Goose Goslin defeated Varscharen, 14-0; the M. J. Jordens defeated Cup Jenkins, 7-6; the J. J. Doyles defeated the Beltzhoover Scholastics, 12-0; the Clairton Merchants defeated the Duquesne Scholastics, 26-0; the J. J. Veronas and Aliquippa Indians played a scoreless tie, and the New Kensington Majestics defeated the Tarentum Rambler, 6-0.

State Harriers Eager To Win Today's Race

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Nov. 14.—Penn State's varsity cross-country team will seek to win permanent possession of the I. C. A. A. A. cross-country trophy when it takes part in the annual intercollegiate championship run over Van Cortlandt Park, New York City, today.

With only five team championships necessary to capture the trophy, the Lion runners have been victors in four out of the past six runs, and need but one more victory to gain the trophy. Last year Penn State finished third behind Harvard and the University of Pennsylvania, and in 1930 set a new record for low score in winning the title.

PANTHERS TO COMPETE

HUSKERS EXACT PAINFUL TOLL FROM PITT

By JESS CARVER

A detachment of tired, very, very tired, footballers from the University of Pittsburgh, plodded from their cars in the Pennsy Station last night. They'd just completed a 26-hour trip from Lincoln, Neb., where on Saturday they'd been held to a scoreless tie by an enraged Cornhusker team. They were tired before they went into that game, a stale football team if ever there was one.

In justice to Nebraska, it might be correct to write that Pitt held Nebraska, instead of that Nebraska held Pitt. The Hoosiers were the better ball club on the gridiron there in Memorial Stadium Sat'day. No mistake about that. It was an alert, fast, snappy and inspired Husker eleven that Pitt met, an eleven that resembled the more familiar Nebraska teams of past years about as much as my Aunt Susie resembled The Garbo.

PANTHERS TIRED

But Pitt was tired. Pitt still is tired, and until the boys are able to "unlax," they are not going to be able to play the football that carried them to their sweet victories over the Army, Notre Dame and Penn, and enabled them to draw with another "up" team, Ohio State, a team, by the way, which probably was the most underrated foe on the Panther schedule.

At any rate, the Panthers havn't been beaten, and today, they and Waynesburg's Yellow Jackets stand alone in the spotlight's glare in this district. The Jackets came through very nicely on Armistice Day against Geneva, winning both the Class B and Tri-State Conference titles.

Geneva was picked to take the Jackets, for the Covenanters, despite one defeat, had been rolling along with increasing momentum. Waynesburg had been hard pressed to eke out a 13-12 win over Juniata the week previous and with Trioana, Grahame and Aultman forming a crackerjack offensive trio, the Genevans looked like the dough in pre-game rating.

Having resigned from the Monday Morning Quarterbacks' Association, your correspondent will refrain from dissecting Pitt's play of Saturday. The chances such dissection would be as unsatisfactory as the . . . but there we almost broke faith with the vow taken when we tendered our resignation. Habit is a tough sweetheart to shake.

HELLER STILL HELLER

Suffice to say that Warren Heller didn't lose an ounce of caste in the tie. He still is an all-America halfback. Win, lose or draw, Heller remains a honey.

One of the bright features of the game was the splendid work of the officials, Messrs. Edmonds, Taylor, McBride and Hedges turned in a swell job. They used fine judgment in making their decisions, and worked so smoothly that one hardly knew they were in the ball game. There wasn't a squawk raised from any quarter on their work.

The contest, thanks to the fact that the men in white were not cut there looking for violations and the chance to toot their whistles or sound their horns all the time, was as fast a game as I've witnessed this year.

TARTANS VICTORS

Carnegie Tech resumed its campaigning after a two weeks' rest by clipping Xavier, 15 to 0. Wash-Jeff beat the same team, 34-0, but then the chances are that the Tartans are laying back, preparing for Pitt.

The Presidents, too, displayed the old comeback spirit by beating Bucknell. After the decisive setback handed the Prexies here two weeks ago by Duquesne, their chances against the Bisons were

UNBEATEN FOES TO CLASH ON TURKEY DAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—The Colgate-Brown game on Thanksgiving Day has taken on the aspect of the deciding struggle for Eastern football leadership. It is the biggest topic of discussion among fans of the Eastern section.

Brown's victory over Columbia reduced the roster of unbeaten and untied teams to three—Brown, Colgate and Waynesburg. Pittsburgh, outrushed and held to a scoreless tie by Nebraska, lost some of its prestige, although its record remained clear of defeat, and Temple, victorious by the slim margin of 13 to 12 over Penn State, remained as the only other unbeaten major team.

The Brown Bears showed their greatness in a fourth-period drive after they had been outplayed through the greater part of the game and had trailed 6-0 from the first quarter. They marched 80 yards without a halt, sending Frank Gammino over for a touchdown and then Bob Chase booted the winning point.

COLGATE IN BIG YEAR

The fast-charging Syracuse line stopped Colgate's running plays in the thirty-fourth meeting of these old rivals, but the Red Raiders once more kept their goal line safe and won, 16-0, scoring after a blocked kick and on a 50-yard pass from Ask to Lee.

Temple, unbeaten but twice tied, ran into Penn State when the Nittany Lions were at their best and had its hands full.

The fifty-sixth battle between Yale and Princeton, the oldest game on a program of historic rivalries, was scoreless until the final quarter. Bob Lassiter went across for Yale after a long pass had brought the chance and the Tigers came back with an air assault that brought the first deadlock between these rivals since 1913.

Harvard, preparing to meet Yale next Saturday, staged a comeback from two defeats and beat Holy Cross 7 to 0. Fordham turned back New York University, 7-0. Cornell swept over Dartmouth, 21 to 6, for its first victory over that traditional rival since 1926.

RUTGERS LANDS TITLE

Rutgers captured the Middle Three title by trouncing Lehigh, 37 to 6, in their twenty-eighth meeting. Lafayette, third member of the trio, walloped St. John's, of Annapolis, 51-0. Amherst had little more than a romp against Williams, winning their fiftieth battle, 37-7, to break the Purple's four-year hold on the Little Three title. Washington and Jefferson defeated Bucknell, 14-0, and West Virginia Wesleyan added a 14-0 defeat to Georgetown's woes.

Navy helped the Eastern side by beating its old enemy, Maryland, 28-7, and Carnegie Tech invaded the Mid-West to defeat Xavier, 15-0.

Army's whole squad had a hand in the Cadets' 50-0 walkaway against North Dakota State. West Virginia defeated a traditional rival from the South, Washington and Lee, 19-0. Rochester turned back Kenyon, 13-0, but Transylvania defeated Morris Harvey, 7-0, and Muskingum beat Westminster, 7-6, for two Western victories. Randolph Macon recorded the only Southern victory, a 6-0 decision over American.

EMSWORTH LAD STATE STAR

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Nov. 14.—When Coach Bob Higgins, of Penn State, begins to survey prospects for his 1933 varsity football team, he'll have one backfield worry eliminated by an Allegheny County boy, Harry N. Sigel, of Emsworth, a former Bellevue High School player.

Harry Sigel

Sigel, a sophomore this year, has shown so much ability in his first season on the varsity that he has received the starting assignment as a halfback in the last four games played by the Nittany Lions. Although his main forte is his ball-carrying ability and speed, he can pass and kick if the occasion demands, and was called upon to do all three as a freshman last year.

The Emsworth boy got off to a fine start against Lebanon Valley and Waynesburg, but was injured late in the game with the Yellow Jackets, and missed the Harvard and Syracuse games. He started against Colgate and Sewanee, and in both games led the Lion ball-carriers. His 45-yard return of a punt against Colgate was the longest individual run made against the Red Raiders this year.

Comish to Probe Charges of Bass

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14.—(INS.)—Robert J. Nelson, Philadelphia member of the State Athletic Commission, today said an investigation would be started into charges made by Benny Bass, former junior-lightweight and featherweight champion, in his suit against Phil Glassman if he found the charges were justified.

Bass charged Glassman, his former manager, had asked him not to exert his best efforts against opponents. Nelson said he was going to obtain copies of the suit filed by Bass.

Waynesburg Wins Praise Of Coach Harpster

By Howard Harpster

Geneva College Coach; All-America Quarterback at Carnegie Tech, 1928.

The Western Pennsylvania class B college football title and the Tri-State Conference championship went to Frank Wolf's fine Waynesburg College football team last Friday, when the boys from Greene County defeated Geneva College in the last three minutes of play by a score of 6 to 3. The game was hard-fought throughout the four quarters, and, when Waynesburg pushed over its touchdown in the final minutes, the outcome was definitely settled. The Waynesburg victory was well-earned, for the Covenanter attack failed to click and the Geneva team was outplayed in almost all departments of play.

Mr. Harpster

Although Quarterback Art Grehame's passing and calling of plays were not quite up to his usual high standard, he turned in the best individual play of the game early in the third quarter, when he sent his team into the lead with a beautiful drop-kicked field goal. Standing 48 yards from the cross-bar when he dropped the ball, he kicked a high, accurate boot that split the uprights and cleared the cross-bar by some eight or nine yards.

GENEVA'S SWAY ENDS

Half way through the fourth quarter, Waynesburg was given the ball on Geneva's two-yard line with first down, following a penalty of nearly 30 yards. The Geneva team braced and made a wonderful goal line stand to take the ball on downs on the one-yard line. Following a good kick from behind the goal which Waynesburg recovered on the Geneva 45-yard line, Coach Wolf's boys marched to their game-winning touchdown.

The game, which was cleanly played, marked the first Conference defeat for Geneva in three years, and, although the reult was a bitter pill to swallow, we do not believe it was unfair. The entire Geneva squad joins me in sending sincere congratulations to Frank Wolf and a fine Waynesburg football squad.

The University of Pittsburgh ran into a tough customer Saturday in the revenge-seeking Nebraska Cornhuskers, and, from all reports, the Panthers were barely able to keep their undefeated record intact. At one stage of the game, the big Nebraska eleven had the ball on Pitt's three-yard line with three downs in which to cause the biggest upset of the day. However, the Pitt forward wall rallied and took the ball on downs. That was the closest either team came to the opponent's goal.

PENALTIES HURT TECH

Carnegie Tech found its game with Xavier anything but a setup, and won, 15 to 0. I believe a record of some kind was made by Tech during the early stages of the game when it was penalized six times out of the first seven times it attempted to advance the ball. Most of the setbacks were for offsides and backfield men in motion.

W. & J. staged a remarkable comeback after its decisive defeat at the hands of Duquesne last week when it defeated the big Bucknell team from Lewisburg, 14 to 0. The so-called jinx which W. & J. is supposed to have over Tech teams likewise is cast upon the Bucknell team. Only once in all of their many meetings has Bucknell come out on top.

Duquesne continued its powerhouse tactics when it romped over South Dakota for 20 points in the final period and thereby broke up what was a comparatively even contest up to that time. Jim McDonald, who always has impressed me as being a great football player, was the big scoring gun for the Dukes, crossing the opponents' goal four times.

Marquette Mentor Fears W.-J. Passes

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 14.—Alarmed by reports of Washington and Jefferson's forward pass victory over Bucknell Saturday, Coach Frank J. Murray, of the Marquette University football team, announced he would concentrate on aerial defense this week in anticipation of the Presidents' visit here next Saturday.

West Virginia and Detroit scored recent victories over the Golden Avalanche through the use of passes, and Murray wants to prevent a recurrence this week.

PACKERS TRIM BOSTON PROS

BOSTON, Nov. 14.—AP.)—The world championship Green Bay Packers team yesterday closed Boston's national professional football season by defeating the Boston Braves, 21 to 0, with a sensational forward passing display at Braves Field before 20,000 persons.

All of the Packers' scoring came through the air. In the first period Arnold Herber scored Roger Grove with a pass from the Boston 10-yard line. Harry O'Boyle place-kicked the extra point. Herber fed Verne Lewellen a long pass early in the second period, and the halfback ran 30 yards over the Boston line.

Just before the half closed Herber threw a 35-yard pass to Johnny Blood in the Boston end zone for the final score. The other Green Bay extra points were supplied by Grove's place kick and Herber's forward to Lavie Dilweg.

BUCKNELL MAY PLAY DUKES

Duquesne University football team and Bucknell College are expected to clash on the gridiron next year, according to a report given considerable credence on the Bluff today.

The reported contest has not been verified. It is said to be slated for a night event of October 8.

The Bisons are believed to be seeking additional opponents in this section. They were defeated, 14-0, by Washington and Jefferson at Little Washington Saturday.

PLAN BASEBALL CLASS

MUSCATINE, Ia., Nov. 14.—(AP.)—A school for young ballplayers will be conducted this winter at Hot Springs, Ark., Ray Doan, manager of the House of David nine, announced here. Doan said that he had obtained Rogers Hornsby, thrower Alexander and George Sisler to tutor youthful diamond aspirants who are expected to enroll in the school.

RACE ATTRACTS MANY

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Seven 50 and 60 of the outstanding distance runners in the Middle West meet at Purdue University next Saturday to settle the Western Conference cross-country championship. It will be over a four-mile course.

MICHIGAN LEADS FAST GRIDDERS OF 'BIG TEN'

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Michigan today led the Big Ten football race into its final week, seeking to establish its right to the first undisputed Conference championship since Purdue won by itself in 1929.

The Wolverines, victorious in five straight Big Ten engagements and two outside the league, face Minnesota in the highlight of the final day's entertainment, and the least that can be expected is a terrific battle.

Purdue, breathing right down the back of Michigan's neck, meets its Hoosier rival, Indiana, and with its record of four triumphs and a tie, has a chance of overhauling Michigan. All this, of course, depends on a Minnesota victory over Michigan, and a Purdue triumph over Indiana.

Wisconsin, in third place with three victories, a tie and one reverse, meets Chicago, and Illinois, rapidly hauling itself back to its former respectable position in the Big Ten, tackles Ohio State's rejuvenated eleven at Champaign. In the other game, Northwestern, minus its leader and great defensive player, Pug Rentner, takes on Iowa at Evanston.

Minnesota's somewhat unexpected defeat by Wisconsin by a 20 to 13 score at Madison Saturday, leaves the Gophers as the underdog against the hardy Michigan machine. There are, however, other things to consider. The famous "Little Brown Jug" will be at stake, and Minnesota, which probably underestimated Wisconsin, will be primed to the neck for the Wolverines.

These two teams meet in an elimination on Thanksgiving Day, and the winner likely will receive the bid to play on the Coast.—HARRY KECK.

George Moore, Star, At Basketball, Dies

Death claimed a prominent Pittsburgh athlete in the passing of George E. Moore, aged 32, of 504 Edmond street, who died in the Allegheny General Hospital Saturday. A high-class basketball player of this district, Moore had been ill for several months.

Educated in Lawrenceville, George Moore was the son of the late John P. and Ella Moore. He was a member of Sharpsburg Aerie No. 1574, F. O. E., and also a member of the Sharpsburg Eagles' basketball team, the White Eagle team of Lawrenceville and the Pittsburgh Gauge and Supply Company club.

Moore leaves three brothers, William, Thomas and James Moore. Funeral services will be held Wednesday morning in Old St. Patrick's Church, with burial in St. Mary's Cemetery.

HORTON SMITH CAPTURES CAPITAL GOLF TOURNAMENT

WINTRY BLASTS MAR PLAY AT WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Horton Smith, Joplin Ghost, yesterday ghosted himself to a 69 and winner's money in the National Capital Open at Kenwood Country Club. At that he was six strokes over perfect figures for the 54 holes. But his 216, like all the others, was made in the face of a stinging gale that blew many shots awry and turned hands blue.

Smith's nearest competitor was Densmore Shute, of Cleveland, who played more than commendably consistent golf, considering the weather, to finish with 218.

Closest behind him was swarthy Tony Manero, of the Elmsford, N. Y. golf Maneros, with 222. Then came Francis Gallett, of Wauwatosa, Wis.; Johnny Golden, of Noroton, Conn., and Tommy Armour, of Detroit, and Boca Raton, Fla., tied at 223.

HAGEN AN ALSO RAN

Debonair Walter Hagen—once the king of them all—was far down the list. His threesome got the gallery, but his 228 fell out of the money. Pleasant Ed Dudley, of Wilmington, Del., who played with him today, bested Hagen one stroke.

Al Houghton, the Kenwood pro, finished in sixth place with 225, and after him, tied at 226, were Johnny Farrell, of Quaker Ridge, N. Y.; Al Watrous, of Birmingham; John Kinder, of Greenbrook, N. Y.; Eddie Williams, of Cleveland, and T. Phil Perkins, only Englishman in the contest.

WINNER GETS $700

HUSKERS EXACT PAINFUL TOLL

not rated as being overly favorable.

Allegheny finally crashed the victory column with a 16-0 win over Alfred. Davis-Elkins went to Scranton and upset St. Thomas and West Virginia Wesleyan blanked Georgetown, 14 to 0. Triel was crushed by St. Bonaventure, 53-0; Slippery Rock won over Edinboro, 15-0; Clarion tied Lock Haven, 6-6, and Westminster dropped a tough one to Muskingum, 7-6.

Duquesne's victory over South Dakota State Friday was a costly one. Ben Pawlina, veteran right halfback, suffered a broken leg and is through. His place will not be easy to fill. Ben was a fine blocker and a good ball-carrier and pass-receiver. His defensive work always has been above par.

The Tipoff

They have a swell arrangement in the Big Six Conference for timing their games. It is in the form of an electrically controlled clock, attached to the scoreboard, which times the course of the game to the very second. The periods end according to this clock, which is controlled back of one of the benches by representatives from each of the contending schools.

There is no chance of cheating. The two representatives sit side by side, each with a button to press when time is taken out. The clock shows both the minutes and seconds, and when the quarters are over, a gun is fired automatically. It takes a lot of responsibility and bother from the shoulders of the field judges and adds greatly to the spectators' enjoyment of the game, as well as keeping the newspapermen accurately informed as to the amount of time left. Such knowledge oftimes aids greatly in getting an edition in directly the game is over.

Colgate, Pitt and Brown remain the only major unbeaten teams in the East following Saturday's contests. Brown had a close call with Columbia and won only by a single point margin. Colgate ran into more trouble than Andy Kerr expected against Syracuse. One of the three will undoubtedly be selected for the game New Year's in the Rose Bowl, with Pitt's chances hinging on the performances of the Panthers against Carnegie Tech and Stanford.

The tough luck gent of the Pitt-Nebraska game was Heinie Weisenbaugh, shock troop fullback. Heinie, who is about as fast a hoofer as there is on the squad, slipped through the center of the line in the first period and was off with only an astonished safety man between himself and the goal line, some 80 yards away. The safety man should have had a tough old time catching the speedy Dutchman. But after going 23 yards, Heinie slipped to one knee and the chance went blooie.

SILAS BATTLES BOJARSKI

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Frankie Bojarski vs. Sid Silas and Jimmy Thomas vs. Juan Cruz, 8 rounds each, and Jimmy Hogan vs. Red Bush, Johnny Hazel vs. Harry Fine and Steve Senich vs. Al Farone, 6 rounds each, Motor Square Garden.

Prince Saunders vs. Billy Townsend, 10 rounds, and Sammy Farber vs. Allan Fauston, 6 rounds, Toronto.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

The first show in several weeks at Motor Square Garden, tonight, heads a busy week of boxing in the Pittsburgh district.

Sid Silas, formerly of New York, now a member of the local fistic colony, meets Frankie Bojarski, of Erie, and Jimmy Thomas, local Negro bantamweight, takes on Juan Cruz, of Mexico, in two eight-round bouts, and there will be three six-rounders, with Red Bush, of Cumberland, boxing Jimmy Hogan, of Erie; Johnny Hazel, of Hazelwood, battling Harry Fine, of the Hill, and Steve Senich, of Homestead, mingling with Al Farone, of the West End. Fine is subbing for Petey Sherman, of Charleroi.

The show gets under way at 8:30.

The big feature of the week will be a Ted Yarosz-Jack King clash at the Arena, on the North Side, Friday night. King demonstrated by his clean-cut victory over Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, in the same ring, last Friday night, on top of his conquests of Billy Holt and Tiger Joe Randall here, that he stands a good chance of upsetting the dope against the still undefeated Yarosz. He fell as a gift from the skies into the laps of the local promoters, who have been searching far and wide for a suitable opponent for the Monaca mixer.

A card of 13 four-round bouts between district boxers who have been clamoring for action will be put on at the Arena tomorrow night. An amateur show is billed at McKeesport on Thursday. Ross Fields and Pancho Linda box the windup of a show in the Castle Bowl, New Castle, Friday night.

Between Rounds

Andy Vusky, of Bellaire, O., wants to show his Mike Mitchell, 19-year-old light-heavyweight, in the Pittsburgh rings. He recently put up a good bout at McKeesport.

His bout with K. O. Christner at the Garden here next Monday night, on the same card with Eddie (Kid) Wolfe and Pee Wee Jarrell, will mark only the twentieth start for Charley Massare, of Monongahela, who went to New York to make good in the ring. He did not have any amateur experience. He stopped Jack Kearns in his only start here, last summer, and recently defeated Ace Clark, giant Negro, in a bout at Paterson, N. J.

An amateur boxing show will be held by the Finleyville Firemen tomorrow night.

A new system of eliminations for the National amateur boxing championships will be voted on by the delegates to the A. A. U. convention in New York, next week. The plan is to have only regional champions qualify to compete in the titular competition.

Frank McLaughlin has been paired with Elmer Wilson, Ed Schaffer with Toughy Lawson and Joe Clark with Charley Moyer for three of the bouts on the amateur boxing card at McKeesport, Thursday night.

It will be a meeting between two Filipinos when Johnny Datto boxes Frank Cheek at Milwaukee tomorrow night. The show is a Christmas fund benefit affair. Cheek recently knocked out Paul Wangley in a bout at Eau Claire, Wis., and is a favorite in the Milwaukee sector.

GRID STAR INJURED

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 14.—Injured in the football game on Saturday in which Uniontown won a 12-6 victor, Dicey Simon, 18, star fullback for Uniontown, is in the Uniontown Hospital. He suffered a slight concussion, but his condition is such that today he was not permitted to receive visitors.

CAREY WINS TITLE

OAKLAND, Cal., Nov. 14.—Bob Carey, Anderson (Ind.) race driver, won the American automobile racing championship here yesterday when he finished second in the 150-mile race. He compiled a total of 815 points. Bill Cummings, of Indianapolis, won the race by 100 yards.

CURRY DEFEATS ZONEY KICKERS IN CUP GAME

Molly's great run and brilliant shot proved to be the deciding factor that eliminated the Shannon Zoneys from the National Challenge cup soccer game at South Park, yesterday afternoon, Curry winning the greatest soccer contest of the season, 1 to 0, before 5,000 fans.

Thirty minutes had elapsed when Mike Bookie gave Molly a fine pass. The winger swerved around Van Jura and beat Benick with a hard drive. The second half found the Zoney's trying hard to get that equalizing goal. Johnny Jaap played a great game, but his good work went for nought when the Zoney floundered around the Curry defense.

In the Allegheny Valley League, Kinlock and Harwick battled to a 3-3 tie; the Athletics beat Tarentum, 2-1; Curtisville stopped Barsotti 2-0, and Springdale and Millvale found themselves deadlocked 1-1.

One game was played in the Keystone League, and that proved an upset. The Cecil club traveled to Bridgeville to beat the Rosies, 3-2.

In the Washington County League, Atlasburg and Avella played a 2-2 tie, while Lincoln Hill beat Donohues, 2 to 1.

In the Panhandle League, Demarco upset Leetsdale, 5-0; Webers swamped Veronas, 7-0; Primrose stopped Grove A. C., 3-1; Moon Run kept its winning ways by beating Steubenville, 4-2; McGraths nosed out McDonald, 1-0; Local Union beat Pleasant Hills, 2-0; Coraopolis stopped the Shannon Braves, 2-1; Coverdale defeated West Carnegie, 3-1, and Houston and Sturgeon played a 3-3 tie.

In the Ohio-Pennsylvania League, Midland beat East Liverpool, 3-0.

Colgate and Waynesburg each had won eight successive games, while Brown, which meets Colgate Thanksgiving Day, has won seven games. Pittsburgh, Susquehanna and Temple all have escaped defeat but have been tied.

Colgate leads in scoring with 243 points with Army second with 234. Columbia ranks third with 199. Only Colgate has an uncrossed goal line.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Robert M. Cutting, of Chicago, is slated to succeed Herbert H. Ramsay, of New York, as president of the United States Golf Association for 1933, according to the list of nominations just made public.

Ramsay, after being the dominating influence in American golf and prime mover in several noteworthy changes, will yield executive control at the annual meeting of the association, to be held in January, probably in New York. At the request of the incoming president, Ramsay will continue to handle the association's public relations business.

Texas Christian Leads Southwest

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Texas Christian University football warriors have taken the lead in the Southwest Conference championship race and are favored to keep it. They showed their style with a decisive 14 to 0 victory over the University of Texas Longhorns, with whom they had been tied at three wins and no Conference defeats.

SOUTHERN CAL. COAST LEADER

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Southern California was the only undefeated, untied major team along the entire Far Western football front today, within striking distance of its second straight Coast Conference title and the right to represent the West in the annual New Year's Day game for mythical national honors.

In its fifth Conference victory Saturday, Southern California turned back an invading University of Oregon eleven, 33-0. The score was the biggest piled up this season by Coach Howard Jones' Trojan squad against a Conference opponent.

The Trojans will meet Washington's Huskies, November 24, in the windup of their Conference season and, on the basis of comparative scores, are expected to win.

SCOVILLE WINS CUE TITLE BY GREAT SPURT

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Frank Scoville, of Buffalo, won the Eastern sectional three-cushion billiard tournament at Doyle's last night, defeating Joe Chamaco, of New York, in the deciding match, 50 to 48.

After trailing Chamaco most of the way, Scoville rallied to score 31 points in the last 17 innings, finally running out in the forty-eighth inning with an unfinished run of three. Chamaco led, 37 to 24, at one stage of the match, but could not meet his rival's closing spurt. High runs were seven for Chamaco, five for Scoville.

It was Scoville's second successive victory in the Eastern sectional tournament and qualified him for the world's championship to be played in Chicago in January. He finished the tournament with seven victories and one defeat. Chamaco was second with 5 and 3; William Greenwood, of Pittsburgh, and Kinrey Matsuyama, of Japan, tied for third with 4 and 4, and James Beecher fifth and last with eight straight defeats.

COCHRANE WEST WINNER

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Welker Cochrane, Los Angeles, former national champion, won the Western sectional three-cushion billiard title here by defeating Jay Bozeman, Vallejo, 50 to 43 in 52 innings.

Both Cochrane and Bozeman, as numbers one and two western players, will participate in the world's title tournament in Chicago in January. Bozeman had the high run of seven in tonight's match.

STUDENTS TOUR SOFTENING PLANT

A group of engineering students of Carnegie Tech inspecting the South Pittsburgh Water Company were impressed with the care and efficiency with which water serving the South Hills is softened.

Starting their inspection trip at the Beck's Run pumping station they saw how the water is taken from the Monongahela River. The acid condition of the water when it comes from the river makes it hard. Also present in the raw water due to pollution are varying quantities of iron and aluminum. These chemicals are removed by the softening process.

SODA ASH USED

The group then went to the softening plant, where the water is next treated.

Frank W. Bouson, head chemist of the water company, explained the processes used in preparing the water for home use. At the softening plant he said the split treatment is used. One part is given the lime soda treatment while the other part conducts the flow from the softening plant to the settling basins.

At the laboratory Mr. Bouson demonstrated how they determine the hardness of the water and the correct amount of soda ash necessary. The total pumpage of the South Pittsburgh plant amounts to 15,000,000 gallons per day.

WATER CLEARED

The large settling tank which removes all sluge in the water was then to be inspected. A clarifier they found helped in the rapid cleaning of the water.

The storage basin was next in the line of tour. There 5,000,000 gallons of water are stored. The basin gives a long detention period during which the softening reactions take place.

From the storage basin the water goes to the filter plant. Mr. Bouson explained to the students how the water is carbonated and precipitated before being filtered. The filters complete the process of preparing the water for home use. Bouson said:

"Laboratory control over the entire process is maintained 24 hours a day. Samples of water are taken every four to six hours before and after each phase of the softening treatment for analysis of the hardness content."

PINCHOT ASKED TO BALK MARCH

HARRISBURG, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Refusing comment, Gov. Pinchot has acknowledged receipt of a request from District of Columbia authorities that he discourage Pennsylvania's jobless from marching on Washington.

Luther H. Reichelderfer, president of Washington's Board of Commissioners, telegraphed the Governor that "information has reached District of Columbia that large bodies of unemployed persons propose marching upon the national capital intent upon making various demands upon Congress at its opening December 5."

He said the local government can neither feed nor house such groups and that "their trip will inevitably bring great discomfort and much hardship."

Gov. Pinchot last winter fed 10,000 marchers led by Father Cox, of Pittsburgh, as they passed through Harrisburg on their march to Washington to seek federal relief.

Hunger Marchers Get Backing Here

Members of the Unemployed Councils here today were preparing to support the "hunger march" to Washington planned by Communist organizations throughout the country next month, according to Tom Myerscought, National Miners' Union organizer. The "march" is designed to obtain a federal dole and immediate unemployment insurance.

Telegrams have been sent to Gov. Pinchot and the District of Columbia Commissioners according to organizers, telling them the marchers will pass through Pennsylvania and are due in Washington December 5.

Industry Seeks Remedy For Rising Tide of Bankruptcy

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

BANKRUPTCIES COST creditors $941,000,000 in 1931, and the tide of failures has shown an almost unbroken rise in good years as well as bad during the past decade. The depression added its share to the problem, but it is not altogether a depression evil, as can be seen from the results of previous years. The losses have become so great that real efforts are at last being made to find out how the evil can be curbed.

As a first step in making a scientific study of the problem, the Department of Commerce has published a survey of 570 bankruptcies occurring in Boston between November, 1930, and June, 1931. The Institute of Human Relations and the Law School of Yale assisted in the work.

That there is hope for the finding of a solution of the problem can be seen in the findings. Few bankruptcies can be laid to general business conditions. Bad management, unwise extension of credit, insufficient capital, and averse personal factors were found at the root of most of the troubles.

Unfit to Be Kept Out of Business

THE SURVEY found that most bankrupts never should have gone into business, and in this may be found the solution. In other words, industry may save itself from many losses by more careful study of the soundness of new enterprises before credit is granted.

In discussing the possibilities of such a remedy the report declares that the unfit are eliminated by bankruptcy, but their places are constantly being filled by others equally inefficient and unqualified. It states that no effective method of selection appears to have been developed, but there is sufficient evidence to prove the need of one.

Too Much Credit Often is Granted

IN MANY CASES manufacturers or wholesalers were overoptimistic in granting credit to businesses which were failures from the start. In 53 per cent of these cases the creditors continued to carry the lame ducks when they had been poor pay from seven months to two years before their actual failure.

The survey found that one accepted proof of good management is adequate accounting. Half of the bankrupts did not bother to keep books. Another 28 per cent kept only inadequate records. Many did not take inventories.

The inadequacy of capital can be seen from the fact that 124 of the concerns studied were started with $500 or less, while 72 per cent had $5,000 or less.

A large proportion had no experience in the management of firms in their particular lines. Lack of education was another influence. Over 40 per cent failed to finish grade school.

The growth of failures can be seen in an increase in losses to creditors from $179,000,000 in 1920 to $941,000,000 in 1931.

The survey sees remedies in insistence on proper accounting and efficient operation, better selection in granting credit, and penalties for fraudulent acts.

Bituminous Coal Output Declines

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Production of bituminous coal in the week ended November 5 totaled 7,300,000 tons, says the Bureau of Mines. This compares with 7,475,000 tons in the previous week and 7,690,000 a year ago. Pennsylvania anthracite production was 893,000 tons, compared with 1,100,000 in the week ended October 29 and 1,149,000 in the like week of 1931.

SCHOOL STARTS AIR PROGRAM

In a concentrated effort to explain the fields of accountancy, Pittsburgh School of Accountancy has taken to the air.

Over Station WJAS, during the period allotted to the Law and Finance Building, beginning at 6:10 p. m. every Tuesday, Richard Khuen, managing director of the school, and the program's "Friendly Traveler" have been conducting a dialogue.

The school's first broadcast occurred November 1, when the profession of public accounting was discussed. On successive weeks the other major fields of accountancy will be presented.

Response thus far indicates that the public appreciation of the great adaptability of accountancy training is increasing, together with an increase in the demand for courses of study along these lines.

The annual welfare Fund drive is again being served by Pittsburgh School of Accountancy, which has detailed almost 70 of its day school students to serve the campaign as emergency accountants.

These students, selected upon scholastic ratings, will be busy for the duration of the drive auditing the results attained by the various fund teams.

In this way, Pittsburgh School of Accountancy students not only aid a timely cause, but also gain considerable practical experience.

WILD CARGO

By FRANK BUCK

the only record instance of a python swallowing a man. As the slain sub-agent weighed only 135 pounds there is nothing astonishing about the physical aspect of the story. I know many cases of pythons devouring much bulkier victims, with special reference to the deer family. The amazing angle of Khine's story is that, in terms of the record, man is not the python's natural prey.

HAS HINGED MOUTH

To give you a good idea of the swallowing capacity of the python let me tell you another story. I'll preface it with a few facts about the equipment nature gave the python by way of making possible its prodigious feats.

This great constrictor has a hinged mouth. His lower lip comes out fan-shaped when he unhinges his jaw, making it possible for him to swallow an object more than three times the width of his own head. I have seen many a python that measured six to seven inches across the mouth in repose, and all you have to do to get a graphic idea of what the species can do in the way of swallowing is to multiply this span by three (and a small fraction).

Some years ago when I was in Pelambang, in Southern Sumatra, on a collecting trip, a native boy came up to me and told it had been reported that a huge python that had just taken his maken (food) had been reported at a point in the jungle some five miles off. My activities are well known in this part of the world and native tipsters always try to earn a few coins by giving me information about specimens they think I'd be interested in securing.

As I was on the lookout for some good big pythons I decided to make the trip to get the snake. The native, who knew just where the snake had been seen, accompanied me as guide. When we arrived we found, to our disappointment, that some Eurasian hunters had reached the scene before us and had shot the python for its skin.

SWALLOWED DEER

I had the feeling that I was in the presence of something unusual as I surveyed that python's bulge. One of the Eurasians told me that the constrictor had devoured a rusa (deer.) There was nothing strange about this except the size of the deer. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred when a python swallows a deer in this district, it proves to be one of the smaller species, like the mutjack, or the hog-deer. A fullgrown buck of these varieties seldom weighs over 100 pounds, the does averaging from 40 to 60 pounds.

It was perfectly obvious from the tremendously swelled-out sides of the dead python that it had swallowed something larger than either a hog-deer or a mutjack. I had the Eurasions cut open the huge snake so that I could take a photograph. I figured that owing to the tremendous bulk of the python's meal the picture would be of interest from a zoological standpoint.

The python was quickly slit open and I soon beheld something even more unusual than I had hoped for. The snake had swallowed a sambar stag, antlers and all! The sambar stag is the largest of all Asiatic deer and this was a fair-sized representative of the species, weighing about 160 pounds.

ANTLERS BROKEN

In making its kill the reptile had first crushed the life out of the animal in characteristic fashion and next had broken the antlers. Then, when the antlers lay back flat on the neck, the snake had swallowed the deer, nose first. I still have that amazing photograph of the stag—its antlers plainly showing—inside the body of the slashed-open python.

Editors tell me it is too grewsome to publish but I have never thought of it in that way. To me the picture is merely one more example of the miraculous side of jungle life.

Ever since this occurrence I have been convinced that the python has the physical equipment to swallow a man but I did not run into an actual case of it until several years later when I investigated the strange death of poor Maung Chit Khine.

In Kuala Kangsar, Perak, one of the Federated Malay States, they tell a story (which my friends there tell me is authentic) about an Englishwoman, newly arrived in the country, who had a strange experience with a python. This woman was confined to her bed, having given birth to a child a few days before.

It was late afternoon and she lay dozing in bed when, intuitively perhaps, she awoke with a start. A feeling had come over her that someone or something had just entered the room. Looking up, she saw a big python—a 20-footer, it later proved to be—gliding into the room through a doorway opening on the veranda and heading straight for the crib in which her baby lay.

PARTS MAKERS EXPECTING UPTURN

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The gradual development of activity in the automobile industry, in connection with 1933 programs, is bringing closer the usual year-end upturn in operations among parts and accessory producers, and has already resulted in expanded operations for some companies.

The extent which will be eventually reached by this upturn from extremely depressed conditions which have prevailed for parts makers throughout 1932 is, of course, one of the uncertain factors which will be decided by the level of general business next year. The parts industry is assured only of a volume of business sufficient for car production to supply a minimum field requirement of 1933 products, with retail demand the governing factor for additional output.

POOR THIRD QUARTER

Effect of the rigid curtailment in business this year on the profit position of the parts and accessory producers is shown in the results of the first 21 companies to report on operations for the quarter ended September 30, when seasonal declining tendencies in productive activity served to intensify the slackness in demand for their products. These companies showed an aggregate net loss of $4,565,859 for the period. For the first nine months of the year, their aggregate loss was $7,369,602.

PROGRESSIVE DECLINE

The severe influence of the cumulative depression on earnings in this field is further demonstrated by the fact that in the first nine months of 1929, the same group, exclusive of two companies for which 1929 interim reports are not available, earned an aggregate of $70,293,114, while in the third quarter of that year combined profits of these 19 concerns were $20,458,247.

In the first nine months of 1930, the 20 companies showed combined net earnings of $36,665,049 and for the third quarter, two years ago, their aggregate profits were $6,169,155. Last year, aggregate profits of 20 of the companies were $15,284,948 in the first nine months and $1,216,039 in the September quarter.

STOCKS FIRM AFTER SELLING FLURRY

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Stocks ran into a mild flurry of profit-taking today, but it was readily absorbed in the early trading, and the list showed some recuperative power thereafter.

In view of the extent of the recovery in the past 10 days, brokers felt that a reaction was probably in order. Early strength of wheat presumably bolstered the share market after the first hour. Selling failed to reach important proportions.

In the past 10 days, the list had recovered roughly half of the extreme loss of the downswing which started early in September. This kept it within the bounds of a normal technical upswing. Week-end news developments of a character to influence the market were meager, and Wall street was intently watching the war debt situation, and corporate and trade news, for a more definite clue as to the trend.

Although steel production has held up fairly well, freight car loadings appeared to be experiencing their usual November slump. Santa Fe, the first large carrier to report its freight movement for the week ended November 12, showed a total of cars handled of 25,182, off substantially from the 27,163 of the previous week. Compared to last year, the reduction was about 22 per cent.

A factor making for considerable uncertainty in the share market was the dividend meeting of the American Telephone directors, slated for Wednesday. Wall Street has recently been inclined to look for the maintenance of the regular of $9 annual rate for another quarter, particularly in view of the regular United States Steel preferred dividend. Nevertheless, telephone disconnections in October were somewhat larger than in September.

DEBT OUTLOOK RALLIES WHEAT

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—Grain prices showed an early downward trend today after a steady start. Setbacks in securities at New York had a bearish effect, and 2 points upturn in British exchange rates failed to act as an offset. Opening unchanged, wheat later sagged all around. Corn started at a shade decline to ¼ advance and subsequently receded.

Rallies in wheat values from early downturns were associated with a statement issued by one of the largest houses in the grain trade asserting that definite European steps for readjustment of war debts were a distinctly favorable move toward betterment of the world's economic crisis. More than 1½ cents a bushel rise from the early low point for wheat was soon witnessed. Corn and oats swayed with wheat, rising briskly when the bread grain advanced.

Copper Prices Up In Foreign Market

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Both foreign and domestic prices of copper firmed slightly today, although buying was light.

The market abroad was quoted 5.70 to 5.80 cents a pound against 5.65 to 5.70 cents on Saturday, while in the home market it was impossibleto get copper under 5⅜ delivered to the year-end, compared with 5¼ cents recently. Shipments for the first quarter of 1933 were quoted at 5⅜ to 5½ cents against 5⅜ cents flat last week.

Wheat Expert Says Crop Overestimated

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—B. W Snow, crop expert of Bartlett Frazer & Co., has issued a special spring wheat review indicating that the crop has been overestimgated. He puts the acreage at 19,750,000 acres, compared with the official estimate of 22,169,000 acres, and says that on the basis of final threshing returns this indicate a spring wheat of 241,000,000 bushels, as against the government forecast of 271,000,000 bushels.

Post Election Developments Are Favorable

By B. C. FORBES

CHEERFUL NEWS:

Employment shows substantially more than seasonal gains. All grain markets closed the week higher. Stocks have advanced 20 per cent since early October and bonds lately have joined the upward procession; steel orders continue to increase and production is more active than at any time since March; failures, both commercial and bank, have decreased.

Mr Forbes

Unfavorable developments include a drop of 29,259 cars loaded with freight for the latest week covered; pronounced tapering off in automobile production and sales; continued reduction in the number of telephones in use and some recession in textile activity.

But, on the whole, post-election happenings have been encouraging.

THE FINANCIAL world has accepted with good grace the terrifically overwhelming defeat of its favorite candidate. This column long ago told that the financial-powers-that-be began setting their house in order for Democratic victory immediately following the Maine election. Tuesday's landslide, therefore, did not take them by surprise. Since then there has been very little liquidation of either securities or commodities from influential sources.

Notwithstanding the sharp rebound on the principal exchanges, however, it would be a mistake to assume that there has been extensive buying by the country's most powerful financial or other capitalistic interest. They are not enthusiastic over the temper displayed by the American people.

THE FINANCIAL world, of course, favors settlement of the whole colossal war debt problem. The most influential banking people are the most anxious of all to see a final, definite, acceptable agreement reached.

But, it is hardly likely that the majority of taxpayers will indorse the suggestion emanating from British sources that the world's entire American war debt bill of seven billions be "paid" by floating WHOLLY IN THE UNITED STATES a bond issue of $1,000,000,000 or less, guaranteed by debtors, in full "settlement." American investors have all along supplied, in the form of loans, more money than this country has received in war debt interest and principal payments made by Europe. To expect American investors to furnish funds to wipe the slate clean, is likely to be regarded by American investors as going too far.

Some solution of the pressing problem doubtless will be evolved without either precipitating grave trouble in Europe or shouldering the entire burden upon Americans.

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S pledge of co-operation with the victorious Democratic party was well received on Saturday. The financial community is hopeful that the Democrats will made no determined effort to terminate the various "reconstructive" measures instituted during the last 12 months. The financial community is hopeful, also, that President Roosevelt will surround himself with ministers enjoying public confidence.

INCIDENTALLY, Congress is expected to pass a sales tax at the coming session in order to check the mounting Treasury deficit and to offset a drastic decrease in income tax payments during the coming year.

THE WRITER, although intensely anxious to encourage recovery in order to abate the momentous problems created by unemployment, feels impelled to state that the latest sharp rebound in securities and in certain commodities hardly reflects accurately the prevailing sentiment in the highest financial circles.

The evidences are that the rally was caused in large part by short covering, supplemented by some European support and purchases by home investors of modest means. The "big fellows" are not talking boom.

They will be more than satisfied if the gains already made can be maintained during the winter months.

Western Power Receiver Named

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson announced today the appointment of an equity receiver for the Western Power, Light and Telephone Company, a $20,000,000 holding corporation, operating 19 public utilities in 275 middle western communities.

The court had appointed Robert L. Tudor as receiver last Friday, but the action was suppressed until today.

Receivership was asked by a group of creditors holding notes totaling $150,000. J. A. Kennedy, president, consented to the receivership as a means to prevent lawsuits which might jeopardize assets.

Toledo Employment Shows Further Gain

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 14.—Fifty-one major plants here, mainly automotive, added 503 workers last week and now have 14,575 on their payrolls. During the preceding week 220 workers were added and three weeks ago 388 were taken on.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Light selling trickled into the Curb Market today, eating moderately into last week's gains but encountering a fairly firm undertone on the setback.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

LAKES-TO-SEA PACT SCORED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(INS.)—A warning that the treaty between the United States and Canada for joint development of the Great Lakes-to-the-sea project, if ratified by the Senate, will threaten the "harmonious and pleasant relations" between the two countries, was made here today by Peter G. Ten Eyck, president of the New York State Waterways Association, before a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee.

This was the opening barrage of a concerted attack against the treaty by the New York State Waterways Association, the railroads and the Buffalo Chamber of Commerce.

Representatives of the latter two interests were present to support Ten Eyck when the Senate's hearing on the pact were started by Chairman William E. Borah, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

With President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt reportedly opposed to the treaty in its present form, and Borah "not entirely satisfied" with some of its provisions, it was considered highly probable the treaty would be revised before its approval by the Senate.

Great Loss Feared In Pacific Typhoon

TOKIO, (Tuesday), Nov. 15.—(AP.)—Considerable loss of life and property is feared from a typhoon over a wide area of the Pacific bordering on the coast of Japan. Because of the destruction of communications, including suspension of the main railway between Tokio and Osaka, details were not available today.

A landslide at Yokohama buried 30 houses, killing at least three persons. At Suzukawa, northwest of Numazu, 500 houses were destroyed by fire fanned by strong winds.

Miller, 39, 6245 Hamilton avenue, on the night of July 17. Miller was felled by a blow from an iron pipe, when a band of men attempted to rob him in front of his home.

He said:

"The decent people of Philadelphia won a great victory when they defeated the attempt to kill the voting machines. It was a good job well done."

3 'SUIT CLUB' MEN HELD

Three "suit club" solicitors, alleged to have conducted a numbers lottery on the side, were held in $1,000 bail each for a further hearing on false pretense charges today by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court.

They are Ollie Gregory, McKeesport; Barney Leventhal and Sam Cooklyn, of Philadelphia, all said by detectives to represent a tailoring company.

Detectives testified about 40 complaints had been received of the men promising free suits to would-be "Beau Brummels" who later found they had to pay $2 a week until $40 was paid. The company also sold chances on United States Treasury numbers, according to the detectives. They said the three were wanted in Rankin, Munhall, Duquesne, Charleroi, Shippensburg and Lock Haven.

THREE WOMEN

By FAITH BALDWIN

Joyce Commences to Resent Remote Attitude of Her Mother

CHAPTER XXII.

Joyce, passing out of babyhood into childhood, was more startlingly like her father, physically, than she would be again until she reached maturity. She had his eyes, his hair, his very gestures, and the feminine counterpart of his clean beauty of body veiled, temporarily, in the round chubbiness of childhood. There the likeness ended. Never a dreamy child, she was eager, alert; never a shy child, she was curious, gregarious—"towardly," Nanna called the trait. Nanna, pensioned off and living with relatives, came often to see her nursling. The old woman was a little disappointed that Joyce was not like her father in temperament. "She don't care for learning, the way he did," said Nanna.

Nanna was wrong; learning appealed to Joyce. She wanted to know everything. She read early, but books would never be a passion with her—books were words caged between covers and there was a wide world beyond them to explore.

She made friends easily. Her early school years were full of adventures and encounters. She would bring children home from the streets; she would venture into forbidden neighborhoods and return gaily, the accredited leader of what looked like a gang of hoodlums. Her grandmother punished and expostulated in vain.

"But you have your own friends, Joyce!"

"Not as nice as Norrie!"

Norrie was a small Irish child, with a wide urchin grin, a missing front tooth, flaming hair and a front of brass.

"But Norrie is not a nice little girl, my dear. She—" Surely," asked Mrs. Sheldon in despair, "surely you can see the difference?"

"You said we were all equal in God's sight, Grannie!"

Synopsis

Mrs. Louisa Sheldon idolized her son, Lennox, who died from pneumonia a few days after his marriage to Elizabeth, originally picked by his mother as an ideal wife. Before her idol's death, Mrs. Sheldon had been shocked to learn that he and Elizabeth had plotted to marry before the time which she (Louisa) had stipulated. She forgave her boy—but never Elizabeth—for that. Louisa went abroad with Elizabeth soon after the latter became a widow. In England, Elizabeth's daughter, Joyce, was born and, as years pass and the family is back in New York, the child becomes more and more the image of her father. Louisa moves to mould Joyce just as she did Lennox. Joyce is now 7, and quite a tomboy.

Now Go On

LITTLE FRIENDS

Well, what was one to do? Religion and theory on one hand and caste on the other. Mrs. Sheldon surveyed the child with resigned horror, with, perhaps, a stifled pride. Head up, banners flying, she looked a little champion. From whence did she have these too democratic ideas—ideals? Not, surely, from the Lennox or Sheldon side, and not, Louisa admitted, from the Howlands. The Howlands had not possessed money, but they had a keen sense of class distinction. This was a development not to be laid at Elizabeth's door.

It was plain that Joyce enjoyed observing the large, uncouth manner of Norrie's teeming household. The noise, the slatternly mother, the good-natured, shirt-sleeved father, the reek of dirt and laughter amused her. Yet she was intelligent enough to realize that what became Norrie so well, what lent her a certain fascination, was not for her. Her own manners did not suffer, she did not emulate Norrie in speech or bearing. She simply liked her and observed her and Norrie, for some occult reason, found no cause to resent this.

ELIZABETH REMOTE

Joyce had always thought vaguely about her mother and and her grandmother. Growing up, her thoughts became clear, clean-cut. Grandmother punished. Mother did not. Grandmother was the court of last resort. Mother had no standing in any court. Grandmother was austere, undemonstrative, unbending. Mother was gentle, affectionately inclined — when grandmother wasn't around—arms about you, a sudden caress, a kiss. But grandmother was always the same, solid, invincible, a person who listened to you, encouraged you, reprimanded—in short, a person you could depend upon. Mother was never in the foreground—exactly. She was remote, she was withdrawn. She was, it seemed, frightened.

Frightened of what?

Other girls' mothers were different, Joyce decided at last and decided it resentfully. As she grew, so grew the resentment.

Another thing. Mother didn't talk about father to Joyce, but grandmother did. Joyce had his picture, a young face looking out at her from a strip of cardboard. Gradually he became a hero to her. She and grandmother never tired of talking of him.

"He was your little boy—like I'm your little girl?"

"Mother was affectionate when grandmother wasn't around."

"As not like, Joyce. Yes, my little boy."

Lennox—you understand. I've forgiven you? You've left me this, Lennox—this darling revenge."

It had been easy—almost laughably so. She had never once tried to assert her claim, the blonde, quiet girl moving about the dark house. It was as though she had no part in the child, tacitly admitted it, was reconciled. Louisa knew that, shrewdly. Sooner or later, it must come to a clash between them, and the elder woman was content, knowing she held the conquering weapons.

Clash or not the first seven years were of utmost importance and those years Louisa, undisputed, ruled.

Their mutual routine was very placid. Winters in town, broken before Joyce went to school, by trips to the South. Summers, now, in the ugly, ornate house Mrs. Sheldon bought in Connecticut; a house with the lines of a bandbox, a great porte-cochere, mansard roofs and mid-Victorian furniture. But the Sound was not far away, there were lawns and trees and lovely gardens, and it was not greatly distant from the place where the Gastons, the Harrimans and the Van Alstynes summered.

"I saw Louisa Sheldon yesterday—she ages very little," people, at tea on some one's veranda, would comment.

"The child is a handful. She challenged my Tony to a bicycle race last week and a tree climbing test the week before. She beat him on the tree business, and would have won the race, he reported, only she fell off. What? Oh, not at all—picked herself up, pushed that mane of hair out of her eyes and laughed."

"Aren't they wonderful?" asked some one, a newcomer. "Mrs. Sheldon and her son's wife—"

"Naomi and Ruth—"

"Such devotion—"

"Marry? Oh, I doubt it. She's had opportunities, I have heard. Men like that type, you know—and she's young, but she'll never leave Louisa."

NO MORE BACKACHES

LIKE so many other women—perhaps like yourself—Mrs. Burroughs used to suffer with severe backaches every month. Then she tried Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Shortly afterwards she wrote to us, "I believe it to be the best medicine I ever used. I sleep well, my nerves are better, my appetite is improved and I am getting stronger all the time."

Kill that COLD before it takes root!

Danger Lies in Letting a Cold Settle in the System!

Get at It Quick, from the Inside!

Never neglect a cold. Even a "slight" cold may be the start of something serious. Treat a cold quickly and treat it thoroughly. Don't fool yourself with half-way measures. A half-cured cold is a cold never cured.

A cold calls for a COLD remedy! Preparations good for half a dozen things besides cold can't be as effective as a cold calls for. Many popular remedies often only make the cold worse because they are constipating and also make the system acid.

A cold calls for internal treatment. A cold is an internal infection and only internal medication will reach it. Local, or external applications are only surface treatments and can't reach the root of the trouble or prevent the infection from spreading within the system.

The 4 Things Necessary

Ask your doctor and he will tell you, the wisest thing you can do when you feel a cold or grippe coming on is to take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. This is the treatment a cold calls for. It is direct, internal and complete. It does the several things necessary. First of all, it opens the bowels, a vital step in expelling a cold. Second, it kills the cold germs in the system, drives out the poisonous infection and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headache. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies it against further attack.

Relief with Comfort!

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine may be taken with utter safety by young and old. It is non-narcotic and produces no bad after-effects. It does not upset the stomach, nauseate, or make the head ring or swim. Thousands yearly depend on Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine as their protection in all cases of colds and grippe. Thousands tell us that their doctors frankly admit they could write no better prescription.

Every drug store in America sells Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine in convenient, pocket size boxes, cellophane wrapped. Taken promptly a few Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine tablets will usually expel a cold overnight and thus prevent the infection from spreading within the system. Beware of the dealer who tries to sell you a substitute.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Cold and snowy weather which prevailed in the Pittsburgh district Saturday caused an overflow attendance at the regular meetings of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club.

At each of the meetings the youngsters were told about the plans, which are in the making for a gala Christmas party for the members. The final arrangements will be completed this week and full details will be announced at the meetings Saturday and will be carried in the Junior Komic Club news next Sunday.

At this time the secretary of the Junior Komic Club wishes to remind the members, as he has many times before, about playing in the street. At this time of the year, the boys more so than the girls, are apt to forget all the warnings that they have received, not only from the theater managers, but also, from their mothers and fathers, about playing in the street.

DANGER IN STREETS

We know that the temptation is great when you see several youngsters out in the street kicking or passing a football, to join them. But, boys and girls, this is very dangerous. There are many people driving automobiles today that have forgotten that they were youngsters like yourself at one time and that they also played in the streets, but when they were boys and girls there were not as many automobiles as there are now, so they did not have to be so careful.

These motorists have forgotten all about this and now when they see a group of youngsters playing in the streets they don't take the time to think that maybe in the excitement of catching a football the youngster is going to forget all about automobiles, and they keep right on going at the same rate of speed. Most motorists have the impression that because they are in an automobile everyone on foot should jump out of their way. Some drivers think that because they have an automobile they are kings. And the king can do no wrong.

HURT BY AUTOIST

Little Jack Kastrankas, of the Camsraphone Chapter, has had to have five stitches put into his head on account of just such a motorist as described above. A week ago Thursday night Jack was trying to catch a forward pass and in his excitement ran off the sidewalk into the street after the ball. Jack had caught the ball and was standing there preparing to throw it back when a careless motorist came whizzing along with no regard for anyone else and knocked him down. As a result he has been going around with the aforesaid stitches and many yards of bandages around his head.

So, boys and girls, when you are out playing remember that it's safest always to remain on the sidewalk lest some careless driver forgets that he was a youngster once and thinks just because he has an automobile that all other automobiles and all pedestrians should get out of his way.

If you are not a member of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club send your name and address, name of your parents, date and year of your birth, school you attend, to the secretary, Junior Komic Club, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., and a membership card and button will be mailed you.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS

Etna-Harris: Walter Tomicheck.

South Hills: Lawrence McInerney, Peg Gillispy, Robert Murray, Jean Parfitt, Jack Burke, Mary L. Mosy.

The Fourth Hand at Bridge

Nail the windows down, yank the shades and clip the bellrope.

The contract bridge season is upon us and the boys won't come up for air until April.

They've got six glorious months of hermetically sealed bids. Almost half a year of sound forcing information with its accrued penalties.

That's a card shooter's constricted idea of paradise. A good boat and a following breeze, two capable opponents, a bottle of scotch and a partner who can absorb a boot in the shin without dancing all over the room yelling, "What's that for?"

A good partner realizes what a hoof on the shinbone is for. He knows that you ain't got any of his spades and no trump is too dangerous. So he should just perch there and smile. What he can do is to kick back at one of the opponents and then accuse them of distributing signals.

the signal corps and do away with that ancient card slogan, "Never kick back."

We don't claim that all bridge players scatter their information slavishly. But we do know that everybody wants to win for the moral effect.

When you're playing penny a point the offer might as well come from a porcupine. Your partner can freeze up like an Eskimo locked out for the night. They play bridge for relaxation and that's why their faces look like portholes in the sunken road at Waterloo.

Don't let anybody tell you that bridge is a game of science and skill. Give us the aces and the kings and you can have everything else. We'll collect the gravy and live long enough to be respected.

We were taught never to play cards on boats, trains or with strangers. The list is not complete. Add tables, chairs and friends.

Repeal Is Mandatory

The People's Desire That Prohibition Be Abandoned Is Shown Unmistakably by the Election.

Among the decisive results of the national election the people's verdict on the question of prohibition stands out emphatically and clearly.

Before election day candidates for the United States Senate and for the House of Representatives were asked to make unequivocal declarations on the prohibition issue, and these declarations were published BEFORE ELECTION DAY. The returns must, therefore, be regarded as mandatory.

A total of 27 United States Senators were elected or re-elected from 26 states.

Tabulated figures show that 19 of these Senators were elected or re-elected as "wets" by their own declarations.

Four others, who made no declaration, were elected or re-elected on the Democratic platform, calling for outright repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

One Senator, Steiwer, of Oregon, was re-elected on his declaration supporting the Republican platform, which calls for re-submission of the Eighteenth Amendment to the voters of the states.

In fact, search of this list of 27 Senators from 26 states shows that NOT ONE was elected as a "dry."

The solitary case of doubt is that of Nye, Republican, of North Dakota, who was re-elected. Nye is listed as "evasive" in his pre-election declaration. But if Nye supports his defeated party's platform he, too, will vote to send the Eighteenth Amendment back to the states.

So much for the Senate—not one declared "dry" elected or re-elected out of 27.

In the lower house, out of 349 Representatives elected or re-elected from 45 states, analysis shows:

Two hundred and twelve of these Representatives were elected or re-elected as declared "wets."

Seventy-two who made no declaration were elected or re elected as Democrats on the repeal platform.

Twenty-two who made no declaration were elected or re-elected as Republicans on a resubmission platform.

Six Republicans were elected or re-elected on declarations for the Republican re-submission plank and one on a declaration for the Hoover plan of abolishing prohibition evils, while five Democrats and eight Republicans were elected on a simple declaration for "submission."

Thus 318 out of the 351 Representatives elected or re-elected must stand for repeal or re-submission, and the total number of declared "drys" elected or re-elected was exactly 23—out of a total of 351.

In the face of all these figures nobody can doubt that the entire country demands an end of prohibition.

And because the demand is so overwhelming, there is no reason why the country should have to wait until the new Congress convenes.

The old Congress meets next month in "lame duck" session. Let the reform begin at that session without waste of time.

The will of the voters, delivered through both parties to both houses of Congress, constitutes a mandate upon the entire nation.

The New Penitentiary

It Is Appropriate That Pennsylvania Should Be the Scene of An Advance in Penology.

The new federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., which has been open to public inspection for several days, closed its doors to visitors today and prepared to receive prisoners.

It is an institution of which Pennsylvanians can be proud, for it embodies the newest ideas in penology. The inmates are to be given every opportunity to convert themselves into good citizens. Only hardened habitual criminals will be confined in old-fashioned barred cells.

The Quakers who settled Pennsylvania had what in their time were advanced ideas in regard to the punishment of criminals—ideas which they put into effect in their prisons. It is appropriate, therefore, that this state should be chosen as the scene for the advanced penal methods of this age.

Ideas for a Better City

The Planning Conference Offers an Opportunity to Learn Things That Will Improve Pittsburgh.

The twenty-fourth National Conference on City Planning, which is being held in Pittsburgh this week, furnishes an opportunity for acquiring ideas that can be applied to the improvement of the city.

Authorities on housing, city management, taxation and other municipal financing problems are scheduled to speak at the sessions today, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The sessions are open to the public, and it is to be hoped that there will be a large attendance of Pittsburghers, to the end that the experiences of other cities, as related by the speakers, may prove of benefit in the solution of Pittsburgh's problems.

A Reasonable Request

Motorists Should Not Delay Applying for Their License Plates for Next Year.

The State Department of Revenue has mailed application blanks for 1933 registration to the owners of the 1,953,920 motor vehicles registered in Pennsylvania this year. Now the department requests that the applications, properly signed and accompanied by the registration fee, be returned promptly.

The request is a reasonable one. The department has a big job on its hands in sending out nearly 2,000,000 sets of license plates, and it is not fair to expect it to take care of the bulk of this business in the last few days of the year.

Every year hundreds of motorists get into trouble through delay in applying for license tags. The prudent car owner will apply for them now, and be free from worry on New Year's Day.

(Copyright, 1932.)

Like hunted quarry in the night, along a shadowed street, they exercised that mystic rite: "Ring twice and ask for Pete." Thus honest men in stealth and fear went out to get a glass of beer.

That mystic rite is doomed to pass, and soon will come a time when foam bedecks a friendly glass, and thirst is not a crime—a time when honest men may spray their tonsils in the light of day.

Aftermath Meditations

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Mr. Roosevelt has been elected to the Presidency with the greatest vote ever recorded in history. To any one with any concept of popular psychology or any familiarity with conditions, and the part the administration played in creating them, the result has been foreseen for months.

As the campaign progressed, the soundness and justice of Mr. Roosevelt's views grew upon the thoughtful; and the eleventh hour strategy of Mr. Hoover's managers to instil fear into the hearts of a people overburdened now with tragedy was resented. The desperate attempts made here and there throughout the country by some industrialists to intimidate their employes only strengthened the determination of the men to vote their own convictions.

The result is a rebuke without parallel in American history. From Massachusetts, the home of Coolidge, to California, the home of Mr. Hoover, ran a common purpose. There is no occasion for criminations and recriminations now. In the American way, the American people have spoken, and if the voice of the people is not "the voice of God," it is the unquestionable voice of the nation.

Looking Over The Wreckage

Looking over the wreckage of the battlefield, one is almost appalled at the havoc wrought to the public careers of notable supporters of the Administration. Senator Moses has been kicked to Kingdom Come by the "sons of the wild jackasses;" Senator Bingham in Connecticut has been retired; Senator Watson, Republican floor leader in the Senate, has gone down in Indiana; Senator Smoot of the Smoot-Hawley bill has been rejected and there are other casualties among the notables. The election is nothing less than a revolution. The new administration which is inducted into office in March will have a majority of well wishers in both branches of the Congress. It will face heavy responsibilities.

Politics Must Be Adjourned

In the course of the campaign, Mr. Mills suggested that in the event of a Roosevelt victory the government would drift disastrously during the four months intervening before the inauguration. Many foolish things are always said in the heart of a campaign. Of course, there can be no excuse for any drifting.

We are living in perilous times. The present administration is the government until the Fourth of March. The President's obligations under his oath are as sacred during the next four months as they have ever been. It would be futile and foolish during this interval for him to attempt to force purely partisan measures, legislative or administrative, upon the country, and of course he won't. He and his Cabinet could, in the interval, deliberately do all within their power to contribute to the chaos to increase the difficulties of the future regime; but that would be near treason in days like these, and naturally nothing of the sort need be anticipated.

Politics must be adjourned and the present Administration must dedicate itself whole-heartedly to meeting the immediate problems of the future. It is the only honorable way.

Democratic Party Made Definite Pledges

Throughout the campaign, Mr. Roosevelt has meticulously guarded himself against extravagant promises to perform miracles. His views have been set forth in many major speeches, so that no one need question his intent. The victorious party has made its position perfectly clear on the major issues.

It has made certain definite pledges, and its failure to carry out these positive pledges would destroy confidence in the integrity of its purpose from the very beginning. And confidence in the government is the most essential factor in the fight for the restoration of a reasonable degree of prosperity.

Thus there can be no doubt as to the party's pledge in regard to prohibition. The machinery must be set in motion for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and for the immediate modification of the Volstead act. A failure here would be fatal.

They Have Turned To Roosevelt

Underlying the popular purpose in the unprecedented majority given Gov. Roosevelt is one outstanding thought—that it must mean a very definite change in the general attitude of the ruling forces toward purposes of government and toward the interests of the masses of the people. It is not politics to say that the repudiated regime has acted on the aristocratic theory that government primarily is concerned with great corporations and powerful financial groups. That is what has made this campaign as fundamental in its meaning as that of 1800, when, in a similar rising of the people, the old Federalist concept was crushed and the Jeffersonian concept was adopted. The mass of the people today are intensely concerned with the spirit of those in power.

They have turned to Roosevelt for this new, more democratic, more humane spirit because of his character, his training and his utterances. I know that in everything he said about the "forgotten man" he was passionately sincere. That his sincerity will appear in his policies I have no doubt.

And nothing is more essential. It is sheer nonsense to doubt that in the minds of millions in recent years has sprung the thought that there is nothing for them in the preservation of our democratic institutions. This thought has been strengthened by the attitude of those now in power. Whenever ruling forces begin to look upon the masses as a "mob" to be "handled" or ignored, democracy ceases to have meaning.

And so the great thing expected is a change in the spirit, the concept, the attitude of government toward the average man.

Democracy Faces a Great Opportunity

And that carries no possible threat to any legitimate business enterprise. The most unpardonable feature of the campaign of those now in power in the closing days of the struggle, now happily over, was their attempt to persuade businessmen that Mr. Roosevelt's election would mean the wrecking of our financial fabric, the ruin of business. This line of strategy, while never tolerable, was utterly unpardonable under existing conditions, when the essential thing is the restoration of confidence. But we shall hear no more of this sort of thing. The election results indicate that no sane man gave any credence to the foolish statement that "grass would grow in the streets of our cities" if Mr. Hoover should be turned out.

The Democracy faces a great opportunity; but the opportunity carries with it a very great duty and responsibility. Its tenure in power will be determined by the manner in which it meets its duties and responsibilities. The jubilation is over, and this is the hour of sobriety, and some humility.

Problems Must Be Solved

The Democrats momentarily may rejoice over the heavy majority in the House and its control of the Senate, but there always is some danger under such conditions. Never in the history of the party for generations has a strong, sane leadership in Congress been more imperative.

Infinite harm can be done by dissensions among the victors there. A party leader has been given the scepter, and his name is Roosevelt. It will be the duty of every member of his party in House and Senate to support him to a man in carrying out the pledges made.

Meanwhile, politics adjourned, the American people will expect the dedication of both political parties from this hour on to the solution of the problems that must be solved to hasten the restoration of prosperity for all.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

As Husbands Go

Marriage is something about which most men are faintly curious at twenty, dubious at thirty, cynical at forty and naively optimistic at fifty.

* * *

Some women are lucky enough to get a good husband or a good photograph at the first snap; others have to try three or four "re-takes" before they can get anything satisfactory; and lots never have any success at all.

So uncanny are a woman's intuitions, that her husband can't even announce that he is going on a reducing diet without being suddenly aware that she is wondering if his new stenographer is "one of those blondes."

"Nudism" will never be much of a hit with attractive women. They remember that Adam never took any romantic interest in Eve until she gave up self-expression and dolled herself up in a few clothes.

Divorce used to be a scandal and a tragedy; but now, it's becoming just a little social affair, as refined as flour, as merry as a recess bell and as easy as having a tooth out with novocaine.

Don't imagine that your husband's faults are "different" or his sins "original." They're probably the same old ones that Eve had to put up with in Adam.

"Getting rid of a woman involves a certain amount of annoyance," admits a masculine writer. Ah, yes, signor—and we might add ingenuity, nerve, tact, heart balm, alimony and sometimes skillful bullet-dodging.

By the time she is 45, the average woman of today should have enough old wedding rings lying around for all of her grandchildren to cut their teeth on.

Nearly every man has the secret conviction that nothing but lack of time or absence of inclination prevented him from being a dangerous Don Juan.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Opportunity

They lie who say the past is dead,
For by its fruits each hour is fed;
The speech and deed I would forget
Still dog my steps, to rule me yet.

And this today, so affluent
With hope and chance, will soon be spent;
With all the past it will be gone,
Remote as earth's first, loveliest dawn.

Yet, for a little time, I hold
The moments in my grasp, to mould
Into the semblance of my will;
To make, forever, good or ill.

Thus something of eternity
Is of my doing, shaped by me;
Ah, may I make it wholly good,
My grain of life's infinitude!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Early to a bakehouse and, striking a bargain for a coffee ring, stopped at Leon Gordon's to see his canvass of a Brittany bridge, very noble. And Arthur William Brown there, so cheerful few would realize he lost a million in the crash.

Typing my bit, and driving my wife to Dobbs Ferry to see Messmore and Kitty Kendall, and somehow got off the trail and wound up, in high anger and great confusion, at Mamaroneck. So across country, and prowled among the Kendalls collections, especially struck with an inkstained desk of Poe's.

To the Will H. Hays for dinner and Norma Shearer, Irving Thalberg and James Forbes there. Thence to a play, and talked to Margaret Illington Bowes and the Major. Also the Earl Benhams, Kay Brush and George Gershwin. Home and, seeking a book, fell to arranging my shelves and, before I realized it, it was dawn.

No celebrity leads the irregular, although entirely temperate, life of George Gershwin. Ignoring fixed hours, he may begin a composition at 4 in the morning or 2 in the afternoon. He has but one fixed rule. Upon retiring, he remains in bed for seven hours. He may retire at 3 in the afternoon. Gershwin works in white flannel trousers, white silk shirt and house slippers. Bothered by indigestion, he eats frugally and rarely indulges more than a single cocktail or highball. Cigarets nag him, but he has not given them up entirely. He lives a short walk from Rube Goldberg, and often drops in to play with the children or watch Rube at the drawing board. He is interested in painting and some of his work has been praised by critics. His brother, Ira, is his lyricist and Broadway's shyest violet, not even attending first nights. Ira and George are steadfast pals.

Recently I flushed a columnar enthusiasm for "Auf Wiedersehen," as a pretty adieu. A Japanese writes, he thinks his own "Sayonara" superior. It means: "If it must be so."

Ex-Mayor Walker, with his new home in a 5-room suite near A. C. Blumenthal's, at the Ambassador, on Park avenue, carries out the theme of the song lyric: "You may have your City Hall, but I'll take A. C. Blumenthal." Jimmy's tempo has been piannimisso since he became Citizen Walker. Once or twice he dropped into his corner table at the Casino, but his stays were brief.

* * *

A business spurt may be around the corner at that. At least, for hotels. A gentleman tells me that, in phoning for a reservation for his 77-year-old mother, he was told that elderly ladies were not permitted. I've observed such exclusiveness does not bar a glittering flock of kept ladies and others of a soiled sorority in the same inn.

Personal nomination for the happiest writing lady I know—Ida Verdon.

Lisle Bell called on Samuel Hoffenstein, the poet, one morning. Hoffenstein, usually fevered with Circean syrup, was in a funk. Asked why, he sighed: "Nothing in particular. But everything annoys me, from the loss of a tooth to loss of a woman."

It was interesting to watch a first night reaction to black and white chorus mixture recently in "Ballyhoo." Eight mulattoes and eight fair blondes appeared in a song-and-dance number. As they floated out, there was a gasp, deathly silence—then deafening applause.

* * *

A dozen times I've been caught red-handed—and red-faced—looking back at some person along the street. Today, after about 15 steps, each of us pivoted at the precise second. I stumbled into a knee fall and, with varnished blandness, got up, dusting off my hands. I'm always forgetting to shoot myself.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

She was in love with a dream.

To begin with, he wasn't a dream at all, but a perfectly healthy and substantial young Army officer named Capt. Armstrong. He had gone to New York in the summer of 1917, and was waiting there for a few weeks while his regiment prepared to go overseas. During those unreal, romantic days the beautiful young Baroness de Hoven met him, and they fell desperately in love.

So desperately that she felt she would die when his ship steamed away, his beloved face fading in the mist. But she didn't die. Instead, he went through the war unscathed. She wrote him daily. He answered almost as often.

Then he came back.

Or did he?

The Army records said he did. The captain himself swore he did. But the Baroness de Hoven cried that he was an impostor!

It's an amazing tale. Capt. John H. Ayers, head of the Missing Persons Bureau of the New York Police Department, tells about it in his new book, "MISSING MEN."

Many a strange tale has come to Capt. Ayers' wise ears, but none more fantastic than the one he heard when the beautiful baroness came begging him to find the man she loved. For here, on one side, was a gentleman protesting that he was the lover she had sent away; and on the other hand, there was the lady herself vowing that he wasn't, and couldn't be!

"But how do you know he isn't?" said Capt. Ayers.

"The evidence of my own eyes," said the lady, scornfully. "My lover was a modern Adonis, six feet tall, perfectly proportioned. His hair was dark, his eyes dark and lustrous. But this man is only five feet 10 in height, with light, sandy hair, a close-clipped mustache, freckled face and hands—not the slightest resemblance to my boy."

It sounded convincing. So convincing, in fact, that the lovely lady persuaded not only the New York Police Department but the United States government itself to labor for months in a search for her lost lover. And then it all came out.

Her lover had never been lost. He was, in truth, the freckled, sandy young man whom the baroness had sobbingly sent to war, but whom she indignantly repudiated when he returned. But why?—

BECAUSE, IN THE MEANTIME, SHE HAD FALLEN IN LOVE WITH A DREAM.

Originally she gave her heart to a real young man. But, as he passed from her sight, she began to transform his rather ordinary features into those of an imaginary hero who matched her romantic ideal. Little by little she changed him over; made him a bit taller, a bit darker; erased those freckles; forgot the stubby mustache.

Gradually she became a little confused. Just how did he look, anyway? Then, presently, the thing which had begun as a romantic fancy became a burning reality AND WHEN THE REAL MAN CAME BACK, SHE CALLED HIM AN IMPOSTOR BECAUSE HE DID NOT MATCH HER DREAM IMAGE!

A strange and a pitiful story, ending in an insane asylum. But what has it to do with you and me? Plenty!

FOR WE, TOO, FALL IN LOVE WITH DREAMS, AND REJECT REALITY!

We, too, try to fit people and conditions into our pet pictures. And, when they refuse to fit, we feel cheated, and abused, and reject them, in our anger.

Stop and think of your own attitude toward the people you profess to love; toward the world in which you live. Do you accept people AS THEY ARE? Or do you get mad if they fail to live up to your ideal fancy?

Will you accept the world AS IT IS? Or do you blind yourself to facts and interpret conditions according to your own prejudices and preferences?

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

The mother or the mother-in-law in your house may object to many of your ways and to your general family conduct.

Because she is older she may insist upon instructing you in your home affairs and domestic matters generally.

If she tries to change the general routine of the family she is bound to create trouble.

From her viewpoint the parties given by the younger generation are far from what they should be.

She views extravagance that she feels will be regretted later.

But no matter what she thinks she should do nothing more than make a mild remonstrance, if she desires to have the family welcome her presence.

On the other hand young folk should be considerate and remember that one can profit by experiences of older people.
